Elk Grove Village Included In U.S. Worker Survey

Personal Health Services Study Is Under Way

Questionnaires have gone out to doctors, schools, nursing homes and other health agencies serving Elk Grove Village as the first step in compiling a report on personal health services and needs in the village.

The questionnaires were sent out late last month and have been coming back slowly, according to Patricia Burke, coordinator of the personal health part of the Comprehensive Health Survey being compiled by the village board of health.

"It is unfortunate that our mailing went out right now with the Christmas mail, but we hope we'll get good cooperation," Mrs. Burke said.

After the questionnaires are received, she said, a directory of health services will be compiled and survey of residents conducted to find out what additional services are needed in the area.

All the information will be included in the Comprehensive Health Survey which will also have a section dealing with environmental health in the village.

The board of health has been given a budget of $1,500 for the survey by the village board of trustees. Once the survey is completed health board members plan to use it to develop a health plan for the area.

A sample of households in Elk Grove Village will be included in a survey of employment to be conducted next week by the U.S. Census Bureau.

Curtis T. Hill, director of the Bureau's Data Collection Center in Chicago, said about 25 households in Elk Grove Village have been chosen for the survey. The households will be among about 50,000 nationwide used to calculate the number of persons in the United States who have jobs, the number looking for work and the percentage unemployed during the month.

The survey is conducted monthly by the Bureau's door-to-door interviewers for the Department of Labor.

Households used in the survey are chosen at random and usually used for about four consecutive months, Hill said.

"We're in every area at one time or another," he said. "One month we may be in Elk Grove Village and a few months later we may be in Schaumburg."

The October survey showed that the total number of employed persons increased by 320,000 (seasonally adjusted) to a record level of 79.8 million.

The number of unemployed persons dropped to 5.8 per cent of the labor force from 6 per cent in September, the survey showed.

The December survey also will ask questions about any farm work done for wages or salary in 1971 and will provide up-to-date statistics on the number of persons doing farm work.

Vote To Remove Stop Signs At Arlington-Oakton

Despite objections from Elk Grove Village Trustee Edward Kenna, temporary stop signs on Arlington Heights Road at Oakton Street will be removed.

The village board voted to remove the signs Tuesday night after hearing a police department recommendation to do so. The recommendation cited traffic congestion and increased use of interior residential streets as reasons for eliminating the signs.

But Kenna, who along with Trustee

Nanci Vanderweel, voted against their removal, remained unimpressed: "We may solve the problem on Arlington Heights Road, but we sure aren't helping Oakton Street traffic."

The stop signs were put up on Arlington Heights Road to enable Oakton traffic to get onto heavily traveled Arlington Heights Road when Oakton was being used for detoured Higgins Road traffic.

But the police department study says the signs are no longer needed because, "With Higgins Road (which parallels Oakton Street) open to through traffic, the amount of traffic on westbound Oakton is not sufficient to justify stopping the traffic on Arlington Heights Road."

Kenna, however, argued the board was giving too much consideration to "non-village" Arlington Heights Road traffic.

"I JUST THINK we're being too concerned with non-local Arlington Heights traffic at the expense of Oakton Street traffic," he said. "Women are scared to death of that intersection."

Kenna also questioned why the signs should be eliminated when the village's own study showed a need for a signal at the intersection.

"Now we're going to turn right around and eliminate the signs," he said. But other trustees, including James O'Brien and George Spees, argued that a greater hazard exists with the stop signs than without them.

A lesser danger is created by forcing Oakton motorists to cut into Arlington Heights Road traffic than for traffic to slice through the residential areas to avoid backups at the intersection, O'Brien argued.

Spees concurred, noting "the problem is that through traffic avoids the con-

Elk Grove And Schaumburg Townships

Desire Mental Health Service Coordination

Officials from Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships expressed the desire to coordinate all mental health services in the area while discussing an application for state funds from Elk Grove Village Community Service Tuesday night.

Members of the two boards of auditors also agreed they want to study the application of the village-funded mental health and counseling agency before taking action. The two groups were holding a joint meeting called to discuss common problems between the two townships.

Representatives from Community Service have appeared before both boards in recent weeks asking for resolutions of support for their application to become the state mental health agency for the two-township area.

Both boards have postponed action on the request pending further study.

Elk Grove Township Auditor Richard Hall said that after hearing of the Community Service application, "I would like to find out everything that is going on in mental health in the area and then see us form a committee to coordinate these groups."

He added, "I got the impression that there is a contest among the various groups."

THE COMMUNITY Service application is being officially opposed by Northwest Mental Health Center, which is now the only state-funded center serving the two townships from its office in Arlington Heights.

Schaumburg Township Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein said his board had been told by the Community Service representatives that the state is favorable to their application for funds and then had heard from Northwest Mental Health that the state feels the application is "premature."

Elk Grove Auditor Bernard Lee said, "We have to remember the information from Northwest Mental Health might also be self-serving because they are now getting money, and, if the other groups get money, it's possible the state will decide to take it from Northwest."

Northwest currently receives about $130,000 from the state to supply services to Wheeling, Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships. Community Service is applying for a grant to serve the two southern townships because the four-township area now has a large enough population to allow the state to consider setting up a second agency.

The two sets of township officials compared the programs each has had for serving troubled youth in their area. Schaumburg has had a youth worker for the past year whose tasks included providing counseling for youths.

In October Elk Grove Township hired a youth worker who was to cooperate with Community Service's youth program and work in unincorporated areas. But she resigned after about a month on the job.

"WE ARE looking for another one, and we still think it's a good idea. But our problem was we ended up losing control of the young lady because she was working for Community Service, too," Lee said.

The auditors for both townships agreed the youth program was one way the two areas could cooperate and perhaps get funding from other local governments and through a tax levy.

Lee said, "If your program (in Schaumburg) can be expanded and we can get something like it, after we have a year or so of experience under our belts, I think we could convince our people we are providing a service they should provide more money for."

The two groups agreed to discuss the Community Service application further before taking action. Both boards have been asked to act before the first part of January because Community Service must then submit its formal application.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a ruling designed to help out the food and clothing industries, the Cost of Living Council said that companies which are innocent victims of wild swings in the cost of new materials do not have to notify the Price Commission before raising prices. The Pay Board meanwhile summoned Harvard Professor John Dunlop to a meeting last night to explain why his construction industry pay panel has authorized wage increases far above the board's own guidelines.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., broke with liberal colleagues and told the Senate he will vote to confirm William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court.

Sen. John V. Tunney, considered the leading Democratic politician in California, endorsed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for the Democratic presidential nomination on the assumption that Edward M. Kennedy will not be a candidate.

A Sunday school teacher in Westfield, N.J., is sought by police after the bodies of his wife, mother and his three teenage children were found shot to death in the family's 20-room mansion in an exclusive suburb. They had been dead for a month.

The State

County officeholders from throughout the state registered for the 84th annual midwinter conference and seminar of the Illinois Association of County Officials. With at least 50 more delegates listed to speak, the U.N. General Assembly has scheduled extra sessions in hopes of finishing its debate on the Middle East crisis by this weekend.

Australian-born soprano Marie Collier, 44, who achieved fame overnight as a last-minute stand-in for diva Maria Callas six years ago, fell 30 feet to her death while opening a window in her London apartment, police reported. Police said the death was accidental.

East Germany rejected a compromise plan to open the Berlin Wall, allowing West Berliners to visit the East, West German officials announced.

The War

U.S. planes killed scores of Communists in bombing raids in Cambodia and duelled with Soviet-made missiles over Laos and North Vietnam in an upsurge of American activity on Indochina battlefields. Meanwhile, 50 U.S. Army doctors in Vietnam said that most U.S. casualties they treat result from self-inflicted wounds, fighting among GIs, auto accidents, jungle diseases and drugs — and not from combat.

Middleton Accused Of Murder Plot

A Chicago man told police in February he was hired by Dr. James T. Middleton to kill a Cook County sheriff's policeman who arrested the doctor on sex charges, according to a federal treasury agent.

The agent, Kenneth Swanson, assigned to the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the U.S. Treasury Dept., gave the information during a Federal Court hearing yesterday on a defense motion to suppress the physical evidence against the doctor.

The hearing ended late yesterday afternoon as both sides rested. Federal Court Judge James Parsons said the trial will begin tomorrow morning and that he will rule on the motion after the trial begins.

Middleton was indicted by a federal grand jury charging him with eight counts of possessing and manufacturing destructive devices.

SWANSON SAID he was told of the alleged murder request by Leo Lagardo, 39, of Chicago, after Lagardo had been arrested by Chicago police at the doctor's Chicago apartment.

Police reportedly went to Dr. Middleton's apartment at 2000 N. Lake Shore Dr., Feb. 15 after the doctor complained he had been receiving threatening phone calls. While at the apartment, police said, Lagardo and another man arrived and were identified by the doctor and his wife as the ones responsible for the alleged threats against the doctor.

At the police station, Swanson said Lagardo told him he was hired by Dr. Middleton to harass state witnesses against the doctor and to "hit" (kill) Sheriff's Detective Donald Shaw.

Shaw was the policeman who led the investigation of the doctor and who arrested him last Dec. 1, 1970 on a charge of deviate sexual assault.

Lagardo reportedly was not charged in connection with either the alleged murder plot nor the alleged threats.

What Do You Give Shoplifter For Christmas? Jail Term!

by TOM VON MALDER
"Twere the days before Christmas

And all through the stores
Went greedy little hands
Looking to take more

Shoplifting at Christmas time is a problem for most retail stores. The crowds of shoppers are larger, making it more difficult to spot a light-fingered culprit.

The problem becomes acute when there is a large shopping center in a community, such as with the Randhurst

Shopping Center in Mount Prospect. A look at police department figures for the month of December reveals that at Randhurst alone, there were 10 arrested shoplifters in 1969 and 17 arrestees last year. And the problem is not just confined to Randhurst.

But no community has a police department large enough that men can be spared from other duties to merely patrol every store. This leaves the stores with much of the burden in reducing the incidence of theft from their counters.

The larger department stores often form their own security departments, and those at Randhurst are no exception.

"MY AGENTS are strictly undercover," the head of the loss prevention bureau of a large department store at Randhurst, said in a recent interview. She has some 16 agents working for her throughout the store.

Some of these agents are off-duty Cook County policemen, she said. "The average age would be about 30, and they have worked an average of two years at the store," she said.

The speaker is young enough that she could pass as a teenager.

"I can dress like them (teenagers) and pass for them," she said. "So I do not hire teenagers to work for my department. Teenagers are too eager to pick up someone, and if you become overzealous you have a tendency to make false arrests."

That brought up a major problem in catching shoplifters.

"You have to see them take it, conceal it and carry it away before you can apprehend them," the agent said. But when they pick up someone, generally the thief is turned over to Mount Prospect Police. A few juveniles are released into their parents' custody.

"This store has developed a very good relationship with Mount Prospect Police," she said. "We do our best to uphold the law. I think we catch a real good percentage of them (thieves) but we specialize (in surveillance) in certain areas at this store." This would leave other areas in the store less protected, although the agents are continually on the move.

NOT EVERY store uses undercover agents. Some cannot afford them, and other stores are too small. Jewelry stores and the like will hire an armed, uniform guard.

"Even we will use an armed man, if there is a consistent increase in shortages from a certain department or area," the store agent said.

"We're here to prevent, not just to pick up people," she said. "If there's an opportunity for a shoplift — few clerks or an open area — a person is more likely to take something. Most shoplifting is done on impulse. Generally it's a teenager or a bored housewife who wants something to do."

The best prevention, she said, is to make the sales clerks more aware of the problem.

"An alert sales person is the chief factor in preventing a shoplift," she said. In agreement was Marshall Smith of the Morton Suggestion Co., 803 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. His firm set up incentive and reminder programs utilizing posters that alert sales personnel to the problem.

"We try to prevent shoplifting before it starts," he said.

Smith said their programs promote shoplifting prevention by having sales personnel go up to people holding items and inquiring, "Can I help you?" and by asking a person, "Is that all?" when ringing up a purchase. This makes a would-be shoplifter think twice, he said.

Often it appears that shoplifting becomes a game for people. However, if caught, the penalties are high. An arrest becomes part of a person's permanent record, Mount Prospect's Acting Police Chief John Savage said. Also, the penalties for petty theft (up to $150) are up to a year in jail or $500 fine or both. For grand theft (over $150), a convicted shoplifter can get from one to 10 years imprisonment.

Bad Halloween Candy Leaving A Sour Taste

It's more than 10 months until next Halloween — but problems concerning its celebration were brought to the Elk Grove Village Board this week.

A group of village residents worried about foreign objects being put in Halloween candy brought petitions to the board Tuesday night, asking the board to consider the problem.

The residents, led by Barbara Mulick, 234 Pleasant Dr., and Mary Noehre, 248 Fern Dr., noted that this year several dangerous items were found in candy given to Halloween trick-or-treaters in the village.

"We don't want to stamp out Halloween — we don't want to stamp out the tradition of trick-or-treating," a spokesman for the group said, "but we want to make sure that people know that things like this are going on here."

Suggestions offered to ameliorate the problem included limiting the number of hours children could trick-or-treat and urging merchants to sell certificates which could be redeemed for candy.

VILLAGE OFFICIALS indicated that the village's judicial, planning and zoning committee was looking into the matter to determine what the village could legally do. But Village Atty. Ed Hofert cautioned that it was doubtful the village could legally prevent residents from giving candy to children.

Village Pres. Charles Zettek noted that there were several things the village could do, but added, "It's really a sad situation."

gestion by cutting through residential areas."

In the vote on the proposal to remove the sign, Spees, O'Brien and Robert Durning voted "yes" and Village Pres. Charles Zettek added his "yes" vote to the majority. Trustee Ronald Chernick was absent from the meeting.

In other action, the board: —Approved a bid for fire equipment from the Able Fire & Safety Equipment Co. The bid, for equipment for the department's two new fire engines, is for $6,577.20.

—Authorized Village Atty. Edward Hofert to answer a suit filed against the village by Speelman Refuse Service, Chicago. The suit asks $150,000 in damages and a temporary restraining order to prevent the village from stopping Speelman from doing business in the village.

—Postponed for a week action on a proposal to establish a $1 fee for transferring non-village vehicle stickers to village stickers. Hofert is to review the proposal and report to the board at next week's meeting.

—Adopted a resolution commending local barber Vincent Lawrence for receiving the 1972 "Barber of the Year" award.

—Swore in Dave Farley, 75 Walpole Rd., as a member of the police pension board and Al Antonik, 599 Exmoor Rd., as a member of the board of health.

Former State Investigator

Ware Gets New County Job

Mitchell Ware, former director of the Illinois Bureau of Investigation (IBI) and a recent figure in the Black Panther grand jury controversy, has been appointed to the Cook County Civil Service Commission.

Ware, previously appointed to the IBI post by Republican Gov. Richard Ogilvie, was named to the $10,000 a year part-time civil service position by Democrat George W. Dunne, president of the county board.

Dunne announced the appointment effective immediately, Monday during a regular meeting of the county board.

Ware will serve a three-year term on the commission, replacing Roger E. Henn, public affairs director of the Union League Club, whose term recently expired.

The 37-year-old Ware left his IBI post a few months ago to accept an appointment from Joseph A. Power, presiding judge of the county criminal court, as a "friend of the court." Ware was assigned to investigate charges that the special grand jury had been pressured into returning indictments against State's Atty.

Mitchell Ware

Edward Hanrahan and 13 others as a result of the 1969 police raid on a Black Panther apartment.

The Illinois Supreme court later voided the appointment of Ware and he was not able to continue his investigation.

A partner in the law firm of Mazza, Mazza and Ware of Chicago, Ware earned his law degree from DePaul University in 1967 after six years as an inspector for the Illinois Division of Narcotic Control. He was named superintendent of the division in 1969.

Ware is a former law clerk of Federal Judge James B. Parsons and was an aide to the judge during the judge's work on President Lyndon B. Johnson's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice.

Ware has also worked as an attorney in the area of poverty law and as a television news reporter. Currently he is a member of the National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse, appointed by President Richard M. Nixon in February.

Women's Caucus To Meet Dec. 16

The Women's Political Caucus, a nationally organized group that supports women running for public office, has formed a chapter in the 12th Congressional District.

Women in the Northwest suburbs who are either interested in running for a public office or in supporting women running for office are encouraged to join the group at a Dec. 16 meeting at 8 p.m. at the home of Eunice Tobin, 1880 Lake Ave., Highland Park.

"We're not anti-men or a women's lib group," a representative of the chapter said. "We just want to see more representation for women since they represent 53 per cent of the electoral vote."

An organizational meeting of the new group held last week attracted 40 area women. The group is especially looking for women interested in running for political office.

The seven objectives the women will work toward are:

—Passage and enforcement of all federal and state equal rights legislation.

—Repeal of all laws that affect a woman's right to decide her own reproductive and sexual life.

—The securing of woman's equality in all areas — social, economic and political.

—An immediate withdrawal of United States' forces from Indochina.

—An end of the arms race and the use of physical force as a means of settling conflict.

—Comprehensive community programs for education, health care, child care and senior citizen care.

—Adoption of public and private institutions to help establish the changing patterns brought about by humanizing of sex roles.

Just Politics

by Bob Lahey

The White House, in its opposition to the "tax checkoff" plan, has compiled a brief listing arguments against the proposal for financing presidential campaigns.

The plan, based on an amendment to the Revenue Act by Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., would allow taxpayers to specify that $1 of their income tax be donated to the political party of their choice. A modified version of the Pastore amendment, postponing it until after the 1972 elections, is expected to be voted upon in Congress next week.

Arguments being put forth to lawmakers have been compiled, over the signature of presidential counsel Clark MacGregor, and mailed to newspaper editors throughout the country.

Among the eight arguments against the plan, there is a curious distinction in the White House position between "minor party" candidates — which it says would be encouraged to proliferate — and "splinter party" candidates, which it argues would be penalized.

MacGregor says, "There will likely be a proliferation of political parties such as Labor, Conservative, Women's Rights, new left groups, as a result of federally financed campaigns."

"MINOR PARTY candidates such as Governor George Wallace of Alabama would have nothing to lose by running in a Presidential campaign since the taxpayer would pick up the tab. With millions of federal dollars to spend, Wallace and others like him will be afforded a sizable expense account for the propagation of personal causes, compliments of the American taxpayer."

MacGregor then argues that "splinter party" candidates would be penalized, a fact which he says "should be of special concern to the followers of such hopefuls as former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, Representative Shirley Chisholm, and the like."

Such candidates, he says, are discriminated against by the Pastore amendment because they would receive campaign money only after the election, and then only if they received more than 5 per cent of the vote.

He points out correctly that the provision would preclude access to cash-market advertising through radio, television, newspapers and advertising agencies.

MacGregor also raises a question of constitutionality, maintaining that the Pastore amendment would delegate a congressional function, of appropriating money from the federal treasury, to private citizens.

He also cited opposition to a similar plan, adopted in 1966 and suspended before it was implemented, by the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy and Democratic Sen. Albert Gore of Tennessee.

BOTH ARGUED the 1966 plan did nothing to lessen the costs of campaigns or to correct past abuses in campaign financing. Those arguments, says MacGregor, are equally applicable to the Pastore amendment.

MacGregor concluded, "The President is concerned that it would divert badly needed federal revenues away from far worthier programs without eliminating the serious problems of expense and undue influence in presidential campaigns. He is convinced that true campaign reform can only be achieved through direct and comprehensive election legislation."

In a cover letter, MacGregor described the Pastore amendment as one of the "most profound yet least understood piece of election legislation to be dealt with by any recent Congress." He pointed out that no committee or public hearings were conducted on the amendment and that the general public hearings were conducted on the amendment and that the general public is inclined to believe any legislation dealing with campaign costs is a good measure.

Muskie Enters Race Jan. 4

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund Muskie will go on national television Jan. 4 to announce he is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

CBS has reported Muskie booked 10 minutes of air time from 8:20 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. EST Jan. 4. Aides of the Maine senator said Muskie would use the time to announce formally for the presidency.

On the Republican side, Rep. John M. Ashbrook of Ohio said Tuesday he was considering running against President Nixon in New Hampshire March 7 and possibly in other state primaries. Ashbrook said conservative groups which have urged him to run were concerned that Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., would draw the votes of conservatives trying to embarrass Nixon, thus "making McCloskey look a lot stronger than he is."

ASHBROOK, who said he would make a final decision by the end of next week, said he also wanted to "articulate a conservative position and point out those areas where the President has let conservatives down." Ashbrook cited Nixon's China policy and what he called a decline in U.S. defense posture.

Muskie, the Democratic candidate for the vice presidency in 1968, scheduled a news conference Wednesday to give more details on the format of the announcement. At the same time, Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., was expected to announce he was endorsing Muskie for the nomination.

College Profs Vote Against Affiliation

GIVING TOYS away is as much fun for the girls of Scout Troop 254 as playing with the toys has been when they were children. Affiliation of Harper College teachers with a state association was turned down by a narrow margin of nine votes in elections held during the past three days.

Of the 164 full-time faculty members, 79 voted against affiliation and 70 voted for it, an unofficial source said yesterday. Martin Ryan, faculty senate president, could not be reached for comment.

Since the college opened four years ago, the teachers have remained independent of all state teachers' associations.

Ryan said earlier the senate decided to consider affiliation this year because of its dissatisfaction with spring salary negotiations.

"It was not a question of money but the manner in which the negotiations were held," he said. "The negotiations were broken off unilaterally by the college board of trustees. That is not negotiations as I understand it."

"Teachers are often open to capricious and unjust actions on the part of school boards," he said. "The board can change policy anytime it wants. Affiliation with a state association would formalize our relations with the board and make all parties accountable."

If a majority of teachers had supported Ryan's view, another election would have been held at the college to determine which association teachers would affiliate. Representatives from both the Illinois Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers have solicited the Harper teachers' membership.

When asked their reaction to the election results, Harper administrators said, "it is their affair."

Pollution Control Board To Rule On Tree Burning Area

The Illinois Pollution Control Board will decide the fate of open burning at the Cook County Forest Preserve District tree burning area near Wheeling within the next few weeks.

The village of Wheeling, Wheeling-area residents, and antipollution enthusiasts have opposed a request by the forest preserve district to allow open burning at the site in addition to using the site for disposing of dead and diseased trees in an air curtain destructor, a machine designed to cut pollution from tree burning.

Among those favoring the variance for open burning are the village of Mount Prospect, and arborists who need the site to dispose of dead and diseased trees.

The variance asks for permission to allow open burning at the site to resume immediately and to continue until July 1, 1972.

At first the open burning would be the only method of disposing of trees at the site. Once the air curtain destructor, which is now being installed at the site, is operational it would also be used.

But, according to James Tyndal, assistant general superintendent of the forest preserve district, the variance would allow the district to burn openly until July, all trees in excess of what one air curtain destructor could consume.

As of that date all burning at the site would be in air curtain destructors. Tyndal said the county needs the additional time for open burning to determine how many destructors will be needed for the site.

THE ISSUE over the burning site began when the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) closed the burning area in September under a new state law on environmental control.

Since that time the county has received a burning permit which will allow burning in the destructor once it is installed, Tyndal said.

He explained that the first destructor should be installed by the end of December if the weather is good. The machine will then have to be inspected by the EPA before the burning permit for the destructor goes into effect, Tyndal said.

But whether open burning will also be allowed at the site until next summer is for the pollution control board to decide.

A public hearing on the variance for that open burning was held last Friday at the Northbrook Village Hall. EPA officials said they would make a decision by Jan. 4.

At the hearing arborists and the forest preserve district favored open burning, while the village of Wheeling, the Northbrook environmental quality commission, and individual residents opposed it.

Wheeling administrative assistant Roger Stricker said at the hearing that the village filed an objection to burning at the site in November.

"ALTHOUGH THIS site is not within the limits of the village of Wheeling it is close enough that the smoke and ashes from this burning directly affects the citizens of Wheeling," Stricker said at the hearing.

"The village of Wheeling would again like to go on record that we have had many complaints from our citizens in regard to burning that had gone on previously in this area and we are, therefore, strongly opposed to the issuance of this variance," Stricker said.

The village of Mount Prospect, on the other hand, passed a resolution endorsing the burning area for enabling municipalities to successfully battle Dutch elm disease and urged that the variance be granted.

In his letter requesting the variance from the EPA forest preserve district superintendent Arthur Janura pointed out that installation of the one 25-foot air curtain destructor at the site is costing the county in excess of $50,000.

In defense of the variance request Janura noted that, "Lack of funds and land area to install air curtain destructors leaves the local municipalities without a practical method of disposing of the wood wastes generated in their villages, primarily as a result of the Dutch elm disease."

He pointed out that the need for the site to remain open affects the City of Chicago, the Chicago Park District, 36 other municipalities, more than 50 private arborists and the forest preserve district itself.

It's Politicking Time Again-Percy Hits The Trail

by BOB LAHEY
It is the first day of the rest of Sen. Charles H. Percy's political life. It starts at dawn and it goes far into the night, the opening sortie in a political campaign that will end 11 months hence, either with another six-year pass to the U.S. Senate or political oblivion.

The line has been drawn. U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski of Chicago has emerged as the Democratic champion to unseat the Republican incumbent.

And Sen. Percy — still a freshman, but the state's senior senator now — has come home to get in the first blow, to traverse the state commanding the attention of the local TV and press outlets, taking the edge off Pucinski's debut in statewide politicking.

It is a grueling day. By chartered plane from Chicago to Rockford for breakfast; back to Chicago for the big press conference of the day: south to Springfield; on Downstate to Belleville; up the course of the Illinois River and into Moline; back to Chicago and a late dinner with a fellow named Marshall Field.

IT IS THE FIRST day of The Campaign. And it will contain all the frustrations, the repetitions, the dulling fatigue, the cardboard sandwiches — and the giddy incidents, too — that make up that American institution.

It is the first day out, and the campaign machinery is rusty. The greeting party fails to arrive at the Rockford airport, and the senior U.S. Senator of the great state of Illinois bums a ride with a Pinkerton guard just going off duty.

Things are better at the Faust Hotel, where about 125 faithful Republicans have come before breakfast to let the senator know the troops are still there.

The prepared speech of the day is unveiled in Rockford. It will be added to, trimmed, improved throughout the day, and by nightfall, Percy will be ad-libbing it. But it will remain basically the same throughout the long day.

"I come before you today, as I did six years ago this month, to announce my candidacy for the U.S. Senate."

PERCY PRAISES the decency, the courage and conviction of the man he defeated in 1965 and calls upon Roman Pucinski to play fair in the coming campaign, as Paul Douglas always did.

He will run on his record, he declares, and he invites his close scrutiny of that record by his Democratic opponent.

His record, he knows, is not universally accepted by the members of his party.

"But I have confidence that I have faithfully represented the aspirations of the people of Illinois, while staying true to my own conscience." It is his declaration that rumors of desertion by the conservative wing of the party are unfounded. The Republicans recognize this and applaud him for it.

At a press conference following the speech, he is asked about India and Pakistan. Percy takes a firm stand demanding that the U.S. keep itself out of their war.

That issue will be added to the speech and will become the theme of the day, and possibly a major theme of the whole campaign: get out of Vietnam and stay out of India and Pakistan.

"Let Red China, if it wishes, get involved. Let Soviet Russia, if it wishes, get involved. But in no way should the United States get involved in this conflict." The statement will draw warm applause in Chicago and Belleville, his biggest crowds of the day: it will engender little enthusiasm from smaller crowds of political pros in Springfield and Moline.

NOW HE SHAKES hands around the room, edging toward the door, keeping to the schedule.

The schedule intact until his motor caravan reaches an open drawbridge over the Chicago River. The schedule slips, but it gives him a joke to open the speech in the jammed Grand Ballroom of the Chicago-Sheraton Hotel.

"I don't know who arranged for the bridge to go up," he says, and 500 Republicans picture Mayor Richard J. Daley in the control booth, his hand on the lever, blocking the path of their candidate, and they chuckle with him.

The Chicago meeting is a good one. Dozens of hands shaken, old friendships rekindled momentarily, new faces greeted. But the schedule is badly bent. The senator is an hour behind when he reaches Meigs Field. The party boards a vintage DC-3. The aircraft bears the legend, Basler Airlines, and the pilot is Warren T. Basler. (Welcome aboard TWA Flight 1, ladies and gentlemen. This is your pilot, Howard Hughes.)

ABOARD THE PLANE, Percy allows himself time for coffee and a sweet roll, and then he begins a round of visits with the reporters, individually and in small groups.

This is the time to expand on his press conference answers, to give small confidences, to call on aides for the exact figures. Since "The Making of the President..." if a candidate rests in his private compartment, somebody writes a book about him and says he was "aloof."

He said in Chicago that the cost of his campaign will probably be at least 34 per cent higher than in 1966, simply because of inflation, but he mentioned no figure. Now, he tells the traveling press, he spent $1.19 million the first time around. "So if it's the same kind of campaign, it will be... what? ... a million six? ... I hope not. That's outrageous."

About support by conservatives, "The President himself committed himself to a Percy campaign long before my announcement. I've never known him to do that for anyone."

Republicans don't always see eye-to-eye, he declares, "but I believe the people of this state are big enough to overlook some honest differences of opinion."

ON THE NEUTRALITY theme: "Some attempts have been made to cast blame on one side or the other. But it is very difficult for us to sort out who is to blame, whether India or Pakistan is the aggressor. So I believe we must maintain strict neutrality."

The plane dips through heavy cloud cover, over black plowed fields, into the Springfield airport. "That's the greatest soil in the world, out there," declares Percy. "If they had that all over the world, there'd be no poverty."

An hour late at the St. Nicholas Hotel, Percy is told by one of the organizers that at least a hundred more people had been there earlier. But a Springfield reporter who has been there since morning says they came and went without his noticing them.

A short speech a few reporters' questions, a gulped ham sandwich and the candidate goes back to his police-escorted limousine, off to the airport.

Flying south toward Belleville, before it is obscured by the cloud blanket, the "world's greatest soil" is seen to be interlaced with the red clay which signals the beginning of Illinois' poverty belt.

THE CROWD AT Belleville is bigger — more than 200 — and enthusiastic. It, for the first time, is dotted with black faces, and Percy adds to the speech praise for Sen. Ed Brooke of Massachusetts. "He was overwhelmingly elected in a state with only 3 per cent black vote."

"That shows that we are ready to elect a candidate regardless of race, creed, color or sex." The statement is warmly applauded by blacks and whites, Southern Illinois whites.

Beware Of 'Phone Bill Backlash'

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman Robert Dole issued a statement the other day in which he chided the Democratic National Committee for failing to pay a $1.5 million telephone bill now three years overdue. Dole is free to proceed at his own risk, of course, but if I were a GOP strategist I would tread lightly on this matter.

Otherwise, the Republicans may find themselves contributing to the development of a "phone bill backlash." Next year's political campaign, which actually began last year, apparently is going to be rife with backlashes. Already there is talk of a "busing backlash" and a "farm belt backlash" among other antagonistic reactions. Although some of these backlashes may turn out to be boomerangs instead, it is clear the climate is right for a "phone bill backlash" to blossom, if you can picture that.

ANY VOTER WHO has a telephone in his own home can easily understand how the Democrats happened to run up a $1.5 million phone bill at their 1968 convention. A couple of calls to my long-winded cousin in Wichita Falls would have done it, but since she always votes a straight Mugwump ticket, I doubt any Democrats would have been calling her. A more likely explanation is that Larry O'Brien, the Democratic national chairman, forgot to change his watch from the Eastern to the Central Time zone when he arrived in Chicago. So when he called his Washington office at 4:15 p.m. to order a fresh supply of paperclips for the convention, the phone company charged him at the 3:15 p.m. rate. At any rate, if O'Brien is a typical telephone subscriber, he probably was expecting a bill for a few thousand dollars when he opened his monthly statement and found $1.5 million in charges. WHILE THERE'S no gain in saying a phone bill is a legitimate debt, many voters may feel, as I have often felt, that they are victims of entrapment. In those commercials pointing out what a bargain it is to ring up your cousin in Wichita Falls, the phone company always cites the minimum rate, neglecting to mention that nobody has ever made a long distance call at the minimum rate. At least not in this century. That is why I'm advising Dole to go easy in twitting the Democrats about their overdue bill. Chances are the Democrats have a big bloc of sympathy votes already.

Q. SINCE I will be 62 later this year, I plan to apply for reduced monthly Social Security retirement benefits a couple of months before my birthday. I understand that I can earn up to $1,680 a year without losing any benefits. From what date do I begin counting the $1,680 — from the date I apply for benefits or the date I become 62?

A. Neighbor! Start counting from the first of the year toward the $1,680, even though you apply for benefits and become 62 later that year. However, regardless of your total earnings for the year, benefits are paid for any month in which you do not earn over $140.

Q. I RECENTLY took a part-time job for the holidays after 12 years of home-making. I know my Social Security number, but I have misplaced my card. My employer insists on seeing my card. What must I do to get another one?

A. Ask for a duplicate card at any Social Security office.

Q. MY 71-YEAR-OLD husband died recently. Social Security sent me a check for $234. Isn't the lump-sum death benefit payment always $265?

A. No, the amount of the lump-sum death payment under Social Security can vary from $211.20 to $255, depending on the worker's average earnings under Social Security. The amount of the payment is three times the monthly benefit at 65, but never exceeds $255.

Veterans' News

Q — WHAT IS the largest loan the Veterans Administration will guarantee for a mobile home?

A — For purchase of a mobile home only, $10,000 to be repaid over 12 years and 32 days.

Q — I A World War II veteran who filed for VA pension and was told to submit a medical report of my disabilities. I don't have a doctor, and can't afford to pay for a physical examination. What should I do?

A — Notify the VA office handling your claim of your circumstances. Describe your disabilities as best you can, making it clear that you are unable to pay for an examination. It may be possible to arrange for a VA clinic to examine you for your pension claim.

Q — IS IT true that pensioners over 72 years old no longer have to file annual income questionnaires with VA?

A — Yes. A recent law exempts 72 year old and older pensioners and dependent parents drawing dependency and indemnity compensation during two consecutive years from filing these questionnaires. However, they still must report changes in income.

Q — WILL THE recent Social Security increase affect VA pension and dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) payments to dependent parents?

A — For those on VA rolls on the date of approval of the Social Security increases, pension or DIC will not be reduced or discontinued, where required, until Jan. 1, 1972.

Q — I AM A Vietnam veteran interested in training under the G. I. Bill, but am not sure what courses to take. Can VA assist me?

A — Yes. Eligible veterans may receive vocational counseling from VA at no cost to help them derive greater benefits from their training. Application should be made to the VA office nearest the veteran's home.

Q — IN 1948, I purchased an automobile with special adaptive equipment with a grant for disabled veterans from the Veterans Administration. I now plan to buy a new car. Will VA pay for the adaptive equipment?

A — Yes. You should apply for this equipment on VA Form 10-1394. VA will provide an eligible veteran with adaptive equipment necessary for the safe operation of his automobile or other conveyance, so as to comply with the standards of licensure of his state.

THE BIGGEST ORNAMENT of all rests on this outdoor Christmas tree. As captured in the lenses of Herald, just like a child's dream.

Choose Toys Carefully

In spite of federal regulations, proposed local legislation, and industry self-regulation, providing safe toys for their children this year will depend primarily on the wisdom and judgment of parents, the National Safety Council says.

What can a parent do to see that his child's toys will be safe? First, he can select toys that fit the child's age and ability. Gerald Cole, the National Safety Council's child safety consultant, says "You can't always depend on the manufacturer's age guidelines. If the advertising reads 'seven to 12 years,' the device will probably not appeal to the sophisticated 12-year old but on the other hand, may be used by children under seven. The toy industry has been working on labeling this last year, but a parent should still evaluate a toy on the basis of his child's interests and ability. Parents should be careful not to fall into the trap of buying toys they like rather than toys appropriate to the child."

To help adults pick toys which are suitable for a child's age level, Cole offers the following guidelines:

- Babies up to one year of age like to feel, chew, hold, drop and look at things. Buy brightly colored toys to hang where the baby can see them, or toys that squeak or rattle. But be sure that the toys are too large to be swallowed and that they have no small attachments that might come loose.

- Toddlers from one to two years of age love to investigate the world. Choose playthings that they can take apart and put back together, or move from one place to another.

- BETWEEN TWO and three years of age children love to experiment. They like to build things with blocks, turn the pages of books, dabble with finger paints. But they still may try to swallow small objects, so be careful about the size of the toy.

- At three or four years of age, the child often tries to imitate adults. Good "let's pretend" gifts include small brooms and carpet sweepers, toy telephones, dolls, miniature tools, trucks and tractors, and suitcases to pack and unpack.

- Little people start to be more creative in their play around ages four to six. They enjoy paints and paint books, dolls that have clothes or a doll house and furniture, small sports equipment, simple construction sets and even costumes for dramatic play.

- By age six children like to test their manipulative ability. Select play equipment that will help to develop the child's skills, but be sure the toys are not too complicated. Simple games and puzzles, construction sets, or a sled will all make good Christmas gifts.

- The interests of children eight years and older vary a good deal according to the child. By this time a child usually has some definite likes and dislikes, so select a toy with the child specifically in mind. Remember that a background of safe play habits will serve the child well.

AFTER SELECTING toys for your child's age and interest, carefully inspect them for cutting, piercing and other hazards, keeping in mind that the device is likely to be abused in use. Look for non-toxic labels on children's art supplies and painted toys. A child is impulsive and likely to put anything into its mouth.

Federal Agency OKs Housing Site

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has approved a Des Plaines site for senior citizen housing, the first step towards release of several million dollars in federal funds for construction of a multi-story apartment building.

Victor Walchirk, director of the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA) which has contracted with the city to create low-rent elderly housing, said Tuesday he is enthusiastic and hoping for swift development of building plans, land acquisition and federal fund approval in 1972.

The proposed site, near downtown at the southeast corner of Lee Street and Ashland Avenue, was selected Nov. 21 by city officials who said they feel it qualified under federal site guidelines.

Those rules require a site to be near transportation, shopping, churches and medical facilities. The cost of land acquisition cannot exceed $1,000 per planned apartment unit, or $128,000 if the proposed 128-unit building is constructed, as has been suggested.

Federal appraisers and Raymond Cox, of the regional HUD office, visited the proposed site several weeks ago with Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel.

Walchirk said development plans, including architectural drawings, will be submitted within 90 days to HUD for tentative approval. HUD and the CCHA will work on final plans for six to nine months before a decision is made on federal funding, he said.

The CCHA, which was loaned $50,000 in March by HUD to develop plans and cost estimates, would then be authorized to sell bonds to raise construction funds, with the federal government supplying funds to pay back the bonds over a 40-year period, Walchirk said.

He could not estimate when construction could begin, saying it will depend on whether the land at Lee and Ashland has to be condemned or can be purchased through negotiation.

The proposed site is now occupied by several residences, a gasoline station and the Borkenhagen Refrigeration building. The land would have to be purchased from several owners, including the Mandas family, before the buildings could be torn down, Mayor Behrel has said.

Behrel has indicated that the proposed apartment building would be nine stories with 128 units, similar to an apartment building proposed earlier this year by the CCHA for a 1.9-acre park site, across from Central School, 1526 Thacker St., which the city was unable to purchase.

Claim Mourning Periods Are Unwisely Curtailed

(This is a weekly column presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital, known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

A mourner needs all the support he can get from his family and friends, but according to a psychiatrist who studies pathological mourners, mourning periods are unwisely being curtailed in this country.

"Things are changing in this country," said Dr. Vamik Volkan, psychiatrist at the University of Virginia Medical Center. "They're becoming very quick. Visitation to funeral homes are not allowed, cremations are done almost immediately after death and religious ceremonies are deleted. Yet the mourner needs all the help he can get from society. That's why religions, with their built-in attitudes help the mourner go through the grieving process, are so important."

According to Dr. Volkan there is a normal grieving process. "The reaction to a death does depend a great deal on how the death occurs," he explained. "If it's an accidental death the mourner will feel shock, numbness. This may last a day or two. Then the person may get angry asking 'how dare you die and leave me alone.' Then slowly the anger disappears and so does the shock and you remember the dead person as he was during his life. Any normal death reaction can last up to six months or so."

There are some people, most of whom are extremely dependent on the one that died, who turn into pathological mourners. That is — they retain a strong emotional link to the deceased and they act as if that person were still alive.

"A PATHOLOGICAL reaction," Dr. Volkan said, "lasts anywhere from a year or two years to, in some cases, as many as 14 years. The normal process freezes and temporary anger turns into long-lasting anger at the death or the mourner may cry or become very emotional when the dead person is mentioned."

How does Dr. Volkan, who has been studying pathological mourners since 1966, treat these people? "First they come in and talk about themselves and the dead person. We try to help them separate themselves from the deceased because one way to keep a dead person alive is to identify with him — to behave like him. We help them find where they end and where the dead person starts."

"Then we try to understand why the person couldn't grieve normally. Were they too dependent on the dead person? Were they very angry with him and do they want to close off that anger? Then we go over the news of the death: how it came, what they did and what happened during the funeral. If the death was sudden they probably erected certain defenses and they're given a chance to put down their defenses and to accept the death."

Dr. Volkan's studies have shown that every pathological mourner keeps an object like a tie or watch from the dead person. "This linking object is often the key to treating the person. He is made to acknowledge this object which induces an eerie or weird feeling in him and through this recognition he can be brought out of his usual mourning period."

Oakton Handled Issue Poorly

Oakton Community College and the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese have locked horns in a dispute over purchase of a permanent site for the college, a dispute that might have been avoided if Oakton officials had handled the matter properly.

The school, a public junior college serving Maine and Niles townships, last month announced it had chosen 105 acres of the Maryhill Cemetery property in Niles for its permanent campus.

The announcement, which came almost two years after the college board of trustees began a search for a campus site, brought an immediate negative reaction from Archdiocese officials, who said the vacant land is needed for cemetery expansion and cannot be sold.

The Archdiocese said it first learned of the school's decision from newspaper stories. Accused school officials of distorting the facts and said it had not even discussed the purchase with Oakton for almost two years.

College officials replied by saying they had carefully considered a total of 23 sites in the two townships. The school said two alternate properties offered by the Archdiocese are not centrally located and therefore were unacceptable and added that it will go ahead with condemnation procedures if needed.

The controversy then degenerated into a battle of press releases, with the Archdiocese attacking the college in newspaper ads and Oakton charging that the ads were designed to influence voters against supporting an eventual referendum that would provide one fourth of the funds for the campus and buildings.

To their dismay, the school officials have learned they are taking on a powerful and determined adversary. The Illinois Junior College Board, which had approved selection of the site and will provide three-fourths of the land and building costs, has agreed to hear protests from the Archdiocese at a meeting tomorrow.

We feel the college's board of trustees is suffering the consequences of the poor manner in which it handled relations with the Archdiocese since the school first inquired about buying the Maryhill site almost two years ago.

When Oakton first looked at the site, it was informed right away by John Cardinal Cody that the Archdiocese was opposed to the purchase.

In a letter to Oakton President William Koehnline, Cardinal Cody said the now-vacant site was scheduled to replace the nearly filled St. Adalbert's Cemetery on the Niles-Chicago border. Cardinal Cody said the Archdiocese would resist any attempts to buy the land.

Two larger Catholic-owned sites in the northwest corner of Maine Township were offered to the school, but Koehnline, in a letter replying to Cardinal Cody, said the Maryhill land was perfect because of its central location and accessibility.

Since the exchange of letters almost two years ago, there has been no further communication between Oakton and the Archdiocese, according to John Philbin, executive director of Catholic Cemeteries. According to Philbin, the college still has neglected to discuss or even notify the Archdiocese of its plans.

Cardinal Cody's letter nearly two years ago should have been enough to warn Oakton officials of the trouble they would encounter if they went ahead on the site. Instead of handling the matter with care, the college decided no further communication was necessary and is suffering the consequences.

In the end, the Maryhill site may turn out to be the best one for Oakton, which has been renting classroom space in Morton Grove since it opened in 1970. But the cost will be high, both in dollars and community good will.

School 'Smorgasbord'

"The biggest educational smorgasbord in America" is getting underway in Berkeley, Calif., reports Education U.S.A.

With the help of a $3.6-million grant from the U.S. Office of Education, Berkeley schools will conduct a 2½-year experiment in offering 24 different educational "alternatives." By the time the program is in full swing next fall, about 5,000 of the city's 15,000 students "will be able to choose from an almost bewildering assortment of school options," says the publication.

If a student wants to attend a small, all-black school, for instance, he can go to Black House. If he wants a Chicano-oriented school, he can go to Casa de la Raza. If he prefers a multicultural approach, he can go to Franklin Multicultural. Or he may want to join On Target, a cooperative program between industry and school.

Other ideas to be tested include a school with student direction, a parent cooperative school, a neighborhood open school, a school-without-walls, a child development center, an off-campus school, bilingual classrooms, learning centers and "free" schools, whatever they are.

One school will explore three alternatives at each grade level, and students will be allowed to change from one type of school option to another any time they choose.

As for any students who don't want a black or white or Chicano or open or student-directed or "free" school, or maybe don't know what they want, or maybe are just looking for a basic, simple, nourishing educational diet instead of a "smorgasbord" — well, possibly a place can be found for them somewhere in the system.

McGovern Must Add Vote Support

by BRUCE BLOSSAT

Some 11 months into his presidential effort, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota is counting on an early 1972 campaign strategy that he himself believes to be terribly fragile. If it does not work from the outset, he sees little hope.

The strategy calls, of course, for a series of quick, small gains — not real victories — in the three opening primaries next March in New Hampshire, Florida and Illinois. Then, with those as stepping stones, a genuine triumph April 4 in Wisconsin.

What this means specifically is this: —Doing well enough in New Hampshire against the favored neighbor from Maine, Sen. Edmund Muskie, to prevent him from scoring a one-sided smash. —In Florida a week later, probably targeting just a few congressional districts (Miami, Tallahassee-Gainesville) and picking off the delegates in those. —In following Illinois, restricting the quest to a cluster of evidently promising downstate districts which he thinks might yield him 25 to 40 of the state's 170 delegates to the national convention.

McGovern believes that if he goes forward with this stepping-stone plan, the March 7, New Hampshire test will be crucial. He feels that failures to put a sizable dent in Muskie there would mean the swift demise of his own candidacy.

To a somewhat lesser extent, as he sees it, he would also be hurt by not attaining his modest goals in Florida and Illinois.

His thinking, plainly, is that to fall short of such limited objectives would be to undermine his more ambitious effort in Wisconsin.

Even if he puts the small, early gains on the scoreboard, it will be all over for him if he loses traditionally important Wisconsin. Cumulative successes for Muskie would thereafter build to avalanche proportions.

Interviews with McGovern always demonstrate his hard-headed candor. He doesn't question that Muskie is presently far ahead of him in the race for the Democratic nomination. He thinks his rival's image is too solidly and favorably fixed with the voters to be shattered by some verbal gaffe, as happened to Republican George Romney in 1967.

In McGovern's judgment, Muskie can be undone only in the voting booth. The primaries will tell his story.

With only one month left before the campaign enters its intensive phase, McGovern is deeply puzzled over his continuing low status (5 or 6 per cent) in the national pool ratings.

On his newest swing through Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota, he attracted excellent and often very enthusiastic turnouts of students (naturally), businessmen, some groups. His performances are classy and professional.

Trouble is, and no one knows it better than he, the act doesn't build. He seems mostly to be tightening his grip on people who are already with him. His voter horizon is not widening.

And, for a very particular reason, the enlarging prospect of an early candidacy by Sen. Hubert Humphrey brings him no joy. Humphrey is thought to have an unbroken hold on Democratic voters in several areas of Wisconsin — dating back to his 1960 bid against John F. Kennedy. He could cloud the outlook there for both McGovern and Muskie.

December is vital warm-up time for McGovern. If there is any path to broader voter pastures for him, he has to find it quickly.

Con-Con Delegate Hits Judge Plan

Much has been written lately urging Governor Ogilvie to veto legislation which sets forth the procedure for the partisan election of judges. This advice is obviously well motivated and aimed at taking judges out of politics. It is further suggested that this can be accomplished by anticipated legislation, not yet passed by the General Assembly, which would call for non-partisan election of judges, probably at special elections.

Knowing that the fight for merit selection of judges has been carried on for more than 40 years, it seems to me that the substitution of non-partisan election of judges for merit selection is short sighted and effectively removes any possibility of merit selection.

So that there is no question concerning the motivation of this writer, an examination of my record as a Delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention will indicate my complete support for the merit selection of judges. Furthermore, I was given the responsibility by the Cook County Republican Party of handling the merit selection of judges issue, known as the 2B campaign, at the Constitutional Referendum of 1970.

As you know, the voters of Cook County, which make up more than 50 per cent of the State, voted in favor of the merit selection of judges by more than 60 thousand votes. The proposition failed downstate. Furthermore, besides being active politically, I have served on County and Judicial State Making Committees and am presently Chairman of the Cook County Republican County and Judicial State Making Committees for 1972. I know where judicial candidates come from, what it costs to run for public office, and have been practicing in the courts for 17 years.

Simply stated, my position is that approval by the Governor of the partisan election of judges is not inconsistent with the long-range goal of merit selection, because the substitution of non-partisan election of judges will delude the public into believing that non-partisan election of judges is similar to merit selection, when in reality, it is not. This would eliminate the continued public pressure required to finally achieve merit selection. The proponents of non-partisan election of judges should ask themselves what would be the results of such non-partisan elections. The answer is found in the Chicago Aldermanic and the recent Con-Con elections, both of which are non-partisan types of elections. The major political parties exercised strong control.

County-wide non-partisan election of judges in Cook County would be so costly without party support that only a few persons could afford to be candidates. Campaigning in a ward or a legislative district, as is done in Aldermanic and in the Con-Con elections, is reasonable. However, to have a non-partisan candidate campaign in Cook County among 5½ million people is not realistic. Few people are aware of the cost of campaign literature, newspaper ads, billboards and radio . . . what more, TV.

The problem of non-recognition of candidates, which is one of the main concerns of the proponents of merit selection is not solved by non-partisan candidates. Persons who are already well known will continue to be elected. This means that politicians, leaders of ethnic and fraternal organizations and prominent civic leaders with good relations facilities will continue to be elected with the help of newspaper endorsements, because the newspapers already know and are familiar with such people. The sole practitioner and the attorneys from the small law firms who do not circulate in the groups above mentioned would be all but eliminated from the judiciary in spite of their fine qualifications. It seems to me that the same persons will continue to be candidates and be supported by the same organizations that support candidates at the present time . . . and with the same results.

If the Governor vetoes the partisan election of judges bill, then we are told that it will be hopefully replaced by a non-partisan election of judges bill. However, there is no guarantee that the General Assembly will pass a non-partisan election of judges bill this year, or even in the next few years. Meanwhile, the entire Judicial Branch of Government in all 102 counties in this State would be politically affected, because judicial vacancies, in the absence of any legislation, would be filled by appointment by the State Supreme Court. It seems reasonable to assume that the State Supreme Court, which has a Democratic majority, would heavily favor Democratic appointees. This would not be fair, regardless of whether the court had a Democratic or Republican majority, especially downstate which is composed of the other 101 counties and the other 5½ million people in this State, and where the citizens take great pride in knowing and electing their local judges.

In conclusion, I would like to suggest that the proponents of non-partisan judicial elections, who are the same people who have been actively campaigning for merit selection for the last two generations, take a second look at their proposal for non-partisan election of judges, because such a short-sighted goal might lead to the demise of their long-range goal for merit selection. Besides costing millions of dollars more in election expenses, would it be a step forward in improving the quality of judicial candidates? I doubt it.

'Unforgettable' U.S. Meal

I extend my sincere thanks for the marvelous co-operation I received from the whole Northwest community when I asked for families to share their Thanksgiving dinner with a group of architects from Holland.

The response was so overwhelming that I was able to send 76 people to be guests in homes in this area. The response was greater than the supply and placed me in the unhappy position of having to disappoint many of the people who offered homes.

The wholehearted cooperation that I had from the Paddock newspaper personnel and the many other news media, of radio station WEXI and the many ministers of the churches of this area, plus the enthusiastic help of Mrs. Jackie Landry of Harper College and Mayor Teichert of Mount Prospect, all added up to the success of the venture.

As a result this large group of visitors from Holland, who until then had seen only the cold commercial hospitality of the hotels, restaurants and airlines, were able to experience the warm welcome of the average American home where they found a hand stretched out in friendship and love with no thought of recompense.

These people returned to their homeland with the treasured memory of an unforgettable Thanksgiving Day in our country, while the lives of the host families were enriched by new friends and by sharing our great tradition with our guests. Many ties were forged that will keep the hands of friendship stretched across the ocean in both directions for years to come.

The overwhelming response of the many open-hearted residents of the Northwest suburbs is a reflection of the true values and concern of the people and make me proud to be a part of the community, and grateful to all who contributed to the success of the project.

Business Today

by MARGUERITE DAVIS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1971 yearbook of agriculture hasn't been officially announced yet. But an advance peek from department officials indicates the 1971 subject of the volume — which usually becomes a bestseller among government publications — will be how to give millions of Americans a better life in rural areas instead of crowded cities.

The yearbook, to be titled "A Good Life for More People," will include in its 416 pages suggestions on how to provide jobs, housing, services and recreation in rural or small-town America where there is plenty of breathing room for homes and new industries.

THE RURAL DEVELOPMENT theme of the book grows out of the conclusion by social scientists that many cities have grown too big to be liveable, and that much of this overcrowding is due to farm-to-city migration.

"Yet many million more Americans may be on the scene by the year 2000," an advance report on the yearbook said. "Where will these people live, work and play? Even more important — what can be done to improve the overall quality of life?"

Agriculture Department experts who drafted the book believe, according to the advance word on the volume, that if population is redistributed during the next 30 years, pressures on cities can be relieved and declining small towns can be rejuvenated. The experts acknowledge the problem is complex, but their outlook is hopeful, the report said.

Earnings Rise For Northwest Industries

Net earnings of Northwest Industries, Inc., in the third quarter of 1971 increased to $15,070,000, or $1.28 per outstanding common share after provision for preferred dividends. This compares with $11,184,000 or 82 cents a share in the third quarter of 1970.

Assuming dilution, third quarter per share earnings were 75 cents compared with 59 cents in the year-earlier period.

Through the nine months, net earnings rose to $36,223,000, or $2.72 an outstanding common share after provision for preferred dividends, from $27,553,000, or $1.64 a share in the nine months of 1970. Assuming dilution, nine months earnings per share equalled $1.82 compared with $1.46 in the like year-earlier period.

Third quarter net sales increased to $163,500,000 from $128,400,000 in the 1970 third quarter and through the nine months totaled $422,300,000, up from $338,800,000 a year earlier.

Net earnings of all product groups during the third quarter and through the nine months were ahead of year-earlier levels. Transportation operations (Chicago & North Western Railway) were profitable in both the third quarter and the nine months.

Wall Street Chatter

SPEAR AND STAFF says the recent market rise could be the beginning of the next extended market advance. If the current recovery is not too swift and security prices begin to move in line with the tempo of gradual improvement of economic conditions, the advance should carry the Dow very much higher, according to the firm.

NEGATIVE NEWS has been in the driver's seat for a while, according to Argus Research Corp., but "appearances can be deceiving." The firm says recent events in Washington and in the international area will in the end prove to have bullish, rather than bearish, implications for the economy and the stock market.

AFTER A STEEP decline and, in an oversold market, the first rally usually takes most issues along with it just as most issues were caught in the vortex of the preceding decline, E. F. Hutton & Co. says. The next market leaders have not yet revealed themselves, the firm says, but they should become more apparent when the rally runs its initial course and the market consolidates some of its gains.

Boom In Radial Tire Sales Seen

Sales of radial tires for passenger cars will grow faster over the next four years than any other type of passenger tires, expanding about 30 per cent a year, an officer of B. F. Goodrich Tire Co. forecast recently.

Patrick C. Ross, executive vice president-marketing, said the strong trend toward radials will result in 30 million radials being shipped in 1975, representing 18 per cent of the U.S. replacement tire market. In 1971, radial tire shipments will total 8 million, or about 6 per cent of the market.

He attributed the rapidly growing popularity of radials to their "superiority in strength, tread mileage, handling, cool running and high-speed performance" over bias-ply and bias-belted tires.

Ross, who was in Chicago at a recent meeting of nearly 200 BFG tire sales executives, said his company expects that radials will come as original equipment on two out of three new American cars in 1976, compared with only a small percentage today.

THE FORECAST that Cook County motorists will buy 3.1 million replacement tires for passenger cars in 1972, a 2 per cent increase from the 1971 projected total. About 2.1 million registered cars will be operated in the county next year, he added.

Ross expects the domestic tire industry to ship a record 140 million replacement passenger tires in 1972 and 50 million original equipment passenger tires. There will be 67 million cars two years old and older — the major market for replacement tires — in operation in the U.S. next year, he estimated.

Illinois is a key market for replacement passenger tires, according to Ross. He estimated that 7.2 million of these tires will be sold in the state in 1972, about 3 per cent higher than in 1971. There will be about 4.8 million registered cars in operation next year in Illinois, ranking it 5th in the nation in this category, he said.

B. F. Goodrich recently unveiled its new Lifesaver Radial Steel R/S tire. The new tire features cushioned steel construction, a single belt of wire between two double textile belts under the tire's tread.

Off-Farm Employment Is Rising

Two out of three American farmers earn over one-half of their annual incomes from off-farm sources — employment or investments. In its monthly review, Business Conditions, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago cites the recently published 1969 Census of Agriculture to trace the rapid increase in off-farm employment of farmers.

In Michigan, 52 per cent of the farmers held nonfarm jobs in 1969, compared to 42 per cent in 1959; and in Iowa, 23 per cent — up from 14 per cent in 1959. In the Seventh District states of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, and Wisconsin, the proportion of all farmers working in nonfarm jobs more than 100 days annually rose from 25 per cent in 1959 to 38 per cent in 1969.

The bank says the importance of off-farm employment is underlined by the fact that in 1970, for the first time on record, farm earnings of U. S. farmers amounted to less than their off-farm earnings: $15.9 billion from farming, $17 billion from nonfarm sources.

The strong rise in off-farm employment during the 1960s is traceable in large part to the rapid growth of the nation's nonfarm economy which provided an abundance of good-paying jobs. But even more important, says the bank, are mechanization and the technological breakthroughs that cut deeply into the time it takes to operate a farm efficiently. Under these circumstances, it's likely that farmers lacking the financial resources or local opportunity to expand their farming operations, increasingly will look off the farm for ways to fully utilize their labor.

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

In recapping the many commemorative medals programs begun within the last five years, it came as no great surprise to find there is a medallic art explosion occurring in the numismatic industry second to no other period in its history. And apparently with the endless supply of early and contemporary Americana, any well-planned, well-executed subject matter geared to that market cannot fail.

What did come as a surprise was the fact that the size of a producer has absolutely nothing to do with the quality of the end product or the success or failure of a commemorative series. Some of the most attractive and highly valued pieces were struck by the small, almost obscure, private mint.

A good example of this is the Tombstone Commemorative Series issued by the Tombstone Commemorative Committee and struck by the Lombardo Mint of Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada.

TOMBSTONE, Ariz., "the town too tough to die," is a registered U.S. National Monument of no small historic importance. It is reflected on almost every page of American history and while it offered little in the way of industrial opportunity, it does have the distinction of being either the beginning or the end for many exciting chapters in western development.

As a prelude to the celebration of its 100th anniversary, the commemorative committee decided to issue one medal a year for 10 years as a countdown to the gala event in 1978. Each year the issue was to consist of no more than 5,000 pieces in nickel-silver plate; 1,000 pieces in .999 fine silver but only 100 sets containing one numbered proof piece in silver and one numbered proof piece in nickel-silver.

The first medal struck (illustrated) depicts a sour-dough with his pack mule heading off into the hills in search of fortune. Arched above is the name, Tombstone, Arizona, with "90th Year" in an exergue below. A tombstone inscribed with the founding date 1878 and "Tombstone Commemorative 90th Year," occupies the reverse along with the statement that Tombstone is a registered U.S. Monument.

Today the silver specimen is valued at well over $175 per copy and it is doubtful whether or not one could be acquired at that price. I know of one nonproof copy owner who would refuse such an offer.

A SECOND MEDAL was issued in 1969, another in 1970 and the fourth is just being released for 1971. According to the chairman of the Tombstone Commemorative Committee, each of the earlier issues have climbed steadily in value since the first issue in 1968.

The latest release marks the events of the famous shootout at the O.K. Corral between Wyatt, Virgil and Morgan Earp, along with "Doc" Holliday and the erstwhile McLowery brothers, Tom and Frank, Ike and Billy Clanton and Billy "The Kid" Claiborn on Oct. 26, 1881.

The Tombstone, Commemorative Committee through its chairman, J. Guthrie, offers these medals on a first-come, first-served basis and readers may write him at P.O. Box 545, Tombstone, Ariz. 85638.

The "Trudeau Dinner Medal," the second hi-value commemorative discovered in our survey of the commemorative medal issues will be illustrated in an early column. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Do-It-Yourself

By now it comes as no surprise to be told the average home is a very hazardous place, that you are likelier to have an accident at home than you are away from home.

But in spite of this common knowledge, we are likely to pay more attention to hazardous road conditions and the safe working of our autos than we are about the dangerous conditions right around the house.

The conditions to be corrected are generally small and quite easy to take care of. Many of them require little more than applied common sense.

Since falling is the most common cause of injury at home, do something to prevent falls. Slippery surfaces underfoot, things that make you trip and paths not kept clear are all easily changed.

Throw rugs have a way of flying out from under you when the floor is slippery. New rugs have rubber backing on them, but that's only when they are new. Before the backing wears away, either treat the backs to prevent slipping or put the rugs on skid-proof pads.

LARGER RUGS SHOULD be fastened down. Rug edges that may be curling should be tacked in place. Repair torn spots in carpeting or replace.

Use a rubber mat in the bath tub to prevent slipping. If you can, install handrails so you have something to hang onto when you climb out of the tub.

Keep paths clear. You should be able to walk from one doorway to another without detouring around anything. That's especially important at night.

Watch where you run electric cords. In order to avoid tripping over them, some people run cords under a rug. So instead of tripping they walk over them enough to wear out the insulation and cause a fire hazard instead.

Replace cords that show any sign of fraying or cracking. Don't run cords through a doorway. The door closing against it will cause damage.

Watch out how you handle appliances. Don't probe a toaster with a metal object while it is still plugged in. Don't attempt repairs or internal adjustments on any electrical item while it is connected. Use only heavy duty extensions on large appliances.

WATCH-OUT how you store things. Files of newspapers and magazines are a fire hazard. Don't keep oily rags in the house. If you must do so, store them in closed metal containers.

Inflammable materials should be kept in well-stoppered metal containers and away from the house if possible. Whenever you have them should be a well-ventilated area or a fire could start from spontaneous combustion.

Have a locked cabinet for poisonous items, notable cleaning solutions and solvents, so that children cannot get at them. Keep medicines well out of their reach too, even those that seem harmless. Too much aspirin for a child is not harmless.

'Festival Of Llghts' Begins Sunday

THE FIRST CANDLE of Hanukkah will be lit in many Northwest suburban homes Sunday as Jewish families begin celebrating the holiday. Phil Azriel and Lisa Roth, above, reflect

by BOB ANDERSEN

Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, begins Sunday at sundown when Jewish families throughout the world light the holiday's first candle.

The significance of lighting candles across the eight-day holiday is related to an event that took place in 165 B.C. when the "Temple in Jerusalem was returned to the Jewish people from Syrian Paganism," said Rabbi Hillel Gamoran, of Beth Tikvah Congregation in Hoffman Estates.

At that time, a jar of oil burned for eight days when there was only enough oil for one day's burning, the Rabbi explained.

"The story of the miracle of the jar is one of many to explain the significance of lighting candles for eight days," he said. "It (Hanukkah) has long been a season of games, plays, gifts and special foods and gladness in the darkest season of the year."

"For the modern Jew," Rabbi Gamoran continued, "Hanukkah's meaning

transcends candle lighting, gifts for children and latkes (potato pancakes). Of central significance is the recognition that an individual's religion must be his own choice, not the choice of the government under which he lives.

"THE MACCABEES of more than 2,000 years ago recognized this principle which still eludes many governments in this world today," he claimed.

Beth Tikvah Congregation will celebrate by saying "special prayers for their less fortunate brethren around the world who are not permitted to practice their religion, nor are they permitted to go to Israel where they could live in a land of freedom," Rabbi Gamoran said.

Members of Beth Tikvah will join in the celebration by lighting their own candles, he added.

The congregation will also hold a special family service at 8 p.m. Dec. 17. Also, he said, a special carnival is planned for the children of the congregation. At the carnival the children will eat latkes, which are the traditional holiday food, he said.

Vietnam GIs Call Home For Holidays

Illinois Bell today reminded the families and friends of American servicemen in Vietnam to plan ahead for holiday telephone calls between two countries.

"If you have holiday greetings to exchange by phone with a relative or friend in Vietnam, arrange to have him place the call from there," suggested Paul Arnold, Illinois Bell's manager in Arlington Heights.

Arnold said that trying to reach a particular serviceman quickly by calling from the United States is close to impossible. Servicemen are likely to be on duty or stationed in remote areas where they're extremely difficult to locate, he explained.

To minimize these difficulties, according to Arnold, special arrangements have been made again this year to permit servicemen to call home at the times most convenient for them. The USO, the military, the Bell System and communications people in South Vietnam, Hong Kong and Guam will be working together to simplify the calling and permit the maximum number of men to talk.

Last year, more than 1,000 calls per day throughout the Christmas season were completed from Vietnam for off-duty servicemen calling home.

Many servicemen call from the USO center in downtown Saigon, but calls also can be placed from a number of hospitals and service centers at bases elsewhere in the country.

Arnold also advised the families and friends of Americans stationed in other Southeast Asian countries to make arrangements for the servicemen to originate their holiday telephone calls, since they too often are difficult to locate.

Rates on telephone calls at all hours between the United States and Vietnam are $9 for a three-minute station-to-station call and $12 for a three-minute person-to-person call. Servicemen can call collect so that the messages can be paid for at home.

Vietnam is 14 hours ahead of Central Standard Time.

North-Central Illinois NOVEMBER 1971 WEATHER

Data from second order weather station, DeKalb, Ill.

NIU Cartographic Lab: RPV

November Temperatures Reported Above Normal

Weather in north-central Illinois continues to remain remarkably steady in character, as revealed in a report on November weather released by the Weather Service at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb.

November followed the trend of past months by being exceptionally high in temperature and exceptionally low in the fall of moisture.

November averaged 38.3 degrees, which put it 1.3 degrees above normal. This slight increase above the normal average temperature tells only part of the story of how warm November was, however.

From the Nov. 14 to 17, daily maximum temperatures of 72, 66, 67, and 68 were recorded. The temperature Nov. 14 set an all-time high for that date.

Snow fell on six days for a total of 1½ inches. The precipitation, when melted, amounted to 1.80 inches, which is below the normal 2.25 inches.

So far this year, north-central Illinois is 11 inches below the normal rainfall, with only the month of February having above normal precipitation.

If the trend continues in December, 1971 will go down as one of the driest years in the history of weather record-keeping by the NIU Weather Service. The Weather Service is part of the department of geography.

Alcoholic Rehabilitation Works, Businesses Learn

President, Illinois State Medical Society

Alcoholic rehabilitation programs established by Illinois businesses pay big dividends both in human values and in dollars and cents business practice.

Recognizing this are many of the most respected business names in our state — firms such as Illinois Bell, Caterpillar Tractor, Allis Chalmers, Union Carbide and DuPont. These are just a few of the many firms which have developed programs to help employees with drinking problems.

Testifying to the worth of these programs, one rehabilitated alcoholic, a graduate of the Illinois Bell program, said:

"It's such a pleasure to go home and have my daughters crawl into my lap and make me feel like a father again."

"My on-the-job efficiency has increased so much I won a long-delayed promotion. If it hadn't been for my company's interest and understanding — combined with the threat of losing my job — I wouldn't be working today. Nor would I still have my family."

It is understandable why Illinois businesses are concerned about the problems of alcoholics. Of the half-million plus alcoholics in Illinois, approximately 70 per cent are still on the job. Untreated alcoholics cost their firms millions of dollars each year. Costs are hidden but absenteeism, accidents, inefficiency, lowered morale and idle machines all contribute to the million dollar hangover.

IN CHICAGO alone alcoholism costs business an estimated $100 million. Losses to business elsewhere in the state may be twice that. On the national scene, alcoholism costs industry about $6 billion annually.

Each untreated alcoholic costs his employer more than $1,000 per year. Yet this amount is small compared to the investment the employer has in the skills and knowledge of experienced workers. That's why Illinois firms have developed programs to help alcoholics.

Illinois Bell was a pioneer in this field. Its program, which began in 1961, has, from the very beginning, emphasized that helping an employee with a drinking problem is everyone's responsibility — everyone from top levels of company management on down. The first step was convincing everyone that "reporting" an employee with a drinking problem could lead to rehabilitation — not automatic termination.

This is important for early identification makes it easier to treat the alcoholic patient. The longer an alcoholic's problem is covered up the more difficult is the treatment.

Before referring a Bell employee to the rehabilitation program, his supervisor frankly discusses the problem. The supervisor makes it clear to the employee that his former performance will no longer be tolerated and that some effort must be made to change behavior and work patterns.

That's when the alcoholic is urged to join the rehabilitation program. Even if he declines, the company doesn't fire him. But he must make a real effort on his own to change. If the attempt fails, the employee must join the program or be fired.

HOLDING A JOB like a big stick over the employee's head sounds cold and calculating. But such a threat produces a crisis in the victim's life and often provides the motivation he needs to be successfully rehabilitated.

Testimony from Bell employees who have been rehabilitated backs up this idea.

"I drank for 20 years, conning myself into thinking alcohol couldn't hurt me," one employee admits. "I had blackouts and I'd forget what happened the night before, the last weekend or whole weeks at a time. Finally I screwed up my marriage completely — but it wasn't the booze, I kept telling myself."

"My tolerance went. It took less and less to get me smashed. My drinking for the first time began affecting my work. I'd count the hours till quitting time, when I could hit the saloon."

"When my supervisor told me my job was on the line, it was like a slap in the face. I had to keep my job in order to buy booze so I agreed to attend the company's program. It was only later that I realized I had a problem."

Donald Lake Named As Interim Minister

Donald Lake has been named interim minister at Mount Prospect Bible Church in Mount Prospect. Lake is currently a professor of the Bible at Wheaton College.

From 1964 to 1970 Lake was the pastor at a church in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Last year he served as interim pastor for the Village Church of Barrington.

Such stories aren't rare in Illinois Bell files.

Since the beginning of the company's program, hundreds of alcoholic victims have been helped. The results were carefully tabulated on a test group of 402 of the most serious cases. Most of these employees were between the ages of 35 to 54.

THESE ARE generally the most productive years of an individual's life — years most persons progress in their careers. But alcoholism was interfering with this progress.

For most of these employees, the answer was the Bell rehabilitation program. About 57 per cent — 230 employees — are rehabilitated, or have completely controlled their alcoholism for one year or more.

Another 15 per cent are improved — able to function satisfactorily on the job although their drinking isn't completely controlled.

Five per cent of the employees remained uncooperative and rehabilitation efforts thus failed. The remainder — 23 per cent — are still in the program.

A measure of the program's success is the sickness disability records of the group. Uncontrolled alcoholics average two to three times more absenteeism than other employees.

The Illinois Bell test group had 662 cases of sickness disability absence in the five years before participating in the company's program. During the subsequent five years, the same employees had only 356 cases — a 50 per cent improvement.

Another indication of the program's success is the accident rates among test group individuals. In the five years prior to joining the program, the test group had 75 off-duty and 57 on-duty accidents. These figures were reduced to 28 and 11, respectively, in the five years during participation in the program.

These findings dramatically show that alcoholic control programs can increase on-the-job efficiency. But the success of the program can best be summed up in the words of another graduate.

"It isn't easy trying to remain sober. It's work, it's hard work . . . damned hard work. I needed help. Medical help. I received it. I'm staying sober now . . . it's the biggest job I've ever done. It's control over my own body . . . my self-respect."

Scott May Hold Key To Winning Illinois For Nixon

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois Republican Party seemed close yesterday to putting together its state ticket for the 172 general elections. Even the White House reportedly was in the maneuvering.

The top of the ticket already is set. It consists of three men running for re-election — President Richard M. Nixon, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and Sen. Charles H. Percy.

It was the other spots on the state ticket that were causing trouble.

One was resolved early. State Rep. James Nowlan, R-Toulon, announced at a news conference that he is Ogilvie's choice to run for lieutenant governor.

Meanwhile, Atty. Gen. William J. Scott was in Washington Tuesday for a talk with Nixon. It had been widely rumored that Nixon would ask Scott, a good GOP vote-getter, to stay on the ticket and run for re-election despite Scott's occasional differences with Ogilvie.

PERCY, speaking in Springfield Tuesday, virtually confirmed those rumors.

"I haven't any doubt the President will ask Bill to stay on the ticket," Percy said after announcing his own candidacy.

"The President has told me directly, 'As Illinois goes, so goes the nation as far as Richard Nixon is concerned.'"

It is clear by his frequent visits to the Land of Lincoln that Nixon dearly wants Illinois' 26 electoral votes in the GOP column next November. His problem, if it is one, is that Ogilvie currently is saying second to Lt. Gov. Paul Simon, the probable Democratic candidate for governor. A strong showing by the state Democratic ticket could carry votes away from Nixon.

So the President clearly wants strong candidates on the ticket with Ogilvie, hoping they will carry some votes to him.

IF SCOTT runs for another term as attorney general and if Nowlan, indeed, is the candidate for lieutenant governor, that would leave the offices of secretary of state and comptroller yet to be filled.

Rep. George Lindberg, R-Crystal Lake, has indicated he might accept the comptroller's spot on the ballot if he cannot have the secretary of state placement he originally sought. Cook County GOP Chairman Edmund Kucharski apparently now has the inside track for that spot.

Such a pair would pair Ogilvie against Simon if Simon wins his primary fight with Daniel Walker, Percy against Rep. Roman Pucinski of Chicago for the Senate, Scott against State Sen. Thomas Lyons of Chicago for attorney general, Kucharski against Auditor Michael Howlett for secretary of state and Lindberg against Dean Barringer of Anna for comptroller.

Those Democrats were selected by the party's slate-makers as their choice in the March 21 primary. Some of them, including Simon, face primary battles to get on the general election ballot.

Ogilvie Picks Nowlan For Lt. Governor

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie yesterday announced he has chosen state Rep. James D. Nowlan of Toulon as his running mate on next year's Republican ticket.

"Jim Nowlan has the qualities which will make him a real asset on our ticket," Ogilvie said in a statement. "I am absolutely convinced that his downstate residence and his youth, added to his accomplishments and background . . . make him the best man for the job."

Nowlan, 30, said at a news conference Ogilvie "has made it clear to me that he wants a strong lieutenant governor who will play a major role in his administration."

He said the unstructured nature of the office under the new constitution, with the lieutenant governor deprived of virtually all constitutional duties, "makes the potential of the office greater if the lieutenant governor and governor work together as a team."

He said he would expect to "work directly with the governor in many capacities."

Nowland, a bachelor and publisher of a Stark County weekly newspaper, counts his youth as one of his advantages. The governor, he said Tuesday, has told him often he wants a young downstater on the Republican ticket for the 1972 election.

"I've made it clear I feel I would be a strong candidate in this regard," Nowlan said.

He lists among his achievements in two legislative terms a tough bill passed this spring to force strip mine operators to restore mined land to its original topography. That bill gained bipartisan support, passed and signed into law by the governor.

3.6 Per Cent Steel Price Hike Approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a decision that could affect the cost of practically everything, the Price Commission has granted an increase averaging 3.6 per cent to U.S. Steel Corp.

The action, announced late Tuesday in a two-paragraph statement, gave U.S. Steel permission to boost prices for its entire line of products between now and Aug. 1.

While the commission did not say the decision was to be a precedent for the most basic of industrial commodities, Chairman C. Jackson Grayson said it "should help to stabilize the general price structure."

Setting a general pattern for steel the commission previously had ruled only on prices of specialized steel products, such as tin plate, was the third major case handled by the seven-member commission.

The commission also announced approval Tuesday of increases of 5.5 and 5 per cent for Dow Jones & Co. on advertising rates of the Wall Street Journal and the National Observer.

It announced that United Press International had "established for the record that it had contracts prior to Aug. 15 which would allow it to increase prices 10 per cent and 5.6 per cent on selected services."

In other developments:

—The U.S. Chamber of Commerce attacked the Pay Board for allowing pay increases "that go right through the ceiling . . . The Pay Board must stop shattering its 5.5 per cent guideline. Construction increases of four and five times that amount — paid retroactively — to make a farce out of wage controls."

—The Sheet Metal Workers Union also attacked the Pay Board for halting construction industry pay raises while the panel reviews the operation of Construction Industry Stabilization Committee. The head of that committee was called before the Pay Board today to explain some of the recent building trades contracts it has approved.

YOU'RE NOT JUST buying a house you're buying a residential development. What makes a home buyer choose new community over another? Some industry experts say it's the desire to buy status or amenities within a community.

Emotions Enter Into Home Purchase

by LEA TONKIN

Whether you're a social climber, a barefoot millionaire, a disgruntled commuter, a concerned parent, an avid shopper or a price-conscious consumer, you're likely to take emotional as well as practical factors into consideration in the choice of a suburban home, say industry experts.

Knowing this, the builders and marketers of single family housing and townhouses, use more than land cost and quality of construction in their pitch to the potential home buyer. "There are really three considerations in selecting a home," said Robert Widdicombe Jr., executive vice president of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago. "People aspire to live in a particular area because it means something to them and this means it may cost them more."

Although labor costs, more stringent safety codes and building codes are adding to the cost of homes in many communities, Widdicombe said the practice of "puffing" a project can also add dollars to the price tag. "People have always tried to relate their properties to the most desirable community," he said. "Puffing or presenting a project in a striking way to get attention is a legitimate practice," he said. He added that false advertising however is not in keeping with the building industry's code of ethics.

WHEELING officials recently criticized the developers of the Sandpebble Walk condominiums and the Lakeside Villas townhomes for publicizing "the projects within the municipality as 'near Arlington Heights' or 'in the Wheeling-Arlington Heights area.'"

"Builders tend to charge what the market will bear," said Albert Gundelach, partner in the Arlington Heights based Markech, Gundelach & Associates appraisal firm. He is a member of the Des Plaines Zoning Board, serves as an expert witness in the field in Cook County and is past president of the Chicago Chapter of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

"They also consider what the construction and land costs will be but the builder would rather look at what people are willing to pay to live in a community," Gundelach said. He cited the example of two Miller Development Co. projects side by side, one in Arlington Heights and the other in Buffalo Grove. A house in the Arlington Heights project will cost as much as $1,000 more than a similar model in the Buffalo Grove project, according to a Miller representative.

Home buyers looking for a home in a lower price range may go to the Hanover Park project by 3H Building and Development with models in the $25,000 price range according to Gundelach. "But some people would rather live in a smaller house in Arlington Heights — than a larger one in Hanover Park," he said.

"PEOPLE WANT to live where the poor people don't live," he said. "They want to live where the rich people live or where they are likely to live."

Citing a rating system for communities according to socioeconomic factors, Gundelach said North Shore communities in general rank above others in the Chicago metropolitan area. Park Ridge and Arlington Heights are at the top of the scale in the Northwest Suburban area, he said; some are in the middle as Elk Grove Village, Wheeling and Buffalo Grove; and Des Plaines and Palatine are lower in the ratings.

"People want to know how will it sound when I say I moved to Arlington Heights or another community," said Gundelach. "It is social stratification that occurs all the time."

"Within a community home buyers seek out the 'best' neighborhoods," he said. "In Arlington Heights for example these are Scarsdale, Stonegate and Pioneer Park."

There is a danger of overbuying according to Gundelach, or strapping yourself financially to buy an expensive home. He noted that many couples have a dream house when they are in their 20's; they finally buy the house when they are 45 or 50 years old; and then the glamour wears off and the house is resold about 10 years later.

HOME BUYING is an emotional issue according to Gundelach. Buyers look for the "right" neighborhood, schools, shopping areas and churches which can jack up the price of a house. This also means the search for similarity among neighbors he said, as apartment dwellers — turned homeowners object to proposals for new apartments in their area.

"Most of the time people are buying a lifestyle in a house, not just brick and mortar," said Bill Nieman, owner of the Gallery of Homes real estate firm in Elk Grove Village. He is also president of the MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service. "People will compromise and give up a two-car garage or a fireplace to live in a particular community," he said.

"Not only is the land more expensive in Arlington Heights than in Buffalo Grove for example but the buyer also pays for the amenities outside the lot line," Nieman said.

Homes within walking distance of a train station often sell for $1,000 to $1,500 more than comparable houses in a community, Nieman said. "Schools are another factor in home pricing," he said, citing the two school districts in Elk Grove Village which can make a difference in residential market value. The condition of a house and the price are other important priorities according to Nieman, but price is the least important.

Even Santa's Pocketbook Feeling Pinch

SANTA CLAUS, Ind. (UPI) — Letters from youngsters anxiously awaiting Christmas and a visit from St. Nick are pouring in here so fast this year efforts to answer them have resulted in an economic problem.

Each year residents in and around this southern Indiana community pitch in to address and send off a letter from Santa Claus to answer each letter from a child.

Jim Yellig, the 77-year-old man who oversees the project as the "Santa Claus" of this area, recently estimated 75,000 letters may come in by this Christmas.

Bert Reinke, Santa Claus postmaster, said the letters were coming in at double the rate of recent years. He estimated at least 2,000 letters a day have come through his office.

"In previous years we possibly had around 40,000 — between 40,000 and 50,000," said Yellig. "This thing is getting to the point where the cost of it is almost prohibitive. It's a problem."

"For the cost of it, it is well worth it," he said. "It brings immense joy to the children."

Yellig said he returned here in 1930 after a career in the Navy. He said that year the project began when 1,500 letters were delivered here. Yellig said he works on the project as youth and child welfare director with the Indiana Department of the American Legion and a separate fun-making organization known as the "40 and 8." Yellig said the Legion and "40 and 8" pay much of the cost, but more funds are needed.

It costs more these days not only because the volume of mail is up, but also because the postal rates are up, too, he said.

"The letters come from all over the United States and from foreign countries," said Reinke. He said all are answered with letters bearing the Santa Claus postmark, and virtually everyone in this community of 250 and surrounding rural areas pitches in to help.

If he could just find some benefactor who would really be generous, it would be wonderful," said Yellig. He said a few thousand dollars for each year's influx of letters would solve the financial crisis.

The letters sent to children across the nation and in foreign lands is signed "Santa Claus" and bears his picture. It cautions youngsters to be good and mind their parents.

An 'Old' Rocket Is Refurbished For Space Link

by AL ROSSITER JR.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A rocket built in 1966 has come out of hibernation and is being refurbished for the launch of the first Skylab space station crewmen in 1973.

The Saturn 1B first stage, stored in a plastic cocoon for 34 months, will be shipped to Cape Kennedy in August for final flight preparations.

The eight-engine booster is one of three Saturn 1Bs that will launch three-man Apollo command ships to rendezvous and linkup with the orbiting Skylab. Each crew will occupy the station for four to eight weeks over an eight-month period.

THE SKYLAB, a 168,000-pound assembly with the room of a small house, is scheduled to be lofted into orbit first on April 30, 1973, by a Saturn 5 rocket.

The smaller two-stage Saturn 1B will follow the next day with the first Skylab crew. The second three-man team is to be launched by another Saturn 1B July 30, 1973, with the third crew following Oct. 28, 1973.

The initial Skylab booster, identified as vehicle No. 206, has been at the Cape before. It was standing on launch pad 37 in January, 1967, when the three Apollo 1 astronauts were killed in a spacecraft fire atop another Saturn at an adjacent pad.

At that time, Saturn 1B 206 was to have launched an unmanned moon landing craft on an earth orbital test flight. After the accident, the test program was revised and the original Apollo 1 rocket launched the lunar module.

THE FIRST Skylab rocket was rolled out of its massive, air conditioned storage tent Oct. 19 and now is being inspected and readied for flight. A maze of yellow scaffolding surrounds its engine section.

Parts such as rubber seals, valves and some electrical parts that wear with age or periodic testing are being replaced and some engineering improvements are being made to bring the rocket up to date. Then the rocket systems will be thoroughly tested before being shipped to Cape Kennedy.

The second stage for the first Saturn 1B launcher is in storage in the rocket assembly building at Cape Kennedy.

during the holidays it is not possible to attend them all. Movie stars, television performers, directors, producers and others throw cocktail parties, dinner parties, intimate little parties, swinging parties, cattle call parties.

This past weekend Joseph Barbera, president of Hanna-Barbera, played host to a gourmet dinner at the Magic Castle for a half dozen couples followed by a seance in a spooky nook.

Among the guests were Richard Crenna, Mike Connors, Esther Williams and Fernando Lamas. The party broke up at 2 a.m.

Next morning, at a sun-splashed 9 o'clock, Dan Rowan's tennis court began to fill up for a citywide tournament with contributions going to an organization working to whip the Los Angeles smog.

Players at Rowan's championship court included Lloyd Bridges, Ross Martin, director Gordon Wiles, Mrs. Edgar Bergen and host Rowan. Matches continued until twilight with time out for Adriana Rowan's continental lunch.

Saturday night, after the tennis wars had been settled by Bridges and partner winning the trophy, Jim Nabors held a swinging party in his Bel Air estate which dwarfs by half almost all the homes in Beverly Hills.

The coaching staff of the New Orleans Saints football team and Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee, Nabor's house guest, were fêted by the host whose roots go back to Silacua, Ala.

Don Rickles was there, so were Minnie Pearl, Steve Lawrence and Edye Gorme, Carol Burnett, Kay Starr, Juliet Prowse, Rod McKuen, Angie Dickinson and Burt Bacharach, Glenn Ford, Terry Moore and Bobby Gentry among several dozen others.

The dinner was Chinese and exotic. On Nabors' three-acre estate one giant cedar tree was decorated with a thousand lights placed there by a special crane brought in for the purpose.

Sunday night Allen Ludden and Betty White opened their Brentwood home to scores of friends at a cocktail party that began at 5 and rolled along until well after 10 o'clock.

Ludden, in the spirit of Christmas, wore a red sports jacket and red-striped shirt. Betty was at the door to greet the likes of Peter Lawford, Shirley Jones and Jack Cassidy, Lucille Ball, Bill Bixby, producer Paul Keyes Laugh-In, Arte Johnson, Rod Serling, Ross Martin and Joanne Worley.

And those were only a few of the pre-Christmas weekend parties. There were others sprinkled across the rolling hills of Hollywood, Bel-Air, Holmby Hills and Brentwood — America's busiest party belt.

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Carol Burnett and Julie Andrews teamed on CBS-TV Tuesday night for a high-powered, highly polished and just plain delightful two-woman musical-comedy special from New York's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

The broadcast was taped in Philharmonic Hall at the cultural center, and it was hard to believe the hour flew by so quickly. The audience was a black tie gathering, and the quality of the entertainment matched the tone of the evening. Even the Dr. Pepper soft drink commercials were outstanding and imaginative.

WHAT STRUCK ME most about the program, "Julie and Carol at Lincoln Center," was the reminder of how we take some of our top television stars too much for granted just because they happen to appear every week or so, year in and year out. Miss Burnett is a prime example. Everyone knows she is plenty good, but the fact is, with the right material and in the proper setting — which she got Tuesday night — we see that she is a superlative all-around star performer.

The thing is, though, she is always on television, and I do think we take her a bit too much for granted despite the often exceptional bits of her CBS-TV series.

At any rate, getting back to Tuesday night's special, let us not overlook Miss Andrews either. She and Miss Burnett got on excellently together — better, I thought, than their Carnegie Hall two-woman video show of a decade ago. For example, they did a tremendously intricate, lengthy and witty medley of pop music of the 1960s — more than 40 songs, I believe, were interwoven — and it was nothing less than a smash. It also served to remind us how foolish are the blind traditionalists who put down contemporary music without realizing what it has produced.

The comedy highlight Tuesday night was outstanding too — with Miss Burnett as an 83-year-old classical ballet dancer making yet another comeback.

It was there the comedienne was able to unloose the uproarious clout she has in broad humor, and yet also tip us off to the delicacy and finesse she can command facially in transmitting the subtler touches.

Today's TV Highlights

CBS THURSDAY MOVIE, "The Comic." Dick Van Dyke as a silent screen favorite who starts going downhill, finds himself washed up when talkies take over the film industry, then gets a feeling of hope when a chance arises to appear on a television show. 8 p.m. CST.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

Four Joined Sales Staff

Four sales representatives recently joined the staff of Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., real estate firm serving Northwest Suburban and North Shore communities.

They are Robert E. Griffith of Arlington Heights, Bob Wylie of Streamwood, Gus Felt of Schaumburg, and Mrs. Darcy Maas of Barrington Hills.

Griffith is assigned to the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect Area Office, in Arlington Heights. He is a member of the Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements, the Northgate Civic Association and is treasurer of the Arlington Heights Caucus. A lieutenant commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve, he is a member of the Navy Department's speakers bureau.

Griffith received a B.S. degree from the University of Detroit College of Commerce and Finance in 1957. He and his wife Marlene have three children. They live at 414 E. Burr Oak, Arlington Heights.

Wylie is assigned to the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates Area Office in Schaumburg. A former Oak Park resident, he has lived in Streamwood for four years. He previously worked five years for Dato Realty, Fairview Realty, and McMahon Realty. He also worked eight years for

Gus Felt

Continental Airlines and North Central Airlines at O'Hare Airport.

Wylie and his wife Eleanor have a son. They live at 13 Edgewood Drive, Streamwood.

Felt, who also is working in the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates Area Office, attended Wright Junior College and the University of Nebraska. He served in the U. S. Marine Corps and worked for Automatic Electric Co. Felt and his wife Jane have a son.

Mrs. Maas is assigned to Quinlan and Tyson's Palatine Area Office in Palatine. She and her husband Jack have four daughters. They live at 229 W. County Line Rd. Rd., Barrington Hills.

Most young marrieds consider a home their first and most basic investment according to Sabino Marinella, senior vice president of finance of the Continental Mortgage Investors Corp. of Boston, Mass.

"Once they start thinking about buying a home they then begin to think about their future and how to best protect that future," he said. Continental Mortgage is a national financial services and real estate services organization.

Marinella said life insurance should be the cornerstone of a financial planning program. Buying term insurance is the only way to buy death protection, he said.

By buying term — straight insurance with no savings benefits — the individual gets four to six times the death protection for the same amount of money according to Marinella.

Rather than pooling protection and savings, as in whole life policies, Marinella suggests that "persons would do well to shop around for the best available protection coverage and then use the balance allocated to a financial program for investments in mutual funds or other long-term growth instruments."

Commenting on investments, he said the successful program does not necessarily start with reading the stock market quotations. "It can just as easily begin with the real estate pages," Marinella said.

Helping to broaden his views on investing, Marinella admits, is the fact that CIC is one of the new breed of companies in the financial services industry. "Basically, we're putting it all together. CIC is in the lead in putting together diversified financial packages to serve the major financial needs of most families," Marinella said.

ZERO LOT-LINE Garden Villa Homes shown above in scale model will be featured at the Trails development in Roselle. Developers of the planned residential and commercial project are Kennedy Brothers, Co. dominiums, single-family homes and townhouses will be included in addition to a convenience shopping center and recreational facilities.

Announce Trails Project

Kennedy Brothers recently announced plans to enter the multi-family housing market with a $35 million residential and commercial planned unit development in Roselle.

To be called The Trails, the new community will cover a site of 156 acres and will comprise three different housing formats — single-family homes, townhouses, and condominiums. A convenience shopping center, and two recreational complexes, interspersed among landscaped parks and walkways, will also be included.

Bill Kennedy, vice president of Kennedy Brothers, anticipates that the community will appeal particularly to families in the moderate-income housing market. He said the firm will be using many of the same construction crews as on its more expensive developments.

Phase I of the Trails will include 172 single-family residences, called Garden Villa Homes. Models range from three-bedroom, 2½ bath homes to five bedroom 2½ bath homes, with from 1,600 to 2,160 square feet of living space, not including basement and garage. Prices will range from $38,400 to $44,900, including lot.

The zero-lot-line placement of the Garden Villa Homes will permit greater usability of the land than would the traditional center-of-the-lot placement with which most homebuyers are familiar, according to the developers. Each lot will measure approximately 70 feet by 110 feet and with the building line brought to the edge of the property, homeowners will have larger areas of private land.

The 345 townhouses, or Court Villas, will have from 1,200 to 1,550 square feet of living space, ranging from two bedroom 1½-bath models to four bedroom 2½ bath models and priced from $25,900 to $35,500. Every unit will have a full basement and two courts — one at the front and one at the rear of each home. Some of the villas will have one or two-car garages.

The Phase I recreational complex will include a $250,000 clubhouse with teen room, adult lounge, card and billiard room, men's and women's saunas and banquet facilities. Additional amenities include swimming pool, putting green, tennis courts, basketball and volleyball courts, and a soccer field, which will be convertible to a skating rink during winter. Tot-lots will be spaced around the community.

Phase II will comprise approximately 450 Garden Condominiums the prices of which have not yet been determined. The architecture of these will harmonize with the general design theme of the community.

A second recreational complex is scheduled for the use of residents of Phase II homes. The additional complex also will include a clubhouse, swimming pool and numerous sports facilities.

The third phase of development will comprise the building of the convenience shopping center. The center will be accessible from the clubhouse or from the residences without the necessity of crossing streets.

California-style architecture will be incorporated throughout the development, with earth tones and rough-hewn wood materials.

Financing for the Trails has been arranged with the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Chicago.

Scale models currently are on display daily from 10 a.m. until dark at the sales office for the Trails, located at 703 Nerge Road, 2 miles west of Rte. 53 in Roselle. Furnished models for the residences are scheduled to open in January, with occupancy planned for February, 1972. Kennedy Brothers is headquartered in Northbrook.

Briar Brook Models Open

Briar Brook Village, open for two months in Wheaton, features four model apartments according to Alan Fox and Steve Deerwester. Principals of the Gibraltar Building and Development Co., they predict that the village will be fully occupied when it is completed in the summer of 1972.

The first stop on the Briar Brook model building tour is Unit One. Sliding glass patio doors extend across one wall of the living room. A dining room and fully equipped kitchen are also featured. Hallways are carpeted.

Unit One has a guest closet off the main room, a linen closet off the bathroom and a walk in, room size closet in the master bedroom. Adding another dimension to the bedroom is the double paneled window which offers a view of the landscaped terrain and recreation facilities. There are double doors to the bathroom, one off the hallway and one that leads from the bathroom to a dressing area and wall wide vanity in the bedroom.

The vanities and bathrooms in all apartments have decorator make-up lights and rectangular mirrors.

Ceramic tile, sheltered door vanities, Formica top sinks, bath tub and sliding glass door and trim are featured in the bathroom.

Next in the model lineup is Unit 3, a one-bedroom apartment which is entered off the central corridor, the door opens into the foyer.

The kitchen which opens into the dining area and can be partially closed off by wooden shutters. The bathroom is divided into two areas, the first including vanity, cabinets and trim, the second with tub and lavatory.

A wall-to-wall walk-in closet is in the master bedroom.

Continuing onto Unit 4, one passes the side corridor which leads to the equipped laundry room and mail boxes. Each utility room serves approximately four families.

Unit 4 has two bedroom apartment with an entrance off the central hallway. The bedrooms, situated off each side of the living room, have their own hallways and baths.

The master bedroom has a full vanity and dressing area, separate bath and shower room, two full wardrobe closets and a walk in storage closet. The second bedroom has a large double walk-in closet.

The fully equipped kitchen which opens into the dining room and has an exterior counter.

Unit 2 is a two bedroom apartment but covers the full width of the building. It has a long corridor extending in two directions. Moving to the right one enters the formal living room, dining room and kitchen areas. Moving to the left, one passes the second bedroom. The centrally located bathroom is convenient to both bedrooms, however the master suite has its own vanity and dressing area, private bath and shower, and three double wardrobe closets and a linen closet.

Features available with each rental unit include wall-to-wall shag carpeting throughout, fully equipped color coordinated kitchens with gas ranges and self-cleaning ovens, vented hoods and fans, double-door, self-defrosting refrigerators and freezers, walnut cabinets, formica counter tops, and dishwashers in the two bedroom units.

All wall-to-wall closets have sliding doors and all the apartments have decorator light fixtures, extra storage areas, air conditioning and master antenna systems.

There are also private outside storage areas and thousands of landscaped grounds.

Depending on the location, each apartment has a balcony or patio which is entered off the dining or living room via insulated sliding glass doors. All the windows have triple tracks and screens.

The Briar Brook Club House features saunas, swimming pool and activities program, the man-made lakes and ponds, waterfalls, fountains, bike paths, walkways, tennis courts, treehouse, fire

Q&T Rings Up Record Sales

Quinlan and Tyson, Inc., set an annual record for sales volume this year — after only nine months.

The real estate firm serving 37 North Shore and Northwest Suburban communities rang up sales of $78.4 million through September. The nine-month mark is almost double the sales volume for the same period of 1970 and it surpasses last year's total yearly sales of $55.5 million.

Richard G. Rutledge, executive vice president and general manager—real estate sales, said Quinlan and Tyson's sales achievements far exceeded the firm's expectations. He said the nine-month report topped the company's own projections by 44 per cent.

Nine-month sales increased by 67 per cent in Quinlan and Tyson's North Shore Area Office, by 137 per cent in the Northwest Suburban Area Office, and by 162 per cent in the Libertyville-Mundelein Area Office.

While setting the pace, Quinlan and Tyson also is winning a larger share of the market, Rutledge said. He said the firm's percentage of increase through September is higher than the percentage increase of the three multiple listing services to which the company belongs. Rutledge attributes Quinlan and Tyson's success to the efforts of its sales staff.

Rutledge also reported that sales of co-operatives, apartments, and condominiums have increased. Quinlan and Tyson has increased its percentage of sales 204 per cent and its sales volume 255 per cent. These sales efforts have received increasing attention from the firm, Rutledge said.

Also on the increase are sales of investment properties. Volume topped $3 million through September in the investment division headed by Robert Ganaway, Rutledge said.

Broadens Scope Of Investment

Savings institutions comprising the $200 billion savings and loan business are fast moving in the direction of becoming full service real estate lenders.

A commemorative pamphlet prepared by the United States Savings and Loan League, the industry's largest trade group, notes that it took associations 132 years to reach their first $100 billion in assets and only eight years to reach the second $100 billion.

The business has grown to where associations now take in about one-third of the nation's over-the-counter savings and are America's biggest mortgage lenders.

The league also observed that while lending money to people who want to build or buy homes is still the business's major lending job, the scope of savings and loan lending operations is broadening.

"Churches, shopping centers, urban renewal projects, industrial parks, mobile home parks, hotels, motels and recreational facilities — all of these can be and are being financed by savings and loan associations," the league said. "The day may not be far off when we can underwrite the development of new cities and towns from the ground up, starting with the purchase of the land and ending with the construction of homes, apartments, stores, industrial buildings, service facilities, schools and parks."

The league noted that these new investment powers will have a big impact on America's economy, since much of the money associations lend is put to work paying construction workers, suppliers and others involved in the building projects they finance. Beyond that is the "multiplier effect" in the form of new economic activities generated by real estate developments.

The pamphlet and other commemorative materials on the $200-billion milestone are being distributed to the league's nearly 5,000 member associations, which hold about 98 per cent of the nation's savings and loan assets.

Dollar Savings In Heating Fuel

This is the season when the gas customer begins his turn-of-a-dial effort to escape winter's chill. Some people simply call this seasonal ritual "fiddling" with the thermostat.

Constantly adjusting the "brains" of the heating system wastes fuel dollars. By following a few suggestions made by Northern Illinois Gas Co., the consumer can economically and comfortably see another winter through.

First, be consistent. The experts say frequent resettings of a thermostat do not make a furnace produce heat faster. Instead, the furnace is forced to operate for longer periods. This means higher fuel consumption and higher fuel bills.

Experiment during these first few cool days. Find the lowest indoor temperature at which your room is comfortable and leave it there. It will pay off — both in comfort and savings.

Second, keep your thermostat free from drafts of cold air due to open windows and doors. Otherwise, it might unnecessarily signal the furnace to operate.

Third, if a winter vacation is in store, why not give your heating system a break. During your absence, fuel bills can be checked by setting the thermostat at its lowest setting before your departure. Keep the pilot light on, however. It costs very little to keep it burning.

There are other ways you can make the thermostat's job easier:

Change the furnace filter several times during the winter. If the filter is clogged, the furnace could run all day, but not efficiently.

If there are unused rooms in your home, make sure the registers or radiators are turned off and the doors kept closed.

Fireplace dampers should be closed when not in use.

Humidifiers can mean a smoother operating furnace and more comfortable living — if they are working properly. When humidity is low, most people turn the furnace up, taking the fuel bill with it.

Lenders Take A Bow For Home Financing

The growth of savings and loan association assets from $8 billion at the close of World War II to $200 billion late this year meant home ownership for 21 million American families according to John P. Farry, president of the United States Savings and Loan League.

Farry, who is also president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Albert Lea, Minn., reported that since World War II the savings and loan associations have supplied the funds to finance 21 million one-to-four family residences. Based on an average of 3.6 persons to a family, this means that the business has provided homes for almost 76 million men, women and children. That's enough homes to house the entire populations of California, New York, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Man Achieves 22 Years' Perfect Work Attendance

John Kropacek, 413 Hatlen Ave., Mount Prospect has earned his 22nd Thanksgiving "Turkey" award for perfect work attendance for the past year from his employer, Commerce Clearing House, Inc., publishers of tax and business law Reports.

Kropacek has been employed in the Printing Organization of the publishing firm, located at 4025 W. Peterson Ave., Chicago, for 25 years. He has had a perfect record of day-to-day attendance on the job for 22 of these years, and has shared in the Thanksgiving award each time.

Of this total number of single-family homes financed, two-thirds were existing homes and one-third new homes. During the 25-year period from 1946 through 1971 the number of homes financed by savings associations varied from year to year. The low point was in 1948 when 417,000 homes were financed; the record year was 1963 with a total of 1,305,000 homes financed.

In addition, the savings and loan business has become increasingly active in the financing of larger apartment structures — those having five or more units. From 1945 to year-end 1971, it is estimated that the business will have financed almost 2 million of these units, representing a mortgage lending investment of $14.7 billion.

The Housing Act of 1968 gave savings and loan associations permission to enter the mobile home lending field. Mobile homes are fast becoming an important factor in the housing market. Since Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulations were issued in 1969, savings and loan associations have loaned $250,000,000 to finance more than 22,000 mobile homes. Ranking the third largest on the roster of the nation's financial institutions, savings and loan associations are first in mortgage lending volume. They currently make two out of three of all home mortgages in the United States, and at those frequent times when other institutional lenders abandon the mortgage market for higher paying investments, savings and loans carry more than 75 per cent of the mortgage load.

The growth of the business with its corresponding effect upon the housing market really began in the years following the close of World War II said Farry.

The major factors causing the rapid growth were varied. Farry said these included the board financial legislation which was passed during the Depression years, particularly the establishment of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, the Federal Savings and Loan System and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The backlog of housing demand for all types of housing after World War II, was a second factor. During the war home building came to a virtual halt which, coupled with the slowdown in construction during the Depression, led to a massive housing shortage.

Another key factor, of course, was the GI lending program which afforded the spark to set off the greatest housing boom the country had ever seen said Farry.

In 1964, housing starts climbed over 1 million from a wartime low in 1944 of 141,800. For 1971, it is estimated that for the first time in history housing starts will pass the 2 million figure.

On the savings side of the ledger, in 1945 savings associations had total savings deposits of $7.3 billion. This was held by 6,781,000 savers who had average account balances of $1,086. By 1963, when the business reached its first $100 billion in assets, savings deposits had shot up to $91 billion, held by 36,900,000 savers with average account balances of $2,474.

Approaching year-end 1971, savings deposits stand at an estimated $175 billion, held by 50,000,000 savers with average accounts of $3,500.

Industry Primed For Banner Year

The nation's construction industry is whistling a happy tune these days, according to Durand A. Holladay, secretary and trustee of Continental Mortgage Investors, Boston, Mass. "Shelter, shopping center and office buildings are composing a whole new set of even more cheerful lyrics for 1972," he said.

Continental Mortgage, real estate trust in mortgage lending, has made more than $1 billion in mortgage loans since 1962. Holladay is also chairman and managing trustee of Diversified Mortgage Investors, also of Boston, a multi-specialty real estate trust which has made nearly $500 million in mortgage loans since beginning operations in late 1969.

"Next year should be 12 months of massive growth for the construction industry, with new records being posted in practically every quarter. The foundation for the industry's growth is the basic need of people for places to live, work and shop," Holladay said.

The demand for new apartments indicated by the fact that currently two of every three new units built is rented within three months of completion, said Holladay.

"Total residential production in 1972 should be more than 5 per cent over 1971, with apartment construction expected to be up about 7 per cent," Holladay said. "Demand for apartments in the Northeast is increasing. Production for the region will be up between 8 and 9 per cent in 1972."

"A 7 per cent rise is anticipated for the North Central region where the demand for multi-family housing remains strong. Apartment construction in the South may slow somewhat during 1972 — however, production levels should still advance 4 to 5 per cent. Construction in the West will be somewhat dependent on the recovery rate of other industries — chemicals, aerospace and electronics. Apartment construction in the area could rise as much as 6 per cent next year," Holladay said.

"Increased residential construction has created a tremendous demand for shopping facilities. Shopping center construction in the Northeast next year should be at least 14 per cent above that of 1971. The outlook for the North Central region is a 15 per cent increase in 1972," Holladay states.

"The overall outlook for office construction in 1972 is very good. New office building next year in the North Central area of the nation should be as much as 27 per cent ahead of the 1971 total," Holladay said. "Construction levels in the Northeast are expected to put 1972 about 19 per cent ahead of 1971. An advance of more than 22 per cent in office construction is anticipated in the West. And, there will also be continued growth in the South, with a rise of about 14 per cent in new office building construction next year."

"The supply of money for the industry should remain strong next year and, while there may be some upward adjustment of interest rates, the rise should not be prohibitive," he concluded.

Realty Firm Shows Gain

Baird & Warner, Inc., diversified Chicago real estate firm, reported substantial increases in sales transactions and dollar sales volume for the month of October and for the first 10 months of 1971.

John L. Hall, senior vice president and general sales manager, reported that the firm's 28 sales offices participated in 288 transactions for the month, an increase of 36 per cent over 211 reported a year ago. Dollar volume for the month jumped from $9,763,073 in 1970 to $15,716,223 for the current month, a gain of 61 per cent.

Cumulative results for the first 10 months of 1971 showed sustained vigor in the real estate market, Hall noted.

For the period, the firm participated in 3,270 transactions, a 43 per cent increase over the 2,277 chaled up for the year-ago period. Dollar volume so far in 1971 is $157,257,200, up 53 per cent over the $102,887,302 for January-October 1970.

Palatine Plaza Financing Set

Dovenmuehle, Inc., has arranged a $1,350,000 mortgage on an existing shopping center in Palatine. The announcement was made by Oran Packard Rickard, vice president.

Known as the Palatine Plaza Shopping Center, the facility is located at 223-321 E. Northwest Hwy. The center includes a one-story building which was completed in 1962. It has 118,493 square feet of leasable space divided into 26 stores. National Tea Co., S. S. Kresge Co., Dominicks Food Store and Montgomery Ward are among the major tenants.

National Tea recently completed the construction of a 7,535 square foot addition. The center provides parking for 950 cars.

The owner of the Plaza is Palatine, Ltd. The term of the mortgage is 25 years.

Streamlines Application

Kassuba Development Corp. recently scrapped its old rental application in favor of a streamlined one page, two sided legal size form.

The firm is owner-developer of 17 Trace residential-recreational communities with 12,000 apartments in the Chicago area. Its nationwide operations include 40,000 apartments in 65 cities in 23 states.

"There's no reason why a rental application shouldn't look like a rental brochure without necessarily being as elaborate," said Kassuba Senior Vice President Edward N. Kelly Jr. "Apartment applicants should be given the same courtesy as apartment shoppers who get the red carpet treatment and a new brochure."

Kassuba's new rental application and Occupancy Agreement is a 9x11 1/4 file folder form with an index tab.

Minimizing the questions inside has helped "to make the applicant feel at ease," according to Edwin C. Palm Jr., Kassuba's Chicago area credit and collection manager. "With less than 50 blanks for the applicant to fill in, the new occupancy agreement and rental application has been boiled down to asking for only essential information," he adds.

Palm said he has had some unique experiences to qualify as a credit and collection manager. As an Army chaplain's assistant in Korea, he learned to listen, a major requirement for his job, he believes. Later he served as a social worker in the Municipal Court of Chicago — serving in the Domestic Relations, Boys' and Women's courts.

As a lyric tenor who sometimes still sings as a church soloist and at funerals and weddings, Palm said he knows all the old songs. "There are few excuses I haven't heard for not paying rent," he said. New car purchases, furniture installments, payments on color television sets and gambling are reasons most frequently cited by tenants delinquent in their rent, he said.

Trace tenants, he believes, are above average in meeting their rental obligations. "We have a generally good caliber tenant, mostly families with better than average incomes who pay their rent the first of the month," Palm said.

Palm received a B.S. degree from Illinois Wesleyan with a major in sociology. He is a resident of Chicago.

Canceling An Old Lease

by LEA TONKIN
A change is in the works for the standard residential lease most commonly used in the Chicago metropolitan area. By the end of next year a streamlined version may be uniformly used across the country, predict some industry experts. The call for a revamping of this time-worn agreement comes not only from bar association reformers but from some apartment industry spokesmen who realize that happy tenants can spark a successful rental operation. Julian Levi, project director of the American Bar Association Foundation's research project which developed a model landlord-tenant residential code, said, "What we are trying to do is to modernize the agreements between parties so that it reflects the intentions of both tenant and landlord." The code was first presented in August of this year. As technical advisor to a committee of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, Levi helped draft the model code to be used as a basis for uniform legislation among all 50 states. This is slated to be introduced after August, 1972. Levi is a professor of urban studies at the University of Chicago and has been director of the South Chicago Commission since 1952.

"The conference is official in the sense that the governor of each state appoints three commissioners," said Levi. "Its committees are assigned to work on various issues." Levi said the conference has a good batting average in its efforts to gain uniform legislation from state to state including the adoption of a uniform commercial code.

A uniform lease would stabilize the expectations of the landlord and tenant according to Levi. He said this is especially important where a housing market extends into more than one state, as in the Washington, D. C. area.

The model code proposed by his committee outlines the responsibilities of the landlord and the tenant. "When a landlord leases an apartment he expects that the tenant is not only going to pay his rent but that in addition he will not infringe on the rights of other tenants, that he will keep the apartment clean and otherwise comply with other expectations," said Levi. "The tenant expects that the apartment will be heated, have hot water and other facilities."

"The first thing the proposal says is that the performance of one party is contingent on the performance of the other," said Levi. This means that a landlord has recourse if he rents to a slob, said Levi, and the tenant can take his landlord to task for failure to provide heating or other services.

The code would give the tenant more than the right to possession of an apartment according to Levi. "It would make illegal certain kinds of overreaching that often occur in the agreements," he said.

"In Illinois, for example, for at least 10 years there has been a law on the books which says the landlord cannot take a lease in which he asks the tenant to waive his legal rights against you for negligence or carelessness. Despite this, real estate boards and other groups approve this kind of a lease."

Levi said the Chicago Real Estate Board's (CREB) standard lease form, now the most widely used agreement in the Chicago metropolitan area, is out-moded. "It has all sorts of clauses which do not reflect the intention of both parties," he said, citing clauses which could prevent a tenant from doing something about lack of service.

The first residential property management company to scrap the old standard lease form on a national scale is the Kassuba Development Corp., which has approximately 12,000 Trace units in the Chicago metropolitan area. The company first introduced its simplified lease in June of this year.

The Kassuba agreement reduces the number of words in the standard CREB lease by about two thirds according to Edward N. Kelley, senior vice president and general manager. The lease frees the tenant from such responsibilities as subletting and eliminates the waiver and confession clauses.

A cancellation clause in the Kassuba lease allows the tenant to give 90 days' notice if he wishes to vacate the apartment. It also includes a checklist to assess any charges against a security deposit.

Apartment leases haven't changed much in the past 100 years according to Edward Zale, president of the Apartment Council of Metropolitan Chicago. "But there have been many changes in the industry and the law should take this into account," he said. "As a result there has been a lot of work done by legislators and attorneys to update the law to make it more equitable for the tenant in his relationship to his landlord."

Although Zale noted that the uniform state law commission still has to hear additional testimony before presenting its final lease proposal next year, he predicts that the resulting document will have a good chance of success among state legislators. "What ever they recommend is likely to become law," Zale said.

"There is a definite trend across the country for tenants to become more vocal," he said. "But the biggest problem that has brought this about is unusually large increases in rents. This occurs when there is a shortage of apartments." He said stiff competition in the Chicago metropolitan area apartment market eliminates this kind of tenant frustration. Concern for the rights of the tenant can pay off for the apartment owner according to Norman V. Watson, U. S. Housing and Urban Development's assistant secretary for housing management. "When tenants feel they are being treated fairly and have a voice in management matters all the evidence suggests that they will take greater pride in their project and better care of the property," he said. "Conversely, when the tenants feel alienated, the result is likely to be greater crime, vandalism, rent delinquencies and rent strikes."

The need to take both the landlord and the tenants rights into account is outlined in several bills slated to come up in the next session of the Illinois legislature according to Mayer Singerman, executive vice president of the Apartment Council of Metropolitan Chicago. "More and more apartment owners are abandoning apartments or not building them," he said. "Any new landlord-tenant codes should not contribute to this situation."

Resident landlord relationship is also the subject of the more formal proposal by a national research group for a uniform lease in all 50 states.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Would you tell me if scarlet fever is the same as a strep throat and if the rash that develops will scale and the scales can give it to another person? Today scarlet fever isn't so dangerous as it was 40 and 50 years ago.

DEAR READER — A "strep throat" means an infection of the throat with bacterial called streptococcus. There are several types of bacteria in this group. The toxin or poison formed by some types of these bacteria makes a person ill. One manifestation of the illness can be the rash of scarlet fever. Thus the only difference between some forms of strep infection and scarlet fever is the rash. The same streptococcus infection is just as contagious with or without the rash. Rheumatic fever followed by rheumatic heart disease and kidney disease can be a complication of "strep" infections.

You are right, scarlet fever isn't so dangerous now as it once was nor nearly so common. Forty years ago we didn't have sulfa drugs, penicillin or a host of other antibiotics that control or eliminate streptococcal infections.

All "strep" throats should be treated to prevent the likelihood of subsequent problems, including heart disease.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 10th grader and I am interested in the human heart and its many functions. One thing puzzles me. Will the human heart burn if the body is burned, such as in cremation? I have tried to look it up in various heart books and encyclopedias but no answer to my question.

DEAR READER — That is a pretty grizzly question. Yes, it burns. The heart is made up mostly of muscle. It is a different kind of muscle than in your arm, but they have many things in common. The same is true of animal hearts.

The beef steak and roasts you eat are mostly muscle and beef heart is muscle. As you know, both can be cooked and eaten. Usually anything that can be cooked can be burned — any housewife will attest to that.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if it would be possible to find a plastic surgeon who would be willing to perform a face lift without giving a blood transfusion afterwards, since there are blood substitutes less apt to cause infection.

DEAR READER — Of course. Talk it over with the surgeon in advance. Commonly, a plastic surgeon will use adrenalin injected into the skin area where the surgery will be performed for the purpose of controlling or preventing any appreciable bleeding. The best results are obtained if loss of blood can be prevented.

If the blood loss is minimized, there is no need for a blood transfusion.

"Curiouser and curiouser," thought Alice. "I keep getting better hands all the time. Maybe there aren't any bad hands for me in Wonderland."

Alice decided to open one diamond rather than two no-trump. She was sure there would be further bidding. No one plays one bids in Wonderland. Alice lost no time getting to seven no-trump, after finding her partner held all the missing aces and kings.

Alice could only count 12 top tricks, but she was sure that the 13th would develop.

She won the spade lead and ran off four clubs to discard a diamond from dummy. Then she cashed the last two top spades and noted that East showed out on the second one. Three rounds of hearts came next and Alice was in a dummy which now consisted of a low spade, heart and diamond, while she held ace-king-eight of diamonds.

West had to hold on to a top spade and East to a top heart. Neither could hold three diamonds and Alice claimed the grand slam.

The red queen who sat East pointed at her partner and yelled "Off with his head! He should have led a diamond."

The queen was correct. A diamond lead would break up the final squeeze, but we agree with Alice that the remedy was rather drastic.

E. M. Slivovsky Is President Of Appraisers

Edward M. Slivovsky, liquidating agent for the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. since 1969, has been elected to serve as president of the Chicago Chapter of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

The SREA is an international organization for professional real estate appraisers, which currently boasts in excess of 400 members in the Chicago Metropolitan area alone. The society was originally founded to serve the appraisal needs of savings and loan associations in mortgage lending. Now, some 4,500 professional real estate appraisers, who have met the educational and experience requirement, carry the designation and endorsement of this society.

Slivovsky, formerly of Arlington Heights, resides in Palatine with his wife, Barbara, and three sons. He has served as chief appraiser and assistant vice president with the Oak Park Federal Savings and Loan Association for 10 years, and in the same capacity with the Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago for six years. ## Leasing Agent Is Appointed Baird & Warner, Inc., Chicago, has been named exclusive leasing and management agent for a multi-tenant industrial building in the Centex North Industrial Park in Elk Grove Village.

The 28,000 square-foot building at 750 Nicholas Blvd. was recently purchased from its developer, Gottlieb, Beale & Co., for $360,000 by Baird & Warner Mortgage and Realty Investors, a Chicago-based real estate investment trust. The five-year-old steel and masonry structure was the first incubator building built in Centex Industrial Center. Since that time, the incubator or so-called "apartment building of industrial properties" has become one of the most popular types of industrial building in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Tenants of the building include Koenig and Bauer, Woodco Ltd., Cardinal Supply Co., and Printing Unlimited.

William D. Sally, vice president and general manager of Baird & Warner's management division, said management responsibility has been assigned to the firm's Arlington Heights office.

Add Hardware In The Bathroom

If you want to spruce up your bathroom or kitchen without extensive remodeling, new hardware can be installed. Here's what's new in plumbing brass, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau:

A faucet with a hose and thumb-controlled spray attachment for rinsing dishes and vegetables can be installed in the kitchen.

A faucet with both an aerated stream and a spray flow allows water to be directed anywhere because the faucet has both an up-down swing a full-circle swivel action.

An aerated showerhead with a swivel arm makes it possible to shower without getting your head wet. The arm can be adjusted for bathers of varying heights.

A body or shampoo spray on a flexible stainless steel hose can be attached to an existing shower arm or to the tub spout. It is recommended for invalids who can't take conventional baths or showers.

Automatic temperature controls for showers and tubs eliminate sudden surges of hot or cold water.

Kenneth A. Rosin Promoted At Abbott

Kenneth A. Rosin has been promoted to manager, manufacturing accounting and controller, at the North Chicago Plant by the Hospital Products Division of Abbott Laboratories.

Before joining Abbott in 1969 as a manufacturing analyst, he had been employed by the American Can Co. In 1967, Rosin obtained a degree in accounting from the University of Wisconsin.

Rosin and his wife, Sandra, reside in Buffalo Grove.

Poor John. Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

There's Detailed Line Of Inheritance

Almost everyone knows that when a husband or wife dies without a will, the remaining spouse automatically receives one-third of the personal and real estate and the children the other two-thirds. But what happens to the estate of the single person who has no spouse or direct descendants and who dies without a will?

The first line of inheritance is the parents and brothers and sisters of the deceased. In this case, the estate is divided in equal portions. However, if one of the parents is no longer living, the survivor receives a double portion. The descendants of a predeceased brother or sister receive the portion of the estate which would have belonged to their parent.

When there are no surviving parents, brothers, sisters or nieces and nephews, the estate is divided equally between maternal and paternal grandparents or their descendants.

IF THE MATERNAL and paternal grandparents and their descendants are not surviving, the great-grandparents or their survivors are in line for the inheritance.

Should there be no surviving descendants of the great-grandparents, the entire estate goes in equal parts to the nearest kindred of the deceased. When no relatives exist, the real estate and personal property of the deceased is allotted to the county where it is located and all other personal property to the State of Illinois.

322 Million By 2000 Could Be Disastrous

by LOUIS CASSELS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The future of America depends in a very basic sense on decisions that are being made, privately and separately, by millions of young married couples.

Each couple must answer for itself the question: What size family do we want?

If all the decisions average out to 3.1 children per family, the U.S. Census Bureau says, the nation's population will climb from 205 million at present to about 322 million in the year 2000 — which, kindly remember, is just 20 years away.

So rapid a growth rate could have disastrous effects on efforts to curb pollution of the air and water and to conserve America's already seriously strained energy and raw material resources. The more people, the more pollution. The greater the rate of population growth, the heavier the pressure on resources such as gas, oil, manganese, chromium, nickel, copper, cobalt and tungsten, which already are or soon will be in short supply.

SUPPOSE, HOWEVER, that the average American family decides that two kids are enough. Should that attitude prevail for the next three decades, the U.S. population in the year 2000 would be about 271 million — a hefty 32 per cent increase over the present, but still 50 million fewer people than we'd have with three children in the average family.

After years of backing away timidly from the whole issue of population control, the federal government at last has committed itself to make "family planning services" — a euphemism for contraceptive devices — available to "all persons desiring such services."

The program was authorized by Congress in a landmark bill enacted in 1970. Expenditures during the last fiscal year were a modest $25 million for the whole country, but are due to rise to $58 million this year and to $91 million the following year.

The purpose of this program is quite plainly and simply to give poor people the opportunity to halt their production of children when they choose — an opportunity long taken for granted by the better-educated, higher-income segments of society.

Unfortunately, the program has attracted the acute suspicion of some militant blacks, who see in it a racially inspired plot to control the black population, which is growing at a considerably faster rate than the white population. Until this suspicion is overcome, the federally financed family planning clinics will do least good where they are most needed — in urban ghettos.

Cardinals Tip Elk Grove; No. 100 For George Zigman

by LARRY EVERHART

It was a happy 100th for George Zigman... victory, not birthday.

That's how many career wins the Arlington basketball coach now has after the Cardinals' 65-67 win at Elk Grove Tuesday night. But the 100th was more difficult to attain than most of the other 99.

Led by ace guard Ken Peters' 19 points and forward Mike Cleveland's 15, Arlington warded off some spirited comeback attempts by the scrappy, never-say-die Grenadiers in the final quarter. Several times the hosts were within hailing distance, making things pretty nervous until the last couple of minutes.

Elk Grove proved that its two wins over the weekend, including a shocking upset of Wheeling, were no flukes. The Grens fought to a 26-26 tie at halftime, led as late as two minutes into the third quarter, and didn't give Zigman or the Cardinals any chance to relax.

In fact, typically, George was so worried about getting past the Grenadiers that he had to be reminded he had reached a personal milestone. "Hey, that's right... I'd forgotten about that," he brightened when told.

Zigman has racked up 56 of the wins at Arlington in only a little more than three seasons there. He has lost just 19 games as Cardinals coach and only 37 in his whole career.

Getting back to Tuesday's contest, Arlington pulled away in the last six minutes of the second half and then staved off the spirited Groves by accepting charity. They reeled off a red-hot streak of 16 free tosses of their last 17... and needless to say, many were quite important.

In all, Arlington cashed in on 19 of 25 from the line, and that was the difference. A breakdown of statistics shows the teams were extremely even in other departments. Each shot 40 per cent from the field, Arlington had one more field goal and one more rebound (29-28), and the Cards had 10 turnovers to only six for Elk Grove.

Both teams handled the ball remarkably well, especially for so early in the season and considering that both teams were putting on plenty of pressure on defense.

George Zigman

"We brought the ball up well against that pressure," said Zigman, "and we kept looking under the basket, too. We got some easy shots that way."

"It was basically a team win. We had good balance and everybody helped. Seven guys (all the Cards who played) did it for us."

Bob Prince, Elk Grove's quick, sharp-shooting junior guard, led his team with 13 points while Dave Chernick and Miller each had 11.

It was nip-and-tuck through the first quarter, with both teams starting out slowly but picking up the pace. A pair of outside baskets by Peters gave Arlington a 16-12 lead after one period.

That lead soon grew to 22-16, but then Elk Grove took over. Prince scored six points and Chernick two baskets to help the Grenadiers to a tie at the half.

The game got physical in the third quarter and some hotly-disputed referees' calls resulted in a technical against each coach. Arlington took the lead for good on a three-point play by Cleveland, who then was the key in his team pulling away with eight straight foul shots without a miss.

The Grens chipped away at the 11-point deficit after the third quarter and twice were only five behind late in the fourth quarter with chances to make it three. But two more long huddles by Peters, a pair of close-in rebounds by Tim Will and Cleveland's rebound goal turned back Elk Grove's repeated bids.

Peters' 19 was his low for five games thus far, which says something about the way he is playing. He is averaging 26.9 points per game.

Arlington has now won four of five games while Elk Grove is 2-2. Tuesday's contest did not count in the Mid-Suburban League standings since it was a cross-division game.

St. Viator Clips Lane Tech, 66-55

Lions Visit Chicago . . . And Like It

by JIM COOK

Sometimes the only way to beat 'em is to join 'em and that's exactly what St. Viator did Tuesday night in out-racing host Lane Tech, 66-55.

The Indians came out thundering on the warpath with an undisciplined run-and-shoot offense, but it was the Lions who obliged their opponents with a decisive edge in both rebounding and fast-break strategy.

Viator guards Brian Carley, Mark DiMuzio and Ken Martin were instrumental in smashing Lane's 3-1 full court press and hitting the open man. The Lions had numerous three-on-one breaks that usually resulted in an easy bucket by one of head coach Ed Wasielewski's front-liners.

Center John Lohse (23) and forwards Joe Cook (16) and Ed Foreman (11) combined for 50 of the Lions' 66 points — mostly of the layup variety off pin-point feeds from the guards.

The key to any running team is peeling the ball off the backboards. It's hard to score without the rubber sphere, but Viator didn't have any problems.

The taller Lions posted a convincing 39-17 margin in the fierce, physical battle for control of the boards.

Lane originally came out popping with a little more success than St. Viator. Indian sharpshooter Sherm Austin, the game's eventual leading scorer with 24 points, drilled an opening 10-footer and assisted on another to open a lone free throw by Carley.

It wasn't long before the Lions began shifting gears. While Carley and DiMuzio dribbled the length of the court to beat the press, Lohse was shaking loose under the basket and covering the brilliant feeds into easy buckets.

Another Carley charity toss and five-foot banks by Lohse and Cook pulled Viator into a 6-6 tie. Big John hit both ends of a two-shot foul and DiMuzio swished the first of a one-and-one to push the Lions into a 9-8 advantage — a lead they never relinquished.

Rematch For MSL Cage Showdown

"IT WILL BE tower-power versus fleet-foot for all the marbles."

That's the way one Herald sportswriter put it in describing the Friday, Feb. 25, showdown between the North and South Division leaders in the Mid-Suburban League championship game.

Six staff writers were polled as to how they thought the final MSL standings would look. Two-team races for both top spots proved to be the case with Hersey (tower-power) and Prospect (fleet-foot) emerging the winners.

Nothing would suit Huskie fans more. They still can remember their team being the favorite last season heading into the playoff with Prospect only to see the hosting Knights take the trophy. And so, if these predictions prove correct, Hersey will get its long awaited rematch.

The pollsters cited these reasons for the two teams finishing on top:

Prospect — good scoring balance, plenty of speed and quickness, enough height and a devastating fast break.

Hersey — size, size and more size which produces plenty of high percentage shooting and rebounding.

When it comes right down to it, the tall good team usually beats the small good team. And Hersey, sporting the likes of 6-11 Dave Corrine and 6-9 Andy Paneratz, has the decided height advantage.

Prospect has the big edge at the guard spots with the 36-point scoring punch of John vonBerg and Andy Bitta, but only Tom Bergan (6-7 1/4) can come close to these two Huskie giants.

Therefore, Hersey received the writers' nod as the MSL champion.

Wheeling might have a few things to say about who represents the North, however. The Wildcats finished just one point (54-53) behind the Huskies and received the same number of first-place votes. If 6-11 Roger Wood, probably the best center in the state, can receive some help, the 'Cats will end up hosting the title game.

The South race, as we see it, will be almost as tight. Prospect has the edge on Forest View, 56-52. The Falcons have a nice mix of speed, size and shooting ability along with a hunger for a conference title. Forest View's last trophy was a co-championship with Prospect in the 1965-66 season.

Providing the upsets along the way will be Elk Grove in the South and Arlington and Palatine in the North. The Grenadiers knocked off Wheeling last Friday and could do even greater damage in their own division.

Both the Cardinals and Pirates have run-shoot teams with fairly good size for most conferences, but not the MSL. Both are capable of causing the bigger teams plenty of trouble, but neither seem powerful enough for title contention.

Fremd might be a contender if it was in the South. In the North, the Vikings will have to really work to escape fifth place.

Conant, Schaumburg and Glenbard North — the last three teams in the South — may surprise some teams, but few if any of the front-runners.

That's how we see the races. Now watch Fremd go out and upset its way to the title in the North and Schaumburg sneak into the South top spot.

Hersey Tankers Win, 50-45

Mike Richeart, Bob Bosley and Garrit Rungeolus each chipped in key points to help Hersey's swim team dunk hosting Woodstock Tuesday 50-45.

Richeart was a double winner, breezing home first in the 50 freestyle at 24.0 and capturing 100 free honors at 54.5. He and Bosley were also members of winning freestyle squad along with Jim Ohlin and Bob Larue that clocked in at 3:48.8.

Bosley picked up a first in the 200 free at 2:06.0 and came in tight behind Richeart in the 100 at 57.1. Rungeolus turned in a winning 1:09.5 effort for the backstroke and placed runnerup in the individual medley with a 2:35.0.

At Beverly Lanes

The Polka Dots League continues to have a tight race for first place. The Orange and Aqua teams are tied for the top spot with the Red and Pink teams close behind in a second-place deadlock. . . . Nancy Schiller rolled the high series of the week with a 892 (228-176-133). Tossing the high games were Sue Vogelgesang (261), Betty Pitsch (175), Donna Sadhoki (173) and Barb Weber (170).

Al Zasadny captured yet another first for Herb Parsons' crew, dominating the diving competition with a 176.50 total. Second place showings were also turned in by Larue in the backstroke at 1:09.9 and Craig Bruce in the breaststroke at 1:15.5.

The Huskie varsity team is now 2-6 and the frosh-soph own a 5-1-2 slate after issuing a 80-15 spanking to the Blue Streaks.

In the lower level affair the guests captured all but one blue ribbon with Dave Henderson, Kevin Taylor and Bob Brede all posting double wins.

Henderson captured the 200 free (2:15.7) and 400 free (4:55.0), Taylor the individual medley (2:32.4) and butterfly (1:06.5) and Brede the 50 free (25.3) and 100 free (59.3). Meanwhile freshman Jeff Siler placed on top in the backstroke (1:10.3), Marty Shekleton won the breaststroke (1:18.5) and Jeff Speakman earned diving laurels with 90.90 points.

The Huskie pups also captured both relays with Siler, Dave Johnson, Taylor and Bob Butler winning in the 200 medley at 2:02.0 and Ray Schild, Brede, Butler and Henderson dominating the 400 free relay at 4:07.6.

High-Flying Hawk Five Soars Again

In 96-84 Triumph

by MIKE HUSTON

Harper College, playing its special brand of pressure basketball, rolled to its fourth consecutive victory over Amundsen College at Conant High School Tuesday night, 96-84.

The win boosted the Hawks' Skyway Conference record to 2-0 and their overall mark to 4-1.

Kevin Barthule again led the Hawks in scoring, compiling 32 points, and Jeff Algaier contributed 25 points to the winning effort. Amundsen stayed with the Hawks for the first 12 minutes of the first half until a nine consecutive point outburst. Amundsen tied the score again at 34-34 with six minutes remaining in the half, but Harper reached a 52-43 half time lead and never trailed again.

Harper coach Dave Etienne emphasizes that his pressure game trains his players to capitalize on the physical exhaustion of their opponent. The turning point of the game Tuesday night occurred when Amundsen became physically exhausted.

"I have nothing but praise for the Harper team," said Amundsen coach Don English. "We failed to run our planned offense a couple of times, and this contributed to the difference in the ball game."

Harper's Terry Rohan added 17 points to the victory and Don Spry contributed the rebounding support necessary to offset Amundsen's aggressive and high jumping front line. The Falcons were led by Mel Reynolds' 28 points and Bill Brant's 24 and Joe Bussle's 21.

An excellent shooting team, the Hawks had been connecting on over 50 per cent of their field goal attempts going into the Amundsen game. Despite hitting less than 40 per cent from the field Tuesday, Harper's offense produced enough scoring opportunities to connect on 38 field goals, and 20 free throws added to the offensive punch.

Jeff Boyer returned to the Harper lineup after sustaining a knee injury. The letterman guard scored four points in addition to helping the offense with consistent ball handling and floor play to help keep the game in control.

more on free throw by Carley shot Viator into a commanding 54-38 lead. Follow-up buckets by Cook and Foreman increased the margin to a 58-40 hilt before both coaches began emptying their benches.

The triumph evened the Lions' slate at 2-2, but the mid-week contest puts them under the gun Friday against Holy Cross. If Viator is allowed to run against the Crusaders as they did Tuesday night, practice won't matter anyway.

Harper's 2-0 SC record highlights a 4-1 early season record, and constitutes the best start in Harper's four year basketball history. Amundsen has one conference victory to go with conference losses to Triton and Harper.

English compares the Hawk five favorably with Triton as possible Skyway Conference contenders. "I haven't seen Waukegan play yet, but I understand that they have a very good team. We've played both Triton and Harper, and both must be considered as excellent teams in the conference race. It is still very early to make predictions, however."

The Hawks will take their potent offense, averaging nearly 97 points per game, to Waukegan Friday night for a conference game with Lake County.

Next Tuesday, the Hawks will return home for a non-conference game with Kankakee at Wheeling High School. The 8:00 p.m. game will be a homecoming for Harper's leading scorer Kevin Barthule, who played his high school basketball at Wheeling.

Harper will be aiming for school records at Lake County and at Wheeling as they attempt to win their fifth and sixth basketball games in succession.

Hersey Gymnasts Open With Style

Hersey's gymnastics team inaugurated their 1971-72 campaign in traditional style Tuesday, dominating a double dual meet at home involving Maine South and West Leyden.

Don Von Ebers' hosting contingent rang up 109.92 points — about three less than their kickoff meet a year ago produced — to easily outdistance the Hawks at 91.76 and the Knights at 45.09.

The Huskie frosh-soph unit in fact, which the mentor forsees as a possible state contender in the future, bettered West Leyden's varsity while winning their meet with 67.06 points.

One mishap marred what the coach felt was an otherwise respectable start for his defending state runnerup team. Junior Steve Mackay fell off the high bar and was taken to the hospital. Examinations there showed neck muscle strains and he will be lost to the team for at least several weeks.

"We still have a few other boys out with injury and illness who could have hiked our score tonight," Von Ebers observed afterwards. "All in all though, everything came off about as expected."

One display which the pilot expected and received was a standout trampoline exhibition. The Huskies were pegged as having a strong tramp team and led by Jack McLaughlin they affirmed that billing Tuesday with a 22.85 composite.

McLaughlin hit an 8.15 tempo to win the event and Pat Treacy was a scant .05 behind. Doug Johnson added a 6.6 routine and John Braddock a 6.4 to give the hosts a 1-2-3-4 sweep.

The Huskies finished 1-2 over both opponents in just about every category. Steve Schwabe and Balke Frodin, a pair of juniors, placed first and second in free ex with scores of 6.9 and 6.55 respectively and on the side horse Bruce Freedman was tops at 6.9 with Bob Kornely runnerup at 5.9.

On the high bar Hank Milius turned in a 6.35 and Gary Knutson turned in a 5.45 showing. That was good enough to be 1-2 against Leyden and 2-3 versus Maine. A 6.45 by Tom Dozi and a 6.15 by Knutson netted the top two places in the still rings competition.

Knutson also turned in a 5.85 on the parallel bars. That was tops against the Knights but netted only a third off the Hawks. His 5.07 average also placed second in the meet in the all-around competition.

FINDING A PATH to the basket right down the middle of the lane is Prospect ace John vonBerg as three Palatine defenders, including Doug Fyfe (22) look on. VonBerg used a combination of fancy drives, speed on the fast break, and an outside touch for 27 points to lead the host Knights to an 84-66 victory.

Lester On Program

Howard Lester, athletic coordinator for District 214, will make a major presentation during the second National Conference of High School Directors of Athletics convention in Columbus, Ohio on Dec. 12-15.

Lester will serve as a member of a panel discussing the director and his staff and will concentrate his remarks on "Job Descriptions and Promotions Within The Staff."

The conference is sponsored by the National Federation of State High School Associations and is designed to motivate and provide directors of athletics with information and services affecting their profession.

The keynote address will be given by Major Pete Dawkins, Rhodes scholar, captain of the 1958 Army football team, a unanimous All-American, and winner of the Heisman Trophy and Maxwell Club award. Dawkins will talk on "Athletics in Modern America."

High school directors of athletics from throughout the national will be in attendance, and advance registration indicated approximately 500 directors participating.

The latest in athletic equipment and supplies will be displayed by leading athletic goods manufacturers.

Hersey Frosh Tourney

Hersey will act as host and protector both at their fourth annual freshman basketball tournament, slated to open Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Seven other schools will join the Huskies for the three-day meet. Last year the home team went on to gain championship honors after Maine South had walked off with the first two trophies.

Tuesday's opener will see Mundelein tangle with Maine West while the hosts take on Barrington in an 8:30 tilt. Other entries, all slated for action the following evening are the Hawks, East Leyden, Deerfield and Elk Grove.

The Grenadiers open against Deerfield at 8:30, Dec. 22.

The semi-finals will be conducted Thursday morning with the finals, consolation and championship, kicking off at 7 p.m. Dec. 3. Tickets each session are 50 cents for students and one dollar for adults.

Brodnan Collects 38

John Brodnan, Arlington's "Mr. Everything" last season, seems to be taking on that same title with Northwestern University's freshman team.

Playing his first official game as a Wildcat, the 6-2 guard poured in 38 points to easily lead his team to a 90-68 romp over Elgin Community College last week.

Brodnan tossed in 12 of 20 from the field and was near perfect from the foul line, 14 of 15. He also had two assists and three rebounds in his finest night ever as a basketball player.

The only other Wildcates in double figures were forwards Randy Jackson and Terry Dammeier with 13 and 12, respectively.

Name 50 Finalists

Fifty outstanding high school football players from 33 states have been named finalists in the nationwide competition for the 1971 Gillette "Right Guard Lineman of the Year" Awards.

They were selected by the editors of Letterman magazine from hundreds of deserving high school linemen nominated for these awards across the country.

From these 50 finalists, 14 will be selected as the outstanding high school linemen in the nation. Winners will be chosen on the basis of academic excellence and leadership as well as gridiron play. They will be announced in the February issue of Letterman magazine, as well as in other national and local media.

The "Right Guard Lineman of the Year" program, jointly sponsored by the Toiletries Division of The Gillette Company and Letterman magazine, was initiated to honor the "unsung heroes" of high-school football teams — the linemen.

The Illinois players nominated are Brian Dietrich of Glenbard West, Dennis Lick of Chicago St. Rita, and Mark O'Hare of Mendel Catholic.

Fine Year For Chris

The official statistics on Palatine High grad Chris Andriane at Mulliken (Decatur, Ill.) University this fall showed five touchdown passes caught, 31 receptions for 629 yards, and a school record with an 88-yard punt return. Chris averaged 13.3 yards on punt returns.

Wheeling Tankers Triumph

Behind a tidal wave of new school records Wheeling's swimming team overturned visiting Elgin Larkin 57-31 Tuesday in a non-conference dual.

Doug Cotner's group rewrote the Wildcat log in half a dozen events and tied another mark. Ken Bergman led the deluge with a pair of record eclipsing runs and Bill Modica also contributed a new standard while annexing a pair of victories.

A 'Cat 200 medley relay unit started things off by winning in record time at 1:57.1. Members of the group were Bergman, Glen Lindquist, Mike Stewart and John Harhen.

Bergman then went on to win the 100 Butterfly at 1:01.9 and the 100 breaststroke at 1:12.4. Modica won the 200 free at 2:07 and set his record in the 400 free with a 4:36.1 clocking.

Other marks to fall were in the 100 back, Stewart doing the honors at 1:07.3 and the 400 freestyle relay.

Members of the freestyle relay were John Wellbank, Fred Metz, Modica and Jim Wilbat and their time was 3:57.5. Earlier Wellbank had tied a school record of 26.0 held by Metz in the 50 freestyle even though he settled for second place in the race.

Wheeling also dominated the diving with Jim Manago capturing first place and George Wurtz placing second. They polled 152.85 and 133.90 points respectively.

Other key pointage was netted by sophomore Paul Lindquist with a second in the 200 individual medley and Wilbat with a runnerup finish in the 100 free.

The Wildcats are now 3-0 in dual competition. They will be at McHenry next Tuesday and return home for action with Woodstock two days later.

At Rolling Meadows

An outstanding performance was turned in by Lois Graham in the Thors Thunderbusts League at Rolling Meadows Bowl. She rolled a 551 series with a 190 game . . . Gret Mills continued at a hot pace with a 542 series and 191 game . . . Peggy Jackson came up with a fine 521 series and 198 game while Marge Richter reached 519 with a high of 179 . . . Linda Roney's highs were 492-191 and Barbara Porter hit 481-163 . . . Florence Courson converted the 5-7 split . . . A tight race is developing, with only one game separating the top four teams.

Neptune is in first place, followed by Pluto, Atlas and Saturn.

Sweep For West; Elk Grove Splits

Maine West swept both ends of a double dual while Elk Grove won one and lost one in a non-conference swimming meet at Maine West.

Maine West defeated Elk Grove 58-36 and defeated Elgin 77-19. Elk Grove defeated Elgin 50-45.

Grove took first against both teams. Dettman was second against Elk Grove but first against Elgin. Dahl took third against Elk Grove and second against Elgin.

Bierwirth set a new school record in the 100-yard backstroke with a 59.5 to take first place against both opponents. Toler of Elk Grove was first against Elgin and second against Maine West. Steve Christensen of Elk Grove was third against Elgin and Jeff Cassin of Maine West was third against Elgin.

In the 100-yard breaststroke, Dueball took first place against both teams and Hudson took second against both for Maine West. For Elk Grove, Clarizio was first against Elgin and third against Maine West.

Maine West defeated both teams in the 400-yard freestyle relay with Dahl, Dettman, Lambrechts and Landuyt.

Elk Grove defeated Elgin 60-34 and Maine West 49-45 on the frosh-soph level.

Schaumburg Kings Roll Over Streamwood

The Schaumburg Kings hockey teams again ran roughshod over Streamwood, with five teams — all on different age levels — not only all winning, but running up a total of 43 goals and allowing only four. Three of the five wins were shutouts.

The only game that wasn't a complete rout was on the Juvenile (age 17 and 18) level. Schaumburg won this one 6-3. Bassford scored two goals, his first ones of the season, one on an unassisted breakaway. Woller also got goal No. 1. The other scores were by Scholz, Milhouse and Gawron. Getting assists were Woller, Kreismint, Gotaas, Pope and Gimmier.

In the Midget (age 15 and 16), the Kings won 9-0 as goalie Barry Miller recorded the shutout. Joe Vally scored two goals and an assist while Kirk Cunningham collected three assists and a goal. Other goal-scorers were Mike Dusak, Dennis Pollard, Don Killen and Don Weiss while Jack Kramer and Gary Zarko were credited with assists.

Schaumburg racked up a 9-1 victory in the Bantam (age 13 and 14) game. Bryan Donaldson had a big night with four goals and Barry Kasminski also notched a three-goal hat trick. Wagborne had a goal and two assists and Joe Ciccia added the other goal. Bob Krause got two assists and Mike Pollard, Scott Scholz and Craig Dickson also assisted on goals.

The Pee Wees (age 11 and 12) ran up the biggest victory margin for Schaumburg, 14-0. Hat trickers in this one were Kurt Deppner and Carl Gallo, with each also adding an assist.

Paul Donovan and Craig Landis each scored twice. The other goal-getters were Kurt Kliner, Jim Lynch, Jeff Roos and Joe Irmien. Todd Vulgar assisted twice. Goalie Ron Krause got his first shutout.

Another goalie, Mike Gorman, also recorded his first shutout in the Squirt (age 9 and 10) game, won by Schaumburg, 5-0. Roos scored the first two goals early in the game, both assisted by Jon Melkerson. Schott Phillips accounted for the next two goals, the first assisted by Mike Gaynor and the second unassisted. The final score came from the stick of Dennis Huerlin, assisted by Paul Barucca.

Next games for all Schaumburg teams will be next Monday, Dec. 13 against Naperville from 6:00 to 9:30 p.m. Admission is free.

'Booming' Australian Wool Business About To Go 'Bust'

To Australia's sheep ranchers, the good old days mean $2.40. That's what wool was bringing per pound 20 years back when the world market was vast and brisk and the golden fleece from Down Under had the biggest share of it. But then came synthetics, and Australia's ranchers discovered that what goes up can also go down and down and down and...

BY TOM TIEDE

SYDNEY, Australia — Twenty years ago a legendary Australian sheep rancher checked into one of this city's largest hotels, ordered a weekend of celebration, summoned up orchestras and dancing girls, then tossed a wad of currency on the counter with the explanation that it would take care of everybody.

"Everybody in your party, sir?" the clerk asked, grinning.

"No," the sheepman replied, "everybody in the hotel."

It was the day the fleece turned golden in this country. Always the nation's primary industry, sheepgrowing became an overnight sensation. The Korean war had broken out, creating demand. The United States discovered that sheep fiber was resistant to nuclear fallout, creating more demand. As a result, the price of greasy wool bloated to $2.40 a pound, ranchers began to make rounds in Rolls Royces, and hundreds of thousands of farm country forgotten were able, as it's remembered, "to clean the dung off their boots with nice new $5 and $10 notes."

But then, toward the end of the 1950s, Australian fleece began to look again more greasy than gold. Prices dropped to $1.50. Then $1. Then barely 50 cents a pound. The sheep which so many were riding to riches began to falter and fall.

TODAY, THE PRICE of wool is so low that government subsidies are needed to inflate it to 36 cents a pound. Ranching is so tenuous that the average grower is $3 to $15 in debt on every sheep he owns. And this entire way of Australian life is so "damn frustrating," as one official puts it, that "every now and then we get a report of some poor bloke who goes berserk and shoots down half his herd."

As yet, of course, not many Australian growers have been reduced to killing their sheep. ("It's not worth the price of gunpowder," one of them sighs.) But the frustration here is indeed near the flash point. There are 105,000 growers in the nation (who are responsible for 200,000 family members and 100,000 hired hands) and even optimists admit that a good many of them are facing absolute ruin.

What this means in terms of human suffering is numbing. Albert Forges of the Australian Wool Board says that the total debt of wool growers here is $1.2 billion. He says sheep land value has been cut in half in the last decade. Thus, he predicts, with so many ranchers so far over their heads, and living on almost worthless land, "At least 30,000 families will never recover, no matter what. The only thing that remains for them is to admit it to themselves and give up."

Already, thousands of growers have given up. In the wool town of Bourke, in western New South Wales, the population has declined from 3,500 to 3,000 in two years, the shopping center is lonely, the restaurants deserted and an automobile agency which used to sell 35 cars a month, now is lucky to push six. Increasingly, says a representative from a loan company there, "We'll have a guy in overalls storm into the office, his face red and eyes wet, and plop the deed to his land on our desk. Then he'll storm back out saying 'It's all yours, it's all yours...'"

AND WHILE some growers go under, others wonder when their time will come. One rancher in Western Australia says he owes $75,000 and hasn't had a good night's sleep for more than a year. "I got 20,000 acres I'd like to sell but can't. I got 5,000 sheep I bought in 1968 (at $7 each) and nobody will take them now for $2. It's so bad my wife is working nights as a barmaid. The whole thing is impossible."

Impossible? Indeed. Rancher Hugh Sirl of New South Wales says his wool brought 62 cents a pound in 1967. In 1968, it was 52 cents a pound. In 1969, about 34 cents. And in 1970, only 22 cents. "Now the government supports the price, I get a guaranteed average of 36 cents. But how long can the taxpayer stand that? And anyway, 36 cents isn't enough. I can pay my bills with it, but there isn't enough left over to buy food."

Historically in Australia, wool, not oil, has been politics. In fact, historically in Australia, wool has been Australia. The industry put the nation on the map and brought it into the private chambers of much more rich and powerful global neighbors. So important has the sheep been to the federal development, that when a slump hit the industry in 1940, at least 14 banks closed down.

In recent years, the wool grip on Australia's economy has loosened. Mineral mining has actually replaced it as the primary export. Yet there are still 14 times as many sheep as people (183 million to 12.7 million), the industry still provides half of the world's trade wool, and one of every eight workers still relies on the fiber for income. Thus it is here, as they say, "whenever a lamb gets lost in Australia, everybody gets a club and goes looking for the shepherd."

The shepherd to blame this time, when millions of sheep are lost, may be bulky, earthy Sir William Gunn, K.B.E., C.M.G., chairman of the International Wool Secretariat, of the Australian Wool Board — and the most important, controversial, sheepman in the world. Ranchers everywhere are demanding to know when Sir William is going to do something. But about the only things his harried lieutenants can say is, "Do? Do? Only God and Sir William ever know what Sir William will do."

THE COMPLAINT is that Sir William has not kept pace with the fast-moving scene of international fabrics. While synthetic fibers have been growing 1,800 per cent in two decades, Gunn has stubbornly maintained a turn-of-the-century attitude toward mankind's need for wool. While consumers from Singapore to Seattle became enthralled with modern wash-and-wear, permanent-crease, stretch-knit fabrics, Gunn stiffly sniffed that it was nothing serious. While whole nations such as United States went from using 2.0 pounds of wool-per-person-per-year (in 1964) to 1.2 pounds-per-person-per-year.

The idea, of course, is to attract as well as satisfy people. The idea also, according to Wool Board research director Dr. Arthur Farnsworth, is to give the product a new image: "We want people to know they can wear wool in the summer. We want them to realize they can toss wool garments in the washing machine. We want them to think of wool as resilient, water-resistant, lightweight, insulating, comfortable, versatile and most important, fashionable."

That's some want. Considering that some consumers think of wool mostly as itchy — or expensive. Yet the industry thinks it will succeed with its new look for new demand. In fact, the industry knows it must succeed. It is at bottom, it can sink no farther, it's a desperate case of industrial either-or.

"Either we start supplying every Chinaman with wool socks," says a slightly smiling woolman, "or we invent some kind of moth that only eats synthetics, or we get used to the idea of watching a hell of a lot of sheep ranchers starve."

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

(in 1970), Gunn did now show the leadership of alarm.

The trouble with Sir William, says large rancher and political contributor Ron Hunter, is that: "He's a part-time hobbyist. He's got a dozen different personal irons in the fire. Right now, he's trying to peddle off big plots of his own land to American investors. How's that for arrogance? While the wool industry is dying, the wool chairman is off to the United States selling away his holdings."

The criticism of the wool chairman, of course, is not all together legitimate. Gunn is only one factor in the decline of the Australian industry. He is not the only old-liner. Even wool executives here admit wool has always been insufferably, well, woolly. "We never innovate," says one. "While others have been inventing permanent press and wash-ability, wool executives have sat dead on their butts."

THEN, TOO, there is the problem of the wool industry's traditional and outdated structure. It still stoutly maintains the antiquated auction method of international sales, (which means growers are at the mercy of people whose business is to buy cheap and sell dear). Also, the industry has historically and agonizingly been under the thumb of the federal government (which finances the executive levels of wool growing and thus can veto or demand any critical action).

So it is there are many people and things to blame for the present wool dilemma. Yet, fairly or not, Sir William Gunn, the so-called "Bad Shepherd," gets the commander's share: "I'm broke," says a rancher in Victoria. "I have three kids and Christmas is coming. I'd like to break a rod over Sir William's fat head."

Ideas For Indoors And Out

Let Your House Say 'Merry Christmas'

by FRAN HECKART

Spruce up your home this holiday season with the real thing. Nothing says welcome this time of year more than a houseful of fresh greenery and signs of Christmas decking the halls and every nook and cranny.

Start decorating outdoors with tubs of evergreens, wreaths and garlands of artificial holly draped around the door.

If you're really ambitious and like a more elaborate touch, fashion a giant walk-through wreath for the front doorway. The addition of lights to the wreath would add a bit of "fairyland" effect.

A member of the Arlington Heights Garden Club, Mrs. Richard Teutsch, says that she has toyed with this idea for many years.

"However, you have to have a special type of house to use a wreath like that," she said. The ideal placement would be to place a horseshoe shaped wreath around the front door. Eliminating the lower arc of the wreath solves any problem of a careless mailman tripping and sending your eight-foot creation crashing to the ground.

IF YOU HAVE a table in the entryway, clear it and arrange a cluster of scented candles. The candlesticks needn't match. Mix crystal with silver, brass with old wood or pewter. Actually, the more variety, the more interesting the arrangement. However, a dominant color adds continuity throughout the rooms.

Baskets brimming with dried fruits, nuts and raisins, cachepots made of candy canes and heaped with holly, or an old pewter platter piled high with shiny red apples will be lovely.

Christmas bygones can be salvaged if you have an eye for ingenuity. Re-use parts of tired arrangements to create new pieces for dazzling holiday effects.

A collection of pine cones, some glittery baubles, a perky bow and an assortment of outsized candles grouped together make an attractive table arrangement.

Make a candle holder of artificial fruit for a simple holiday centerpiece. Or toss colored and glittery Christmas balls into a large brandy snifter.

A DRAMATIC BACKDROP to a buffet table can be made using a candelabrum. Holiday bayberry candles, fragrant pine boughs and Christmasy wired beads turn a simple candelabrum into a festive decoration.

Simple, dead (but sappy) brush, sprayed white, glittered and strung up with Italian lights and gold beads can be used in a centerpiece scheme. Coordinated pieces such as chandeliers and door wreaths made from glittered branches are elegant but inexpensive decorations. Mirrors and chandeliers can also be swagged with yards of gay plaid fabric, ropes of bright wool or any seasonal greenery such as evergreen, laurel leaves, holly or balsam. Artificial garlands of holly and mistletoe are also available. These create a festive effect both indoors and out.

A Christmas tree fashioned of chicken wire, stuffed with sugarplum confections and anchored to a Styrofoam base makes an adaptable centerpiece for hanging candy canes, encircling with "eyelash" or whatever strikes your fancy.

THE BEST DECORATIONS are the simplest. A wicker basket of red and gold apples will do wonders for dull corner tables. Nosegays in coffee mugs, greenery in berry baskets, liberal dashes of wheat, grapes, lemons, pears and apples all add extra spice.

Tie bright bows bedecked with a sprig of holly on coat hangers and hang a festive wreath inside the hall closet door.

Even the kitchen seems cheerier with a few simple holiday trimmings. Mrs. Donald Moser, a decorator for Mangel's Florist in Long Grove, combined greenery, inexpensive Mexican tinware and bows of red and white gingham for an attractive decoration that would dress up any kitchen.

According to Mrs. Moser, one of the easiest and prettiest holiday trimmings is a branch of noble fir. The branches range in price from less than $2 up. Each branch has the unique shape of a Christmas tree because they are taken from the high fir limbs growing above the timberline.

DECORATIONS OF YOUR choice can be added to the tree-shaped branch to be hung on the wall with wire. Or the branch can be mounted in a do-it-yourself picture frame with matted background look.

If you prefer fresh flowers, Mrs. Emil Fick of Mount Prospect, an experienced garden show judge, suggests combining a few fresh red and/or white carnations to greenery and artificial flowers. Once

Teens Put Ideas On Film

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Teenagers and grade school youngsters winning prizes in a national movie-making competition have definite ideas about the kinds of films they'd make for themselves and grown-ups, given the chance.

Preteen girls should produce cartoons; preteen boys, gangster flicks; and teenagers opt for humor, science fiction and social commentary films.

That pattern developed when the 25 winners, interviewed while in New York to collect their prizes in the ninth annual Kodak teen-age movie contest, talked of the kinds of movies they'd like to make for showing at local movie houses.

Judy Anderson and Jerry Kemp, both 11 and from Petaluma, Calif., represented Mrs. Patsy Knight's fifth grade class at Bernard Eldredge School. Their prize-winning movie, "The Impossible Dream," was a class effort.

"GANGSTER MOVIES for everybody," Jerry said when asked what kind of movies he'd make. "Cartoons but not for grown-ups," Judy answered.

The grand prize winners, Torv Carlsen and Christy Valle, both 18, from Stockton, Calif., agreed on social commentary films as good local box office fare.

"My film would show racism, prejudice and phony moral values that go with living in the white suburbs," Miss Valle said.

"My films," Carlsen said, "would give the public a picture of itself. I would show them how they behave. People aren't objective about their own lives."

More than 11,000 youngsters entered the contest. The prizewinning films had a wide range of themes. "The Impossible Dream," the movie made by the fifth grade class was via puppet animation. A child dreams he is a peanut. Upon awakening, he looks in the mirror and finds his dream has come true. He is a peanut.

AS A PEANUT, he tumbles down the stairs and calls to his Mom — "Hey, Mom, I have something to tell you." His Mom is busy making pancakes in the kitchen. She asks what he wants.

"It may sound silly, Mom, but I've turned into a peanut."

"Well, isn't everyone?" his Mom replies, now standing in the kitchen doorway, quite visible. His Mom is a peanut dressed in an apron.

Frank Leto, 18, of Port Washington N.Y., in a seven minute film reports on the "Invasion of the Zeek-O's." The hero of the cartoon is a character called Mirrorman, who in an attempt to make everything in the world look the same, invents the Zeek-O-Burger. Horrors. The Zeek-O-Burger devours Long Island.

This happens when Mirrorman sets up a series of Zeek-O-Burger franchises. Instead of being digested the burgers reduce the human brain to chopped meat.

AS THE BURGER plague spreads, the inhabitants become Zombie-like and are powerless to stop Zeek-O-Burgerism. Mirrorman diversifies. He franchises Zeek-O clothing stores, restaurants and gas stations until everything on Long Island looks the same.

The judges said the quality of current entries was so good that it produced the finest prize-winning films in the history of the nine-year-old contest.

Some that won in the earlier contests, by comparison, wouldn't even be considered prize-winning material today.

What's prompting the preteens and teen-agers to make movies?

Listen to some of their answers: —"I haven't seen enough people laughing, so I thought I should create a funny film," said Jolson Diaz, 10, of Corona, N.Y.

—"I ride my bicycle a lot and get disgusted with my lungs throbbing and my eyes burning," said Garr Montalban, of North Hollywood, Calif. "Then I got this idea to ride on my bicycle and catch on film what I had seen." The result: his film on anti-pollution. It is called "All the Confusion."

KITCHEN TRIMMING. Mexican tinware, greenery and a bright gingham bow produce a festive kitchen decoration. Created by Mrs. Donald Moser, the decoration is available at Mangel's Florist in Long Grove.

Buffalo Grove Juniors Meet

The Association includes two circles: Deborah which meets evenings, and Dorcas which meets afternoons. A service project of Deborah Circle has been making layettes for Navajo infants at Fort Defiance; as a Christmas project members are donating toys to the fire department for distribution among needy children. Dorcas Circle's service projects have included baking goods for the Alexian Brothers Medical Center Auxiliary sale; donating a food basket at Thanksgiving and Christmas and sewing for the Junior Choir.

Bride Sews Wedding Ensembles

Sharlene Karnatz of Palatine was an especially busy bride-to-be for several months prior to her Nov. 6 wedding. She spent many hours after work sewing her bridal gown and those of her attendants. Her own gown was fashioned of white velvet and her attendants' in deep purple velvet trimmed with pale blue ribbon.

Sharlene became the bride of Jeff Berg of Barrington at four in the afternoon in Immanuel Lutheran Church, Palatine. A reception followed for 180 guests in the Barrington Room of Barrington Park District.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Karnatz, 833 W. Ellis Ave., Palatine, and Jeff's parents are Mrs. Lorraine Berg of Barrington and James Berg of Chicago.

THE BRIDE had the help of close relatives in making her wedding ensemble. Her grandmother, Mrs. Louis Kleiner, crocheted the lace that accented the gown at the Empire waistline and edged the bell-shaped sleeves. Her aunt, Mrs. Judi Szabados, made the seven-foot veil edged in lace that Sharlene wore with a simple headband of velvet overlaid with lace.

She wore her grandmother's heirloom necklace and carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations, baby's breath and a touch of purple statice.

Her maid of honor was Donna Burrow of Palatine, and bridesmaids were Sue Reichers of Carpentersville and her three sisters: Sharon, Shirley and Sherry Karnatz.

THEIR DEEP purple velvet dresses were Empire styled with bell-shaped sleeves. The only trim was a narrow pale blue velvet ribbon at the waistline that formed a bow in the back. The girls carried colonial bouquets of gold pompons, baby's breath and purple statice.

Also appearing in the bridal procession and dressed as a miniature of the other attendants was Lana Wordel, 6, of Palatine, a cousin of the bride. She was flower girl for the double ring rites, carrying a natural straw basket of the gold, white and purple flowers.

Mike Moyzis of Chicago, cousin of the groom, was best man. Ushers included cousins of the bride, Raymond Karnatz of Des Plaines and John Karnatz of Arlington Heights; Ralph Stasiak, Des Plaines; and Stan Wojciechowski of Carpentersville.

GREETING GUESTS after the wedding and at the reception, Mrs. Karnatz was attired in a mint green ensemble and Mrs. Berg in gold velvet and chiffon.

The newlyweds are living in Palatine at 314 N. Smith St. since their two-week honeymoon. They toured the Black Hills, Wyoming, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico.

Both Sharlene and Jeff work for General Telephone Directory Co. She is a '70 graduate of Fremd High School and he was graduated from Barrington High in '69.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Berg

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

Letters, we get letters, some of which ask us to repeat the formula for making your own fertilizer.

To do-it-yourselfers joining the organic gardening ranks, making fertilizer is as easy as throwing together a macramé belt for your favorite neighborhood hippie.

Simply choose one or more of each of the three basic groups for a complete plant food that has all the major and minor elements plants need to thrive.

NITROGEN (N) GROUP

(Select One)

Fish emulsion, bone meal, weeds, grass clippings, blood meal, compost, peanut shells, tankage, cottonseed meal, sludge, vegetable residue, hot manure (rabbit, hen, sheep or horse).

PHOSPHORUS (P) GROUP

(Select One)

Bone meal or other meal, dried blood, rock phosphate, colloidal phosphate, basic slag.

POTASH (K) GROUP

(Select One)

Wood ashes, kelp, seaweed, cocoa shells, plant residues, cold manure (cow or pig), granite dust or greensand marl. Put them all together; they spell, big, fat juicy geraniums or whatever.

Another idea to keep on tap is that a soil test prior to your fertilizer-making project, will give you a clue as to whether you should go heavy on one particular group. Soil that is low in an element produces plants that tip off the grower: "Look at how light green my leaves are. That means I need nitrogen, man!"

Plants deficient in phosphorus show up as spindly stems, with hardly enough oomph for reproduction.

Poor root growth or root crops like potatoes or carrots that "bomb" are the plant's way of showing lack of potassium (or potash to you).

Next On The Agenda

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma will hold its annual Christmas auction of antique and hand-crafted items Monday in the home of Mrs. John Kretekos, 110 Hatten St., Mount Prospect. All northwest alumnae are invited to the 8 p.m. meeting.

ST. ZACHARY A & R

Next Monday at 8 p.m. in the parish room of St. Zachary's School, 567 W. Algonquin, the Altar and Rosary Society will celebrate the parish's tenth anniversary.

A brief glimpse into past parish activities will be provided by means of photos, movies, and several special guests who have been instrumental in the development of the parish. The church's history will be traced from the first Masses at the Herzog School to the present church of more than 2,000 families, under the guidance of Rev. Father William P. Cunningham, pastor.

In addition, all who attend will vote for the best dressed doll in the Christmas doll dressing contest. After winners are announced, the dolls will be distributed as Christmas gifts to needy children.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: A friend who reads everything concerning food in newspapers, magazines and so on has always been of great help in advising what to buy for the freezer. She says pork is plentiful now and it would stay well in the freezer for six months or so if kept at zero. I've always thought pork too fat to fool with and wonder if it has qualities I'm not aware of. Have you researched this at any time?

—Mrs. H.J.H.
Your friend is absolutely right. Pork today is leaner and better than ever before, and not only is it one of the most digestible meats, it's a good source of high quality protein and several important nutrients. Get yourself a few good recipes and make the most of this particular surplus.

Dear Dorothy: There has been plenty in your column about black walnuts but thought your readers might be interested in one unusual fact about them — black walnuts never get rancid. I don't know why but you can keep them in the shell (or even shelled) from one year to the next and they stay fresh.

Dear Dorothy: Went visiting my daughter and her newest arrival while I was still "doctoring" for some exzema on my hands. I explained to her that I wouldn't be able to handle the baby because the salve hadn't yet cleared things up. She just handed me the tube of stuff put on the baby's bottom when there is any trace of rash. Two applications and the eczema cleared up — and has stayed clear. And you should see my doctor's bill for all the prior examination and prescribing!

Candy Christmas Ornaments

Makes 8 Balls

- 6 cups puffed rice
- 1/4 cup water
- 1 cup light corn syrup
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Heat puffed rice in shallow baking pan in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) about 10 minutes. Pour into greased large bowl. Combine water, syrup, vinegar and salt in saucepan.

Bring to boil, stirring occasionally. Cook to soft ball stage (236 degrees) or until syrup dropped into cold water forms soft ball. Remove from heat; stir in butter.

Pour over puffed rice, stirring until evenly coated. With greased hands, shape to form 8 balls. Decorate with ribbons, glitter, metallic thread and other Christmas decorations or wrap balls in colored cellophane. Tie with ribbon and hang from tree.

TREE TRIMMING TREATS

Always a holiday highlight for young and old alike is a tree trimming party. It's an occasion that calls for special Christmas treats — especially since the children will want to save some for Santa to sample during his mysterious visit.

For a centerpiece good enough to eat, fashion a huge candy cane from puffed rice and melted marshmallows. Crushed candy accounts for the characteristic peppermint flavor. Have a large bowl of Santa's Snack Mix handy for nibbling while decorating. Puffed wheat and rice, corn chips, pretzels and nuts are a tasty combination roasted with seasoned butter.

It wouldn't be a Christmas party without cookies — this time Kris Kringles in the likeness of jolly Santa himself. Count on lots of help decorating the delicious oatmeal cookie cutouts with coconut beards and frosting hats.

Part of the fun will be making some of the tree trimmings. Puffed rice candy balls become personalized ornaments when tied with ribbon and decorated with sequins, glitter, ribbon or colored cellophane.

Kris Kringles

Makes about 2 1/2 dozen cookies

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked

Beat butter until creamy. Gradually add sugar, beating until fluffy. Add egg; beat until light and fluffy. Blend in vanilla. Sift together flour and salt. Add to creamed mixture; blend well. Stir in oats. Chill dough for several hours or overnight.

Roll out on lightly floured board or canvas to 1/8-inch thickness. Cut into Santa shapes. Place on greased cookie sheets. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees). 10 to 12 minutes; cool. Decorate as desired.

Candy Cane

Makes 1 candy cane centerpiece

- 5 cups puffed rice
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 4 cups miniature marshmallows
- 1/4 cup crushed peppermint candies
- Thick confectioner's sugar frosting, tinted Red

Heat puffed rice in shallow baking pan in preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) about 10 minutes. Pour into greased large bowl. Melt together butter and marshmallows over low heat, stirring occasionally. Stir in peppermint candies. Pour over cereal, stirring until evenly coated.

With greased hands, shape to form a 21-inch candy cane about 2 1/2 inches wide on a piece of aluminum foil. Pipe lines of frosting diagonally across cane at 1-inch intervals to form stripes on cane. Let set about 1 hour.

Santa's Snack Mix

Makes about 8 cups

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon parsley flakes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- 1/4 teaspoon onion salt
- 2 cups puffed wheat
- 2 cups puffed rice
- 2 cups corn chips
- 1 cup thin pretzel sticks
- 1 cup dry roasted mixed nuts

Place butter in 13x9-inch baking pan. Place in preheated very slow oven (250 degrees) about 10 minutes or until butter is melted. Stir in paprika, parsley flakes, salt, thyme and onion salt. Add puffed wheat, puffed rice, corn chips, pretzel sticks and nuts, tossing lightly to combine. Bake in preheated oven (250 degrees) 45 minutes, stirring occasionally.

HOLIDAY BRUNCH BUFFET-STYLE

Once the tree is trimmed, plans can begin for more festivities — like a yuletide brunch. Plan it simple yet elegant from menu to table service. Buffet dining makes serving easy for the hostess. And guests are sure to enjoy the relaxed, informal atmosphere.

Pancakes become party fare when layered with a scrumptious apricot-cream cheese filling. The pancake "sandwiches" are festively topped with apricot-maraschino cherry flowers. Maple-blended syrup, served from a warmer on the table, is the perfect flavor accompaniment.

Complete the holiday menu with sausage links and cranberry juice cocktail. For a touch of elegance, serve the chilled juice in stemmed glasses with a lemon ring garnish.

Apricot-Nut Fluff Pancakes

Makes 4 servings

Filling:

- One 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese, softened
- One 8 1/4-oz. can unpeeled apricot halves, well drained
- 1/4 cup slivered almonds

Pancakes:

- 2 cups complete pancake mix
- 1 1/2 cups water
- Maple-blended syrup, heated

For filling, beat cream cheese until fluffy; beat in apricots. Stir in almonds; set aside. For pancakes, place mix and water in bowl. Stir lightly until batter is fairly smooth. For each pancake, pour 1/4 cup batter onto hot, lightly greased griddle. Turn pancakes when edges look cooked. Turn only once.

To serve, spoon filling between 2 pancakes. Garnish each serving with apricot halves and maraschino cherry halves if desired. Top with warm syrup.

Seafood Favorites In Any Language

Although fish and shellfish are universally popular the year 'round, many countries have favorite seafood recipes that are a traditional part of their "Twelve Days of Christmas" celebrations. As a holiday surprise the National Marine Fisheries Service takes you on an imaginary tour to sample selected international seafood favorites.

Tour festivities start in Denmark with "Sild Agurk Snitter" or Herring Cucumber Canapes and the Christmas greeting: "Glaedelig Jul!" The Danes love Christmas, and among their traditions are, a "julenag" for birds (a sheaf of corn hung up on a pole), and herring served in a sour cream sauce with crisp cucumber slices on party rye bread. This canape from Copenhagen will add a dashing Danish twist to your holiday entertaining.

The next stop for an appetizer is Germany, the land of Christmas trees, where we are saluted with: "Froehliche Weihnachten!" Their specialty is "Kre-vetten In Bier" — or Shrimp in Beer. Appetites tingle with this new continental combination of protein-rich shrimp in a spicy sauce made interesting with beer and lemon juice. You'll be the "leichen" of the cocktail crowd with this unique seafood appetizer.

In France the late Christmas Eve supper is known as "le reveillon," and one of the favorites served might be "Oeufs Farcis Au Anguille Poisson" — or Eggs Stuffed with Smoked Fish. Similar to our American standby, stuffed or deviled eggs, the French version with smoked fish has a new flavor "par excellence." So easy to do and so tantalizingly different, you'll say "merci" for the recipe as well as the greeting: "Joyeux Noel!"

"God Jul Och Ett Gott Nytt Ar" is the way Sweden says "Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year." Scandinavia is renowned as the home of the smorgasbord which is particularly festive during the holidays. The indispensable food on this occasion is "Lutefisk" or Dried Codfish, prepared in their own special way. These hearty seafaring adventurers have shared their treasured recipe with us. Give it a try, and serve with lingonberries or our own native cranberries. There's no place like home for the holidays! Our quick tour is over and we are anticipating happy reunions with families and friends. Get-togethers and Holiday Oyster Stew are American traditions, and a stew that's easy-to-do will perk up any occasion. Fish and shellfish in their myriad forms bring a refreshing sparkle to the bustling holiday season; they are also wonderful time-savers for the busy on-the-go shopper.

SILD AGURK SNITTER
(Herring Cucumber Canapes)
1 jar (12 ounces) herring in sour cream
1 large cucumber
2 teaspoons salt
3 cups ice water
1 loaf (8 ounces) party rye bread
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Paprika
Wash cucumber. Score cucumber by running a sharp-tined fork down the length of the cucumber from end to end. Cut crosswise into very thin slices. Place in a bowl. Pour salted ice water over cucumbers and let stand 30 minutes to crisp. Drain on absorbent paper. Spread bread with butter. Overlap 2 slices cucumber on each slice of bread. Top cucumber with 1 large or 2 small pieces of herring. Sprinkle with paprika. Makes approximately 24 canapes.

KREVETTES IN BEER
(Shrimp in Beer)
2 pounds shrimp, fresh or frozen
3 tablespoons chopped onion
¼ cup melted fat or oil
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup beer or ale
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce
¼ teaspoon thyme
1 small bay leaf
2 teaspoons chopped parsley
Thaw frozen shrimp. Peel shrimp, remove sand veins, and rinse with cold water. Cook onion in fat until tender. Add shrimp and cook for 3 to 5 minutes or until shrimp are pink, stirring frequently. Blend in flour and salt. Add beer, lemon juice, and hot pepper sauce; cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add thyme and bay leaf; cook over low heat 5 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Remove bay leaf. Sprinkle with parsley. Serve hot as an appetizer or entree. Serves 6.

OEUF'S FARCIS AU ANGUILE POISSON
(Eggs Stuffed with Smoked Fish)
1 pound smoked whitefish or other smoked fish
12 hard cooked eggs
2/3 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
Dash pepper
Paprika
Remove skin and bones from fish. Flake the fish. Remove shells from eggs. Cut eggs in half lengthwise and remove the yolks. Force yolks through a fine sieve. Combine all ingredients except egg whites and paprika. Fill egg whites with fish mixture. Sprinkle with paprika. Chill. Makes 24 appetizers.

LUTEFISK
(Dried Codfish)
3 pounds lutefisk, fresh or frozen
3 quarts boiling water
3 tablespoons salt
Butter or margarine, melted
Lingonberries or whole cranberry sauce
Thaw frozen lutefisk. Soak in cold water in a covered container in the refrigerator for 24 hours. Drain. Skin fish and cut into 2-inch pieces. Wrap fish loosely in cheesecloth and place in boiling salted water. Cover and simmer for 5 to 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Drain. Serve lutefisk with melted butter and lingonberries. Serves 6.

HOLIDAY OYSTER STEW
2 cans (12 ounces each) oysters, fresh or frozen
2 slices chopped bacon
1/3 cup chopped onion
1 can (10¼ ounces) frozen condensed cream of potato soup
4 cups oyster liquor and half and half cream
1¼ teaspoons salt
Dash white pepper
Chopped parsley
Thaw frozen oysters. Drain oysters, reserving liquor. Fry bacon until crisp. Remove bacon from fat. Cook onion in bacon fat until tender. Add soup, oyster liquor, cream, and seasonings; heat, stirring occasionally. Add bacon and oysters; heat for 3 to 5 minutes longer or until edges of oysters begin to curl. Sprinkle with parsley. Serves 6.

Cranberry Catsup
1 pound (4 cups) fresh cranberries
½ cup cider vinegar
2/3 cup water
1 1/3 cup packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
1/8 teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons butter or margarine
Wash cranberries. In medium saucepan combine cranberries, water and vinegar. Cook until skins pop and are soft and tender; 8 to 10 minutes. Put through a sieve. Add sugar, spices and salt. Simmer until mixture begins to thicken, about 5 minutes. Stir in butter. Fill sterilized jars and store at room temperature until cool. Refrigerate if desired. Makes 2 cups.

Mrs. Daniel O'Keefe

Adding Norse Flavor

by LOIS SEILER

In deference to her Norwegian ancestry, Mrs. Daniel O'Keefe of Ount Prospect always serves a typical Norwegian meal during the holidays.

Although it is customary in most Scandinavian homes to serve a smorgasbord on Christmas Eve, Janis O'Keefe's husband Dan is a New Englander and likes the traditional turkey dinner. So Janis usually makes her lefse and lutefisk some other time during the holiday season.

The lutefisk is a dried codfish which has been soaked in lye.

"In Norwegian stores, it is usually kept in a barrel of salt water," said Janis. "However," she added, "I buy it frozen."

She ties the lutefisk in cheese cloth, cooks it in boiling water and serves it with melted butter.

The lefse is made from leftover mashed potatoes mixed with flour. Individual pieces of dough are rolled very thin, then lifted up with a lefse stick and transferred to a hot pancake griddle.

Janis cooks the thin lefse "pancakes" on both sides and stacks them up between a tea towel. They steam under the towel and are left there to cool.

Soft and pliable, the lefse are spread with butter and may be sprinkled with cinnamon and sugar, if desired. They are eaten as a substitute for bread with the lutefisk. Janis also serves boiled potatoes and lingonberries with this meal.

"LEFTOVER LEFSE should be stored in the refrigerator, and tastes just as good the next day," she said.

Janis regards cooking as a hobby and likes to try new recipes and make different ethnic dishes. At Christmas she always bakes several loaves of stollen, most of which she gives away as gifts.

This German Christmas bread contains chopped almonds, raisins and candied cherries and is flavored with almond extract. Icing is drizzled on the top.

"If wrapped well, it will keep at least two weeks," said Janis.

For gifts, she wraps the stollen in plastic wrap and forms foil around the bottom and sides so that the pretty, frosted top may be seen. Then she ties it up with a festive ribbon.

Janis serves stollen with coffee and always has it for Christmas breakfast with scrambled eggs. It tastes very good toasted, too.

The stollen makes a big hit with the O'Keefe's sons, Dan, a senior at the University of Illinois, and Dave, a fifth grader at Busse School.

In addition to working part time as a receptionist for Chapman Electrolysis at Randhurst, Janis keeps busy with all types of craftwork. An expert seamstress, she also does a great deal of creel work and makes pressed flower pictures.

LUTEFISK

2 pounds lutefisk
Tie the fish in cheesecloth and drop into boiling water. Cook for ten minutes. Drain, cut into serving-size pieces and serve with melted butter.

LEFSE

2½ cups leftover mashed potatoes
1 cup all-purpose flour
Mix ingredients thoroughly and let stand a half hour.

Take a piece of dough the size of an egg and roll out very thin to about ten inches in diameter. Use a pastry cloth and cloth-covered rolling pin generously sprinkled with flour.

Using a lefse stick, lift up lefse, shake off excess flour and transfer to a moderately hot, ungreased pancake griddle.

(The piece of wood inserted in the hem of a window shade makes a good lefse stick, or a piece of molding one-inch in width and 1/8 to 1/4 inch may be used. The end should be smoothed out to make it easier to slip under the dough without tearing it.)

Bake lefse on griddle until bubbly and brown spots appear on underside, about 2 to 3 minutes. Turn and bake on other side 2 to 3 minutes.

Remove and put between cloth or tea towel and let lefse steam and cool. Keep stacking them this way. Wipe excess flour off griddle occasionally.

When lefse have all cooled, spread with butter (and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar, if desired) and roll up. Eat as you would a bread. Store leftovers in refrigerator.

STOLLEN

2/3 cup milk
1/3 cup shortening
1/3 cup granulated sugar
1 cake yeast or 1 package dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 egg
½ teaspoon almond extract
¾ to 3½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup chopped almonds
¾ cup golden raisins
1/3 cup halved candied cherries
Confectioners sugar icing

Scald milk; add shortening and sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cool to lukewarm.

Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water. Add well-beaten egg, almond extract and yeast to the milk.

Blend in two cups flour and beat by hand until smooth. Stir in almonds, raisins and cherries. Add remaining flour and mix until smooth.

Cover and let rise in warm place until double in bulk, about 1½ hours. Punch down; knead lightly just a few minutes until smooth and elastic.

Pat into a 12-inch circle. Fold dough in half but not quite to the edge. Place on a greased baking sheet; brush top with melted shortening. Let rise a half hour in a warm place.

Bake at 350 degrees about 30 to 35 minutes, or until golden brown. Cool. Drizzle a confectioners sugar icing over the top. Makes one large loaf. A double recipe makes three medium-size loaves.

Wrapped tightly in Saran and foil, the stollen will keep at least two weeks. It also freezes well.

MAKING LEFSE is a traditional part of Mrs. Daniel O'Keefe's holiday preparations. The lefse is made from leftover mashed potatoes mixed with flour. Mrs. O'Keefe rolls pieces of dough very thin, then transfers the dough to a hot griddle with a lefse stick. The lefse is then steamed under a hot towel.

Old-Fashioned Christmas Candies

Today, when so much of our food is prepared, processed, packaged and paid for with cold cash, we can still look forward to Christmas as a time to cook things from scratch, stirring in a lot of the love, soul and affection that's left out of the convenience meals our families so often eat on busy days throughout the year.

Candy is a traditional part of Christmas and a great thing to make in your own kitchen, beating in plenty of love and good humor. Candy makes a delightful present for anyone on your gift list and a delectable sweet snack to be set out on the coffee table for friends and family to enjoy — without guilt at least this one time a year!

Old South Pralines, rich and sweet with brown sugar, cream and chopped pecans, are the old-fashioned confections that were served by gracious hostesses at Christmas balls in New Orleans years ago. The candy can be poured over pecan halves for the traditional effect or chopped nuts can be stirred into the sweet syrup before beating. Beating the candy is an important part of its success. It should be beaten until it loses its gloss and starts to thicken, but not until it becomes so thick it can't be dropped by spoonfuls onto a buttered cookie sheet to set.

Eggnog Mallow Fudge is a new variation of an old favorite. Holiday eggnog is substituted for cream for a festive flavor and marshmallows give it a smooth texture with no beating at all. And at a marathon candy-making session you know how important this can be! Semi-sweet chocolate pieces are a convenient way to achieve a deep dark fudgy taste and traditional chopped walnuts add texture and taste appeal.

Sour Cream Fudge is snowy white vanilla fudge that gets its piquant flavor and smooth texture from dairy sour cream. This fudge should be beaten until the candy is creamy and has lost its gloss, but you must be able to pour it into the pan. Red and green candied cherries and chopped walnuts stirred in after the beating add a colorful holiday touch and delicious flavor and texture.

So this year make it a real Christmas. Turn off the TV, gather the whole family into the kitchen, set out the pots and pans, the nuts and the chocolate and have a real family candy cook-in.

OLD SOUTH PRALINE

1 cup sugar
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
¾ cup light cream or half and half
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup coarsely chopped pecans

Butter sides of heavy 2-quart saucepan. Place sugars, cream and salt in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved. Turn heat to medium and cook until mixture boils. Reduce heat and continue cooking to 234 degrees on candy thermometer. Remove from heat. Add butter and vanilla; do not stir. Cool 5 minutes. Stir in nuts. Beat until candy loses gloss and becomes thick (about 300 strokes or 2 minutes). Quickly spoon candy mixture, by teaspoonfuls, onto buttered cookie sheets. If mixture gets too thick to drop from spoon add hot water, a teaspoonful at a time. Yield: 36 pieces.

Note: To prepare traditional pralines, follow the recipe above, omitting chopped pecans. Arrange pecan halves in clusters of three on sookie sheets before preparing candy. After candy is beaten quickly spoon candy mixture over pecan halves.

EGGNOG MALLOW FUDGE

1½ cups sugar
6 ounces petite marshmallows (about 3 cups)
2/3 cup eggnog
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon corn syrup
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 cup (6-oz. pkg.) semi-sweet stems cut flush to the cap. You can use the stems for soup or other purposes. Reserve browned caps.

In a heavy paper bag shake livers, a few at a time, in flour seasoned with salt and pepper, until evenly coated. Brown the livers in the skillet where bacon and onions were cooked, adding a little more fresh bacon fat when necessary as you proceed.

When all the livers are browned (don't overcook them), line a large baking pan or dish with foil and distribute livers evenly. Now sprinkle the onion rings and bacon over the top and distribute mushrooms with caps up. Drizzle overall with peach (or other favorite fruit) brandy. Bake 30 minutes in a 375 degree oven. Serve hot as a main dish or remove to chafing dish.

FOR AN attractive cold appetizer, prepare these pickled mushrooms as suggested by Mary Denison of East Lansing, Mich., a longtime friend and excellent cook.

Combine 2/3 cup tarragon vinegar, ¼ cup salad oil, 1 medium clove garlic crushed, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 tablespoons water, 1½ teaspoon salt, dash of bottled hot pepper sauce, and freshly ground black pepper.

Slice an onion thinly and separate into rings. Add to marinade along with 2 pints of fresh mushrooms washed and with stems cut flush with the caps. Use only the caps. Cover and refrigerate 8 hours or overnight, stirring several times. Drain and serve as appetizers. Left-over marinade can be used again or to marinate steaks.

If fresh mushrooms are not available, use 2 6-ounce cans of broiled mushroom crowns.

chocolate pieces

1 cup chopped walnuts
Butter sides of heavy 3-quart saucepan. Place sugar, marshmallows, eggnog, butter, corn syrup and salt in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved. Turn heat to medium and cook until mixture boils. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally, to 230 degrees on candy thermometer. Add chocolate pieces and cook 5 minutes or until chocolate is completely melted. Stir in nuts. Pour into buttered 8-inch square pan. Cool to room temperature. Chill. Cut into squares. Yield: 36 pieces.

SOUR CREAM FUDGE

2 cups sugar
1 cup dairy sour cream
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup chopped candied cherries
½ cup chopped walnuts

Butter sides of heavy 2-quart saucepan. Place sugar, sour cream, corn syrup and salt in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sugar is dissolved. Turn heat to medium and cook until mixture boils. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally, to 239-240 degrees on candy thermometer. Remove from heat. Add butter and vanilla. Cool to lukewarm (110 degrees) without stirring. Beat vigorously until candy is creamy and has lost its gloss. Stir in cherries and walnuts. Pour into buttered 8-inch square pan. Cut into squares when hardened. Yield: 36 pieces.

Franfare

by Fran Heckart

Mrs. Olson probably has good intentions but there is more to making good coffee than merely choosing the right brand.

Actually good coffee-making is somewhat of a science, and as with all scientific ventures there are a few logical rules to insure a perfect brew everytime.

Understanding the nature of coffee reveals the reasons for the rules.

First, the flavor elements of the coffee bean are highly volatile. Once it's roasted and exposed to air, its aroma, body, strength and flavor quickly evaporate. And being highly absorbent, ground coffee is just as quick to pick up alien flavors as it is to part with its own.

So, the first rule is: Don't expose coffee to air any longer than is absolutely necessary. This means keep the lid off the coffee only long enough to spoon the coffee into the pot.

IN A PERCOLATOR, except the electric model, have the water in the pot boiling before you spoon in the coffee. This eliminates the useless time lapse where the coffee just sits losing flavor while waiting for the water to boil.

Coffee leaves a fine, invisible but almost indissoluble film of oil behind in the pot. This impairs the flavor of all subsequent brews, contrary to the opinion of the great-grandmothers who believed cleaning the pot destroyed the aromas of a thousand makings.

Because the film penetrates so deeply, it's almost impervious to soap and detergent. While there are special coffee pot cleaners available, they're usually costly and sometimes quite harsh.

Baking soda (still a good buy at 25 cents) has the ability to cut through the film and get rid of those stale coffee odors.

So, rule No. 2 is to keep the pot clean. You can either scour the pot with dry soda as is done twice weekly at the Palmer House, famed for its fine brews, or you can run your coffeemaker through its regular brewing cycle using two tablespoons of baking soda in place of coffee.

Since the boiling soda water darkens aluminum, remove aluminum trappings from the pot before you start the treatment, and use only the dry method on pot made entirely of aluminum.

EVERY MORNING, millions of American women meet for "coffee."

And every afternoon, still others cluster in neighborhood groups to drink coffee from fragile cups and nibble tiny cakes and cookies. These get-togethers are two versions of the kaffeeklatsch, a social custom which is reaching new heights of popularity in the United States.

Formal or informal, morning or afternoon, the kaffeeklatsch has three basic requirements: two or more compatible women, a big pot of coffee and lots of lively chatter. These have been fundamentals since kaffeeklatsches began in Europe more than a 150 years ago.

During the early 1800s, teasing German husbands coined the new word "Kaffeeklatsch" by way of making fun of their socializing wives.

"Kaffee" means coffee and "klatsch" means scandal or gossip. Thus, the new term referred to gossiping that went on at coffee parties. Since then, the word has come to mean the gathering itself, as we know it today.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

As the rounds of holiday parties approach you'll be needing some unusual dishes for the festive board whether it be a buffet, brunch or a Yule bowl get-together.

Very popular for brunches at our house and also excellent as a chafing dish hors d'oeuvre are these chicken livers ala Flynn. Last time I made them I purchased 4 pounds of fresh livers which served 16 people nicely as a main dish at a brunch.

Wash the livers, remove any membrane and cut in two.

In a large skillet put six slices of thick bacon cut into about 1-inch squares and cook over medium heat until crisp but not burned. Reserve.

Peel and slice 2 large Spanish onions or 3 medium size onions. Sauté the rings in the bacon drippings. Remove and set aside.

In a separate skillet sauté in butter until light brown about 2 dozen medium-sized fresh mushrooms, washed and with new electric canister called Snackeeper has been developed by the West Bend Co. It keeps snack foods and cereals crisp, dry and crunchy by eliminating excess moisture and restoring freshness to chips, pretzels, popcorn, nuts and crackers. The canister comes in avocado, harvest and poppy and is available in hardware, housewares and department stores.

A Gift Box Of Christmas Cookies

What better way to say "Happy Holidays" than with a festive gift box filled with colorful Christmas cookies? Your friends and family will be delighted when they receive these Sesame Cookies and Nifty Lemon Crisp Cut-Outs in a clever container like this drum. And they'll be especially pleased because you cared enough to make them yourself.

The Sesame Cookies are butter cookies with a Brown Butter Frosting. Because they're made with butter, the cookies keep fresh and delicious for a longer time. Butter is browned with the sesame seed for the frosting.

The Lemon Crisp Cut-Outs have a light and luscious lemon flavor. You can cut these cookies into a variety of gay shapes and decorate them with colored frosting and bits of candy to give them a lovely seasonal look.

When it comes to finding an appropriate container, let your imagination go and create your own. The one shown here is made by covering a round fruit cake tin with aluminum foil, using rubber cement. Cover the lid with white paper circle for drumhead. Spray or paint 8 wooden coffee stirrers red. Attach upright against sides of tin with white glue. Attach red tickrack braid to sides and lid as in illustration using white glue. The drumsticks are made with small tree ornaments on sticks covered with more aluminum foil.

A small tree (artificial or real) makes a yummy gift when you have hung colorful cookies on it for ornaments.

Sauces, colanders, candy dishes, baskets, mugs, teapots and other useful items become treasured gifts when you fill them with homemade cookies.

Cookies are an ideal gift for young children. And it's nice to give them in a container decorated with a Santa, reindeer or elf cut-out. It's an added treat when you include a small toy for the youngsters to play with while they munch those delectable cookies.

Any way you package them, Sesame Cookies and Lemon Crisp Cut-Outs make a welcomed gift. A gift you'll take pride in giving.

Relish The Cranberry

Tart-sweet flavor and a brilliant red color make cranberries an excellent choice for homemade Christmas gifts. Relishes always are appreciated and cranberries go well in Spiced Cranberry Conserve, Cranberry Chutney or Cranberry Date Relish. Put aside a few jars for the family when preparing a batch of holiday food gifts.

SPICED CRANBERRY CONSERVE

Christmas Tree Of Cornflakes

This cornflake Christmas tree is adapted from a Farm Journal recipe for Christmas wreaths. Place 1 stick (1/2 cup) of margarine or butter in top of a double boiler with 2 cups of miniature marshmallows or 30 large marshmallows, 2 teaspoons of green vegetable coloring and 1 teaspoon of vanilla or other extract. Heat, stirring, over simmering water until mixture is melted, smooth and evenly colored. Using a rubber spatula or wooden spoon, gradually stir in 3 1/2 cups of plain cornflakes until all are coated. Pack lightly into a greased cone-shaped food mill or a handmade cardboard cone lined with waxed paper lightly oiled. Let cool. Tip out onto waxed paper, decorate with small red candies or glaze cherries, and sprinkle with granulated sugar to simulate snow. If necessary, fasten cherries with tooth picks until glaze dries. Makes 1 tree about 5 inches high with 5 1/2-inch bottom diameter. Dry overnight before wrapping in clear plastic for packing.

Holiday Nesselrode Chiffon

A Festive Fruited Eggnog

During the festive season, handsome glass bowls do double duty. They may feature the eggnog that symbolizes Christmas. They may be used as serving dishes for large buffet parties . . . for Holiday Nesselrode Chiffon, a delectable classical dessert that makes use of egg-nog ingredients.

This version of the handsome dessert, a favorite in France, adds a colorful note to the Christmas table or buffet. Combined with the frothy chiffon are the brilliant tones of glazed fruits: gleaming lemon and pineapple, golden citron, and crimson and green cherries to add to the Christmas theme. Popular fruit cocktail may also be used to layer the eggnog dessert.

The chiffon is an airy mixture of milk, eggs, whipped cream and sugar seasoned, if desired, with brandy flavoring. Into the chiffon goes unflavored gelatine to add body to the airy custard base. Unflavored gelatine stiffens the beaten egg whites and whipped cream, and prevents the chiffon from losing the air beaten into it.

To add further festive flair, Holiday Nesselrode Chiffon is decorated with a Christmas wreath of glazed fruits, a note that echoes the Christmas wreath on your door. If desired, the pudding can be garnished with chopped nuts, or the shaved chocolate of classical Nesselrode pudding, or fruit cocktail.

This year, your prettiest glass bowl will hold a dessert as well as a beverage. And either will provide your guests with holiday cheer.

HOLIDAY NESSELRODE CHIFFON

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- 1/2 cup sugar, divided
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 1/4 cups milk
- 2 tablespoons brandy flavoring
- 1 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1/4 cup chopped nuts
- 1/2 cup diced mixed candied fruits

Mix together gelatine, 1/4 cup of the sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Beat together egg yolks and milk; stir into gelatine mixture. Place over boiling water and cook, stirring constantly, until gelatine dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat; stir in brandy. Chill until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Gradually add remaining 1/4 cup sugar and beat until very stiff. Fold into gelatine mixture. Fold in whipped cream, nuts and mixed candied fruits. Turn into serving bowl; chill until firm. Garnish with a "wreath" of additional nuts, mixed candied fruit and shaved chocolate. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Note: If desired, recipe may be doubled.

VARIATION: One can (1 pound) fruit cocktail may be substituted for the fruit and nuts. Drain syrup; measure and add enough water to syrup to make 1 cup. Substitute syrup mixture for milk. Continue according to directions. Turn half the gelatine mixture into serving bowl; layer with half the fruit cocktail. Top with remaining gelatine. Garnish with a "wreath" of remaining fruit cocktail.

Consumer Tips

WHOLE GRAIN or enriched products are notably more nutritious than unenriched products. Most white bread is enriched. But specialty breads such as French, Italian and raisin and many other bakery products often are not enriched. Check the wrapper or ask the baker to be sure.

SPENDING A REASONABLE amount for food does not automatically lead to well-balanced meals. Only a variety of different kinds of foods will supply the nutrients needed for growth and good health.

FROZEN FRENCH fries make a crusty topper for chicken pie. Team diced and cooked chicken, carrots and celery plus cooked peas in a thick, well-seasoned sauce and portion into individual greased casseroles. Top with frozen French fries and bake at 425 degrees until browned.

Cranberry Fruit Balls

Cranberry fruit balls make a gift that travels well and remains fresh for several weeks. In a meat grinder, grind 1 pound of fresh cranberries with 2 large, seeded but unpeeled oranges, two 3 1/2-ounce cans of flaked coconut and 3 cups of raisins or currants.

Stir in two cups of sugar and two 13 1/2-ounce packages of graham cracker crumbs. If necessary, add more crumbs to make a mixture that can be molded into 1-inch balls. Roll each in finely chopped nuts, using total of 3 cups. Wrap individually in clear plastic and tie with ribbon loops if you wish to use them as tree ornaments. Pack in airtight container for storage or shipping. Makes about 100.

'Minute-Minded' Christmas Sweets

For caroling parties or a holiday open house, it's fun to serve your family and friends a variety of festive cookies.

To make your work effortless, these Christmas cookies are time minded as well as easy to prepare. The short cut secret to sure success — refrigerated slice and bake cookie dough.

Layers of the chocolate chip cookie dough and chocolate covered mint patties bake to perfection to make Choco Mint Bars. When warm from the oven, the bars are topped with chocolate chips which melt to make the easy glaze. If desired, add a sprinkling of nuts for extra goodness.

Rum Topped Fruitcake Cookies are perky rounds of chocolate chip slice and bake cookies studded with candied fruit and nuts. These minute-minded sweets are topped with a rum flavored glaze and decorated with candied cherry halves or nuts.

Another bright idea, Cherry Macaroons, is off to a quick start with refrigerated sugar or cinnamon sugar slice and bake cookies. The pretty addition of chopped maraschino cherries gives this macaroon a special flavor bonus.

CHOCO-MINT BARS

1 roll (16 oz.) refrigerated chocolate chip slice and bake cookies
6 chocolate covered mint patties, broken into fourths ¼ cup chocolate chips

Chopped nuts, if desired

Line an 8 or 9-inch baking pan with foil. Slice cookie dough into ¼-inch slices. Place ¼ of cookie slices in prepared pan. Arrange mint pieces over dough; top with remaining cookie slices. Bake at 375 degrees for 18 to 22 minutes until golden brown. (Cookies will be puffy when removed from oven.) Sprinkle chocolate chips over warm cookies; spread when softened. If desired, sprinkle with nuts. Cool; cut into bars. Makes 24 bars.

RUM TOPPED FRUITCAKE COOKIES

1 roll (16 oz.) refrigerated chocolate chip slice and bake cookies, softened to room temperature
1½ cups mixed candied fruit or candied cherries
1 cup chopped walnuts
Candied cherry halves, if desired

Icing

2 cups powdered sugar
¼ teaspoon rum extract
2 to 3 tablespoons milk

Grease cookie sheet. In large mixing bowl, crumble cookie dough. Add fruit and nuts; mix well. Shape pieces of dough, about 1 teaspoon each, into balls; place on prepared cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes until golden brown. Spread with Icing; if desired, garnish with candied cherry halves.

Icing: In small mixing bowl, combine powdered sugar and extract with enough milk until icing is thin enough to spread. Makes 3 to 9 dozen cookies.

CHERRY MACAROONS

1 can (14 oz.) sweetened condensed milk
1 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups flaked coconut
1 roll refrigerated sugar, butterscotch nut or cinnamon sugar slice and bake cookies
½ cup maraschino cherries, chopped and drained

Generously grease bottom and sides of a 13x9-inch baking pan. In small mixing bowl, combine condensed milk and almond extract. Sprinkle 1 cup coconut in bottom of prepared pan; drizzle with half the condensed milk. Slice cookie dough in ¼-inch slices; place over coconut layer. Pour remaining condensed milk evenly over cookies. Sprinkle with remaining coconut and the maraschino cherries. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 to 30 minutes until golden brown. Chill thoroughly; cut into bars. Make 36 bars.

HAVARTI

the Danish cheese for people of pronounced taste

Say it to yourself: Ha-ver-li. It rhymes with "a party", and that's when some people serve it. Don't fall into the same trap: make Havarti, the mild, mellow, creamy-yellow, lacy-patterned Danish cheese, an everyday affair. For luscious snacks, sandwiches, casseroles. So say "Ha-ver-li", and say it often. At your grocery or supermarket, of course.

WARM UP CHRISTMAS CAROLERS Topped Fruitcake Cookies and Cherry Macaroons are excellent selections this season with a variety of festive cookies. Choco-Mint Bars, Rum and easy on the cookie-baker.

To Receive $12,500 Annually

Panel Picks Deerfield Man To Be New Park Director

The board of commissioners for the Hoffman Estates Park District Tuesday approved the appointment of Alan Binder as park director.

Binder's appointment to the $12,500 a year post will become effective Feb. 1.

Binder will fill a vacancy which has existed since the summer of 1970 when Vaughn R. Black resigned. Anne M. Schuerings, former park district business manager, has served as acting director since Black's resignation.

A resident of Deerfield, Binder, 30, has served as supervisor of recreation for the Glenview Park District and has also worked with the Deerfield Park District. Binder is married and has one child.

He received his bachelor's degree, in parks and recreation from Indiana University in 1964. He is also a graduate of IU's executive development program.

Binder is a member of the National Park and Recreation Association and the Illinois Park and Recreation Association. He has had several articles published and held various committee assignments with park groups.

Binder will be in charge of all park district employees. Mrs. Schuerings' position with the park district will be decided in February, according to Board Pres. Fred Weaver.

Binder said Tuesday that he does not anticipate any personnel changes in the near future.

The board also appointed two Hoffman Estates residents to serve on committees. Robert Hill, a local building contractor and Hoffman Estates Boys Club director, will serve on the buildings and grounds committee. Hill was an applicant for the park board vacancy filled recently by John Meyer.

Joseph Valenti, a former Chicago Park District employee and also a recent applicant for a vacant seat on the park board, was appointed to serve on the recreation committee.

The board also declared the three youth commissioner positions open, because three teenagers appointed to fill the posts last spring have failed to participate with the board.

The commissioners agreed the Youth Commissioner program should be maintained, but said the present commissioners had not done the job. Letters requesting their resignations were sent recently, but no replies have been received.

"We didn't give them enough direction," Commissioner Thomas Barber said. He suggested that before any new appointments are made the board review the guidelines set down for the youth commissioners.

SWAPPING HER TYPEWRITER for a drill, Mrs. Marie Caranci of Arlington Heights, a guidance counselor for High School Dist. 211, comes back to school in the evening to drill a wick hole in a mushroom candle she made. Adult Candelmaking classmate Mrs. Pat Nichols of Hoffman Estates lends a helping hand.

Adults Return To School

by JERRY THOMAS
Candlelight in the night-school classroom added a fourth "r"—romance—to the reading, "riting, and 'rithmetic usually taught there.

It was High School Dist. 211's idea and a great way to get adults into the classroom again.

The teacher and students sat around in the dark, but don't misunderstand. It was all part of the class work and strictly an educational experience.

Darla Moore, a James B. Conant High School teacher, was the instructor, and her students, all perfect ladies, sat around in the dark with candles glowing. They created the air of romance on their own at home.

IT TOOK A lot of homework, but with their husbands' help the women all made candles of their own design and brought their first handmade candles to class this week.

As the warm glow of the lit candles cast shadows around the group of women, they talked about eating dinner with their husbands by candlelight, the

'Coordinate Health Services'

Officials from Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships expressed the desire to coordinate all mental health services in the area while discussing an application for state funds from Elk Grove Village Community Service Tuesday night.

Members of the two boards of auditors also agreed they want to study the application of the village-funded mental health and counseling agency before taking action. The two groups were holding a joint meeting called to discuss common problems between the two townships.

Representatives from Community Service have appeared before both boards in recent weeks asking for resolutions of support for their application to become the state mental health agency for the two-township area.

Both boards have postponed action on the request pending further study.

Elk Grove Township Auditor Richard Hall said that after hearing of the Community Service application, "I would like to find out everything that is going on in mental health in the area and then see us form a committee to coordinate these groups."

He added, "I got the impression that there is a contest among the various groups."

THE COMMUNITY Service application is being officially opposed by Northwest Mental Health Center, which is now the only state-funded center serving the two townships from its office in Arlington Heights.

Schaumburg Township Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein said his board had been told by the Community Service representatives that the state is favorable to their application for funds and then had heard from Northwest Mental Health that the state feels the application is "premature."

Elk Grove Auditor Bernard Lee said, "We have to remember the information from Northwest Mental Health might also be self-serving because they are now getting money, and if the other groups get money, it's possible the state will decide to take it from Northwest."

Northwest currently receives about $130,000 from the state to supply services to Wheeling, Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships. Community Service is applying for a grant to serve the two southern townships because the four-township area now has a large enough population to allow the state to consider setting up a second agency.

The two sets of township officials compared the programs each has had for serving troubled youth in their area. Schaumburg has had a youth worker for the past year whose tasks included providing counseling for youths.

In October Elk Grove Township hired a youth worker who was to cooperate with Community Service's youth program and work in unincorporated areas. But she resigned after about a month on the job.

"WE ARE looking for another one, and we still think it's a good idea. But our problem was we ended up losing control of the young lady because she was working for Community Service, too," Lee said.

The auditors for both townships agreed the youth program was one way the two areas could cooperate and perhaps get funding from other local governments

Airport Expansion Stirs Trustee Row

Possible airport expansion appears to be the basis of mounting tension between environmental chairmen in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

Speaking through another Clean Environment Committee (CEC) member Tuesday, Trustee Jack Larsen of Schaumburg rebuked Trustee Diane Jensen of Hoffman Estates for "uncalled-for remarks" questioning environmental impact of further airport development.

As chairman of her village's Environmental Concerns Committee, Mrs. Jensen had reported some Hoffman Estates residents appear to be questioning the ecological effect of mini-jet landing in Schaumburg.

Village acquisition of the now privately owned Schaumburg Airport is being explored in line with the proposed creation of a transportation center near Centex Industrial Park.

ALTHOUGH LARSEN was out of town when CEC met this week, his feelings were related to the group by Alan Larson, meeting chairman.

"He was disturbed that Mrs. Jensen had not bothered to consult those who knew about airport plans before speaking out on the issue," Larson explained.

The acting CEC chairman stressed an environmental study, comprehensive enough to cover site, air and noise pollution, and water run-off, must be made in conjunction with airport master planning before federal funding can be requested.

This work must be done by qualified experts with possible assistance from CEC, and other villages, including Hoffman Estates, Hanover Park and Roselle, would probably be asked to participate also, he said.

At present, Schaumburg Jaycees are engaged in a feasibility study to determine possible need for airport expansion as well as feasibility of site selection. Their survey is expected to touch on environmental aspects of the project as well as recommended approaches to federal funding.

Denis Ledgerwood of CEC questioned the idea of mini-jet use of the strip even if expanded. He noted in his opinion that the site would not permit runway expansion to accommodate this type of craft.

LEDGERWOOD IS involved in the Jaycees feasibility study, but said at this point work is in stages too preliminary for CEC investigation.

Mrs. Jane Murphy told CEC members she opposes federal funding "to benefit small, well-to-do industrialists" coming into the community.

"I'm tired of this 'lowering your tax base' philosophy and I just don't want to see Schaumburg grow that way," she said.

Mrs. Murphy said she is opposed to pollution, noise and land abuse.

Recycling Center To Open

A municipal recycling center is scheduled to open Jan. 29 in Schaumburg.

Operation will continue on a test basis for six months, pending village board agreement to underwrite costs that may be incurred.

The reclamation station, proposed by Clean Environment Committee members Jane Murphy and Sandy Etchingham, will be located behind Weathersfield Fire Station on Schaumburg Road.

Based on results of the experiment, both members feel the center could become a permanent post for glass and paper collection.

"When the trial period is up, I'll definitely be recommending discontinuing the project if it is not successful," Mrs. Murphy told committee members Tuesday night.

Arrangements have been made to obtain a bin for glass collection from Arc Disposal, the scavenger now servicing village facilities in Schaumburg.

Plans for installation of a paper collection receptacle have not yet been finalized.

A $40 unloading charge plus $18 an hour for drivers to transport glass to a manufacturer's collection depot has been quoted by Arc Disposal representatives, Mrs. Murphy said.

She proposed scheduling pick-ups at two-week intervals, and estimated that each accumulation of glass tonnage could provide about $150.

Mrs. Murphy also suggested a future discussion of the disposition of any excess funds resulting from the project.

The committee plans to launch an educational campaign to make residents aware of the recycling center.

Six Students Added

To Conant Honor Roll

Six students at James B. Conant High School, Hoffman Estates, have been added to a list of those attaining the "A" honor roll for the first nine weeks of school. The list already has been published, but since then the school has added the six students as corrections.

The additions are Keith Webber, Thomas Bond, Michael Roessman, Mary L. Smith and Dan Townsend, seniors, and Mary Jo Mueller, a sophomore.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a ruling designed to help out the food and clothing industries, the Cost of Living Council said that companies which are innocent victims of wild swings in the cost of new materials do not have to notify the Price Commission before raising prices. The Pay Board meanwhile summoned Harvard Professor John Dunlop to a meeting last night to explain why his construction industry pay panel has authorized wage increases far above the board's own guidelines.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., broke with liberal colleagues and told the Senate he will vote to confirm William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court.

Sen. John V. Tunney, considered the leading Democratic politician in California, endorsed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for the Democratic presidential nomination on the assumption that Edward M. Kennedy will not be a candidate.

A Sunday school teacher in Westfield, N.J., is sought by police after the bodies of his wife, mother and his three teenage children were found shot to death in the family's 20-room mansion in an exclusive suburb. They had been dead for a month.

The State

County office holders from throughout the state registered for the 84th annual midwinter conference and seminar of the Illinois Association of County Officials. High on the agenda for at least one meeting of the three-day conference in Chicago is discussion of a recent ruling by a DuPage County judge who decided that the county must hold its county elections at the same time it holds statewide elections.

India reported a general withdrawal of Pakistani troops from all border areas of East Pakistan and said its forces had pushed to within 22 miles of the capital city of Dacca. The Indians also said the district headquarters town of Comilla had fallen to their troops.

With at least 50 more delegates listed to speak, the U.N. General Assembly has scheduled extra sessions in hopes of finishing its debate on the Middle East crisis by this weekend.

Australian-born soprano Marie Collier, 44, who achieved fame overnight as a last-minute stand-in for diva Maria Callas six years ago, fell 30 feet to her death while opening a window in her London apartment, police reported. Police said the death was accidental.

East Germany rejected a compromise plan to open the Berlin Wall, allowing West Berliners to visit the East, West German officials announced.

The War

U.S. planes killed scores of Communists in bombing raids in Cambodia and duelled with Soviet-made missiles over Laos and North Vietnam in an upsurge of American activity in Indochina battlefields. Meanwhile, 50 U.S. Army doctors in Vietnam said that most U.S. casualties they treat result from self-inflicted wounds, fighting among GIs, auto accidents, jungle diseases and drugs — and not from combat.

Amendments To 'Codify' Zoning Law

Passage of a series of amendments at Tuesday's Hoffman Estates Board of Appeals meeting will help propel a comprehensive project to reorganize, "codify" and index the village's zoning ordinance toward completion.

The Zoning Board of Appeals, in combination with a specially-formed Zoning Ordinance Review Committee (ZORC), has been pursuing the project several months. ZORC Chairman Edward Hennessey, a village trustee, said the reorganized zoning ordinance should be available for public scrutiny in March.

The current zoning ordinance consists of several mimeographed sheets contained in a loose-leaf binder. The proposed ordinance will be up-dated, free of typographical errors and "redundancies," indexed with separate, distinct sections, bound and printed on numbered pages, Hennessey said.

"IT WILL BE a more direct and orderly version of the zoning ordinance," he explained. ZORC, comprised of Hennessey, Bob Valentino, chairman of the zoning board of appeals, and Richard Regan, plan commission chairman, is currently proof-reading and working out the "nitty-gritty" details of the proposed ordinance.

Tuesday's amendments basically involved changes in working, the redefinition of certain items in the old ordinance before inclusion in the new one and the addition of two village zoning designations to the proposed ordinance.

The designations are R4A and RPD. Zoning Chairman Valentino explained the R4A designation sets out guidelines governing the construction of residential townhouse projects in Hoffman Estates while the RPD designation governs residential planned developments allowing a "mixture of single-family homes, apartments and condominiums in one development providing the development is adequately and aesthetically planned.

Both designations were created in 1968 and are included among village ordinances, Valentino explained. However, he added, neither ordinance is part of the existing village zoning ordinance.

Candle Class Adds 'R' For Romance

wretched color of their creation or the mess they cleaned off the stove.

The candlemaking class, taught by Conant's art department, is just one of many adult classes the district offers.

Art classes, including systems and materials, macrame, instruction in yarn interknitting, and academic instruction are being held this month.

The adult education program ranges from practical arts such as car tune-up to academic efforts such as high school equivalency test preparations or advanced study.

Who goes to them and why? Mrs. Michael Nichols of Hoffman Estates, a choir director, said making her own candles was "nostalgic, romantic, and cheaper." Discarded glass or plastic bottles, cartons, or sand provide the mold or form for melted, and colored candle wax.

"The department store is probably wondering why I need so many big cookie jars but they have the prettiest design and I used them for molds," she laughed. Most of the glass molds have to be cracked off the hardened wax. "That way you need many," she explained.

MRS. CHARLES LEVY of Hoffman Estates works and her husband likes the class "because it keeps me out of mischief and away from the ironing board and washing machine when I'm home."

Sniffing a fat rose red candle, she giggled and said it was scented with "Ecstasy" cologne.

"This isn't the one that provided the light for our dinner last night," she added.

"Pheew! You should have used mine," said Mrs. Ted Trzcinski of Hoffman Estates as she sniffed her candle. "I used an old cheese bottle and scented it by accident. It must be the only candle in the world that looks like grape jam and smells like stinky cheese," she added.

Little rose colored fluted candles are part of Christmas decorations Mrs. Trzcinski plans to make for friends.

"This class has been fun, I always pictured the kind of things I'd like to buy and couldn't find them, now I can make them," she bragged.

"IT'S EXCITING watching this candle burn down," she confided, because she was waiting for it to cave in.

"I know it's got to be hollow. My husband shoved about three yards of wick into this short fat little thing," she said.

Mrs. Garth Good of Hoffman Estates left a little early to attend an Alexian Brothers Medical Center board meeting. Her work at the hospital keeps her busy and candle making, like the upholstery class she took earlier, are fun and practical things to do.

She praised the district's efforts to provide adult education in the community.

"Wish I'd had time to make the auto mechanics class," she said, adding "cars always go haywire when a woman's alone. That's why there were so many women enrolled in the last class."

Mrs. Charles Bottger of Hoffman Estates created an almost black candle "unintentionally, believe me. It was my first creation and the furthest thing from what I wanted. But, it's kinda cute," she said. "It's just that it was supposed to be gold," she added.

Although the art experiences offered by Conant are over, the school schedules classes throughout the year. Persons interested in the adult programs may contact the school at 529-4333.

Teacher-District Dispute On Prorated Pay Hikes?

A dispute may be building between teachers and administrators in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 concerning the means of prorating salary increases for the year to comply with the federal wage-price freeze.

The freeze was lifted in November and teachers were told they would start receiving newly negotiated pay increases in their December pay checks. They actually will receive them Dec. 16.

The potential dispute concerns how much of the increase they actually will get, and hinges on how much should be deducted from the over-all increase for the freeze period.

Mrs. Felicia Cichy, who chaired the teachers' negotiating team this fall, said she felt the district could have prorated the salary increases in three different ways.

ONE ALTERNATIVE, the one the district administrators chose, was on a daily basis. The district counted the number of working days to which the freeze applied and figured the percentage of the total working year those represented.

The other alternatives were to base the percentage on pay periods, said Mrs. Cichy. Some district teachers are paid in 24 installments, twice a month for 12 months. Others are paid in 20 installments, twice a month for the actual 10-month period they work. The total salary is the same, but the time period chosen affects the size of each check.

Mrs. Cichy contends that using the daily basis means each teacher loses a few dollars for the remainder of the school year. Under either of the pay period systems, she said, a greater portion of the total salary increase would have come in the post-freeze period. While the difference may amount to only a few dollars per teacher, it may be several thousand dollars for the entire district, she said.

The teachers have not filed a formal objection on the procedure, and may not do so, said Mrs. Cichy. At this point, she is merely asking why one method was chosen over another. It could be, she said, that most teachers will "just accept," and not even question, the small amount of loss. The question of whether a formal objection will be filed "would depend on how many people strenuously object," she said. The decision could be made either by the teacher's association executive board, or by the full membership.

DON RUDD, board member who was president during contract negotiations, yesterday learned from Ronald Ruble, personnel superintendent, why the particular method was selected.

Because some teachers are on 20-period schedules and others are on 24-period schedules, the district would have been forced to either treat them differently, or chose one schedule and apply it to all, Ruble said. There could have been disputes about what constitutes the actual working year, he said.

Several years ago, a similar question arose concerning how much to dock teachers who exceeded allowable sick or personal leave, and computing on a daily basis was agreeable to both teachers and the district, said Ruble.

The administration chose to apply the same system here, said Ruble.

Ruble also said that the Illinois Association of School Boards has distributed a guideline to all member districts, directing use of the daily computation system. The district is following the guideline and expects all other districts to use it as well.

Rudd added that he did not believe there would be a substantial difference in cost, seen as a percentage of the entire district budget, no matter which method was used. He himself had no preference, he said.

We're Being Avoided: CEC Members

Two of Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee members evidenced displeasure this week at being apparently stymied in attempts to discuss village plans for a recycling program with Mayor Robert O. Atcher.

CEC members Jane Murphy and Sandy Etchingham had an appointment with the mayor last Friday that they contend was "negated" by Trustee Jack Larsen, who heads CEC.

Mrs. Murphy said Larsen suggested establishment of a permanent collection bin in the village when he telephoned to advise that it would not be necessary to meet with the mayor.

"We've discussed recycling in this community and not gotten anywhere, so we simply wanted to talk to the man whom we felt could get the job done. We wanted his expert opinion on plans and possible funding of programs," she told CEC members Tuesday night.

MRS. ETCHINGHAM described her reaction as "angry."

"I feel shut off and I don't like to be shut off, especially in a town of this size," she said.

"Evidently he (Atcher) is not interested, since he canceled the appointment," Mrs. Etchingham added.

Since Larsen was out of town on business, he did not have an opportunity to respond.

However, Alan Larson, a member of CEC since September who was presiding for the absent chairman, suggested the trustee "may have felt you were pretending he's not around."

KEN DOPP, another CEC member, told the group he has been dealing with the village administration for the past six years but only recently has become aware of the excessive demands made on the mayor and trustees.

"He (Atcher) wanted to talk to me about something that deals with me personally and because of his schedule we can't get together until Jan. 26 — and this is his request to see me," Dopp continued.

As a group CEC suggested that Mrs. Murphy and Mrs. Etchingham prepare a written report detailing their recycling plans for Larsen to submit to the mayor.

Teachers Reject Affiliation

by BETSY BROOKER

Affiliation of Harper College teachers with a state association was turned down by a narrow margin of nine votes in elections held during the past three days.

Of the 164 full-time faculty members, 79 voted against affiliation and 70 voted for it, an unofficial source said yesterday. Martin Ryan, faculty senate president, could not be reached for comment.

Since the college opened four years ago, the teachers have remained independent of all state teachers' associations.

Ryan said earlier the senate decided to consider affiliation this year because of its dissatisfaction with spring salary negotiations.

"It was not a question of money but the manner in which the negotiations were held," he said. "The negotiations were broken off unilaterally by the college board of trustees. That is not negotiations as I understand it."

"Teachers are often open to capricious and unjust actions on the part of school boards," he said. "The board can change policy anytime it wants. Affiliation with a state association would formalize our relations with the board and make all parties accountable."

If a majority of teachers had supported Ryan's view, another election would have been held at the college to determine which association teachers would affiliate. Representatives from both the Illinois Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers have solicited the Harper teachers' membership.

When asked their reaction to the election results, Harper administrators said, "It is their affair."

and through a tax levy. Lee said, "If your program (in Schaumburg) can be expanded and we can get something like it, after we have a year or so of experience under our belts, I think we could convince our people we are providing a service they should provide more money for."

The two groups agreed to discuss the Community Service application further before taking action. Both boards have been asked to act before the first part of January because Community Service must then submit its formal application.

FAA, Resident's Committee To Discuss Control Tower

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials and members of a Wheeling residents' committee plan to meet to discuss complaints about the FAA control tower at Pal-Waukee Airport.

The meeting grew out of an exchange of letters between FAA regional director Lyle K. Brown and representatives of the residents' committee. It would deal with landing and flight patterns at the airport and operations of the tower.

The committee is responsible for a Cook County investigation into the runway length, plane weight and flight patterns at the airport. It also was instrumental in getting a suit filed to enforce a Cook County special use permit limiting runway length, plane weight and flight patterns.

The committee has most recently been questioning the expenditures of federal funds to run the FAA tower at the private airport.

In his most recent letter to the residents' committee Brown asserted that the FAA was not a party to the issuance of the county permit for the Pal-Waukee jet runway in 1968, as the committee had charged.

He said that there were meetings to change the flight patterns at Pal-Waukee following the establishment of the FAA tower there in 1967. The meetings were "not closed-door," and were designed to cope with existing aircraft patterns in the area including traffic patterns from Sky Harbor and Glenview Naval Air Station, Brown said.

THE RESIDENTS had charged that the FAA had changed the patterns "to allow large, high performance, jet transport aircraft to use Pal-Waukee."

They have also said that the county permit required a public hearing before the FAA could make changes in the flight patterns.

Brown responded that establishing flight patterns "is solely within the jurisdiction of the federal government and no local government has the authority to modify or restrict traffic patterns established by the Federal Aviation Administration."

The FAA has no jurisdiction over landing weights and other airport facilities, Brown told the residents.

In response to questions about the legal authority which allows the FAA to spend federal funds in a tower at a private airport Brown said, "The federal funds expended at Pal-Waukee are to provide air traffic control services to insure efficient utilization of the navigable airspace and the safe and expeditious flow of air traffic."

"For a number of years this agency has, as a matter of policy, not included privately owned airports in the air traffic control and air navigation systems even though they are open to the public. However, with the continued growth of aeronautical activity at these airports they are becoming more and more vital to an efficient air transportation system. For this reason the decision was made to provide FAA control tower services at Pal-Waukee Airport."

Private airports with FAA tower service on a full time basis are not charged for the service, the chief said.

IN RESPONSE to residents questions about why the bulk of flights landing at Pal-Waukee fly over Wheeling, Brown pointed to the fact that planes using instruments to land come in from the north because they are oriented to the "Omni-range" equipment located at Chicago-O'Hare airport which is six miles north-northwest of Pal-Waukee.

In addition, he said pilots elect to land at Pal-Waukee from the north, west, and northeast to avoid the heavy concentration of air traffic around O'Hare International Airport.

However, he pointed out that there is no "official landing end" to the jet runway and that "wind direction and operational use of the other runways have a distinct bearing whether landings and departures on this runway are conducted to the NNW or to the SSE."

William Rogers, a spokesman for the residents' committee said yesterday that he expected the meeting between the residents and the FAA to be held in January.

Forest Preserve Burning Ruling Near

The Illinois Pollution Control Board will decide the fate of open burning at the Cook County Forest Preserve District tree burning area near Wheeling within the next few weeks.

The village of Wheeling, Wheeling-area residents, and antipollution enthusiasts have opposed a request by the forest preserve district to allow open burning at the site in addition to using the site for disposing of dead and diseased trees in an air curtain destructor, a machine designed to cut pollution from tree burning.

Among those favoring the variance for open burning are the village of Mount Prospect, and arborists who need the site to dispose of dead and diseased trees.

The variance asks for permission to allow open burning at the site to resume immediately and to continue until July 1, 1972.

At first the open burning would be the only method of disposing of trees at the site. Once the air curtain destructor, which is now being installed at the site, is operational it would also be used.

But, according to James Tyndall, assistant general superintendent of the forest preserve district, the variance would allow the district to burn openly until July, all trees in excess of what one air curtain destructor could consume.

As of that date all burning at the site would be in air curtain destructors. Tyndall said the county needs the additional time for open burning to determine how many destructors will be needed for the site.

THE ISSUE over the burning site began when the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) closed the burning area in September under a new state law on environmental control.

Since that time the county has received a burning permit which will allow burning in the destructor once it is installed, Tyndall said.

He explained that the first destructor should be installed by the end of December if the weather is good. The machine will then have to be inspected by the EPA before the burning permit for the destructor goes into effect, Tyndall said.

But whether open burning will also be allowed at the site until next summer is for the pollution control board to decide.

A public hearing on the variance for that open burning was held last Friday at the Northbrook Village Hall. EPA officials said they would make a decision by Jan. 4.

At the hearing arborists and the forest preserve district favored open burning, while the village of Wheeling, the Northbrook environmental quality commission, and individual residents opposed it.

Wheeling administrative assistant Roger Stricker said at the hearing that the village filed an objection to burning at the site in November.

"ALTHOUGH THIS site is not within the limits of the village of Wheeling it is close enough that the smoke and ashes from this burning directly affects the citizens of Wheeling," Stricker said at the hearing.

"The village of Wheeling would again like to go on record that we have had many complaints from our citizens in regard to burning that had gone on previously in this area and we are, therefore, strongly opposed to the issuance of this variance," Stricker said.

The village of Mount Prospect, on the other hand, passed a resolution endorsing the burning area for enabling municipalities to successfully battle Dutch elm disease and urged that the variance be granted.

In his letter requesting the variance from the EPA forest preserve district superintendent Arthur Janura pointed out that installation of the one 25-foot air curtain destructor at the site is costing the county in excess of $50,000.

In defense of the variance request Janura noted that, "Lack of funds and land area to install air curtain destructors leaves the local municipalities without a practical method of disposing of the wood wastes generated in their villages, primarily as a result of the Dutch elm disease."

He pointed out that the need for the site to remain open affects the City of Chicago, the Chicago Park District, 36 other municipalities, more than 50 private arborists and the forest preserve district itself.

HE SAID open burning would only be begun when the wind was blowing away from nearby populated areas.

The final result of a refusal for the variance, according to Janura, could be that the inability to dispose of diseased elm trees "would create epidemic conditions resulting in the death and destruction of all elm trees in the Chicago Metropolitan area. In addition," he said, "standing dead trees in parkways, parks, forest preserve areas and on private property would become an extreme safety hazard."

PR Group 'Ready' To Go After Buffalo

The public relations committee of the Buffalo Grove Village Board stands ready for a pilgrimage to Oklahoma to pick up buffalo so the village can once again live up to its name.

Public relations committee chairman Trustee Charles Vogt took note of a Herald story that said that live buffalo are available at no cost if the village can find a way to transport the 400-pound beast 800 miles from the Wichita Mountain Wildlife Refuge in Comanche County, Okla., to Buffalo Grove.

Vogt's committee has been studying the idea of putting the buffalo back in Buffalo Grove for some time.

Apparently, the committee's budget isn't big enough to finance the trip so all that Vogt did at Monday night's village board meeting was smile and tell the rest of the trustees, "we're ready."

Over in the police department, Police Chief Harold Smith said he has seen live buffalo in South Dakota and informed a Herald reporter that buffalo are nice, but the chief would not like to get one of them irritated at him.

"They're mean," he said.

The chief also said that the head of a buffalo is about half the length of the radio dispatcher's desk in the police department.

Christmas Shoplifting Time

by TOM VON MALDER

'Twere the days before Christmas
And all through the stores
Went greedy little hands
Looking to take more

Shoplifting at Christmas time is a problem for most retail stores. The crowds of shoppers are larger, making it more difficult to spot a light-fingered culprit.

The problem becomes acute when there is a large shopping center in a community, such as with the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect. A look at police department figures for the month of December reveals that at Randhurst alone, there were 10 arrested shoplifters in 1969 and 17 arrestees last year. And the problem is not just confined to Randhurst.

But no community has a police department large enough that men can be spared from other duties to merely patrol every store. This leaves the stores with much of the burden in reducing the incidence of theft from their counters.

The larger department stores often form their own security departments, and those at Randhurst are no exception.

"MY AGENTS are strictly undercover," the head of the loss prevention bureau of a large department store at Randhurst, said in a recent interview. She has some 16 agents working for her throughout the store.

Some of these agents are off-duty Cook County policemen, she said. "The average age would be about 30, and they have worked an average of two years at the store," she said.

The speaker is young enough that she could pass as a teenager.

"I can dress like them (teenagers) and pass for them," she said. "So I do not hire teenagers to work for my department. Teenagers are too eager to pick up someone, and if you become overzealous you have a tendency to make false arrests."

That brought up a major problem in catching shoplifters.

"You have to see them take it, conceal it and carry it away before you can apprehend them," the agent said. But when they pick up someone, generally the thief is turned over to Mount Prospect Police. A few juveniles are released into their parents' custody.

"This store has developed a very good relationship with Mount Prospect Police," she said. "We do our best to uphold the law. I think we catch a real good percentage of them (thieves) but we specialize (in surveillance) in certain areas at this store." This would leave other areas in the store less protected, although the agents are continually on the move.

NOT EVERY store uses undercover agents. Some cannot afford them, and other stores are too small. Jewelry stores and the like will hire an armed, uniform guard.

"Even we will use an armed man, if there is a consistent increase in shortages from a certain department or area," the store agent said.

"We're here to prevent, not just to pick up people," she said. "If there's an opportunity for a shoplift — few clerks or an open area — a person is more likely to take something. Most shoplifting is done on impulse. Generally it's a teenager or a bored housewife who wants something to do."

The best prevention, she said, is to make the sales clerks more aware of the problem.

"An alert sales person is the chief factor in preventing a shoplift," she said.

In agreement was Marshall Smith of the Morton Suggestion Co., 800 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. His firm set up incentive and reminder programs utilizing posters that alert sales personnel to the problem.

"We try to prevent shoplifting before it starts," he said.

Smith said their programs promote shoplifting prevention by having sales personnel go up to people holding items and inquiring, "Can I help you?" and by asking a person, "Is that all?" when ringing up a purchase. This makes a would-be shoplifter think twice, he said.

Often it appears that shoplifting becomes a game for people. However, if caught, the penalties are high. An arrest becomes part of a person's permanent record, Mount Prospect's Acting Police Chief John Savage said. Also, the penalties for petty theft (up to $150) are up to a year in jail or $500 fine or both. For grand theft (over $150), a convicted shoplifter can get from one to 10 years imprisonment.

Candle Class Adds 'R' For Romance

by JERRY THOMAS

Candlelight in the night-school classroom added a fourth "r" — romance — to the reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic usually taught there.

It was High School Dist. 211's idea and a great way to get adults into the classroom again.

The teacher and students sat around in the dark, but don't misunderstand. It was all part of the class work and strictly an educational experience.

Darla Moore, a James B. Conant High School teacher, was the instructor, and her students, all perfect ladies, sat around in the dark with candles glowing. They created the air of romance on their own at home.

IT TOOK A lot of homework, but with their husbands' help the women all made candles of their own design and brought their first handmade candles to class this week.

As the warm glow of the lit candles cast shadows around the group of women, they talked about eating dinner with their husbands by candlelight, the wretched color of their creation or the mess they cleaned off the stove.

The candlemaking class, taught by Conant's art department, is just one of many adult classes the district offers.

Art classes, including systems and materials, macrame, instruction in yarn interlocking, and academic instruction are being held this month.

The adult education program ranges from practical arts such as ear tune-up to academic efforts such as high school equivalency test preparations or advanced study.

Who goes to them and why? Mrs. Michael Nichols of Hoffman Estates, a choir director, said making her own candles was "nostalgic, romantic, and cheaper." Discarded glass or plastic bottles, cartons, or sand provide the mold or form for melted, and colored candle wax.

"The department store is probably wondering why I need so many big cookie jars but they have the prettiest design and I used them for molds," she laughed. Most of the glass molds have to be cracked off the hardened wax. "That way you need many," she explained.

MRS. CHARLES LEVY of Hoffman Estates works and her husband likes the class "because it keeps me out of mischief and away from the ironing board and washing machine when I'm home."

Sniffing a fat rose red candle, she giggled and said it was scented with "Ecstasy" cologne.

"This isn't the one that provided the light for our dinner last night," she added.

"Phew! You should have used mine," said Mrs. Ted Trzcinski of Hoffman Estates as she sniffed her candle. "I used an old cheese bottle and scented it by accident. It must be the only candle in the world that looks like grape jam and smells like stinky cheese," she added.

Little rose colored fluted candles are part of Christmas decorations Mrs. Trzcinski plans to make for friends.

"This class has been fun, I always pictured the kind of things I'd like to buy and couldn't find them, now I can make them," she bragged.

"IT'S EXCITING watching this candle burn down," she confided, because she was waiting for it to cave in.

"I know it's got to be hollow. My husband shoved about three yards of wick into this short fat little thing," she said.

Mrs. Garth Good of Hoffman Estates left a little early to attend an Alexian Brothers Medical Center board meeting. Her work at the hospital keeps her busy and candle making, like the upholstery class she took earlier, are fun and practical things to do.

She praised the district's efforts to provide adult education in the community.

"Wish I'd had time to make the auto mechanics class," she said, adding "cars always go haywire when a woman's alone. That's why there were so many women enrolled in the last class."

Mrs. Charles Bottger of Hoffman Estates created an almost black candle "unintentionally, believe me. It was my first creation and the furthest thing from what I wanted. But, it's kinda cute," she said. "It's just that it was supposed to be gold," she added.

Although the art experiences offered by Conant are over, the school schedules classes throughout the year. Persons interested in the adult programs may contact the school at 529-4333.

About two years ago two nameless babies from Greece came home with George and Penny Maheras to Elk Grove Village.

Now Mark and Michael Maheras are rambunctious American three-year-olds, little different from their playmates except for the fact they sometimes chatter to each other in Greek.

"In Greece babies are not given names until they're baptized and so orphans are just called 'baby' until they are about two years old," Mrs. Maheras explained. "We named the boys and had them baptized as soon as we got home."

The Maherases, of 2 Lancaster Ave., began considering adopting children from Greece, where both of their sets of parents grew up, about a year before they actually went to Athens.

"We were referred to a very large orphanage in Athens by the priest in our church," she said. "We sent some of the papers ahead of us before we went over."

ONCE THEY arrived in Greece they looked at a number of children living in foster homes and finally settled on the two boys, just two months apart in age.

Mrs. Maheras laughed as she explained that she chose Mike, who has light brown hair and looks like her husband, and her husband chose Mark, a dark-haired boy with big brown eye who looks most like her.

"We each chose a child who looks like the other. It worked out very well," she said.

Then the Maherases had to go through formal adoption proceedings in a Greek court, a much different experience than a U.S. court.

"You expect the court to be quiet, but there was quite a commotion. They were handling all the adoptions right after the bank holidays," she said.

Then the two boys, after getting passports and visas, made the long transatlantic flight home with their new parents.

"MY MOTHER had come with us to help, and it was a good thing because we weren't used to two babies," Mrs. Maheras said. "She took care of one and the two of us took care of the other on the way over."

The two boys became American citizens on Nov. 16, with their parents taking the oath for them.

The Maherases speak Greek to their children at home and both boys have learned English from their playmates.

"When my husband and I were little, our parents used to speak to us in Greek and so it was just something we did naturally," she said.

And Mrs. Maheras, after two years, is enjoying having two active boys around the house. "They have made our house a home — and a disaster area," she said. "What one of them doesn't think of, the other one does."

Mount Prospect Names Police Chief

by TOM VON MALDER
A four-month search for a new police chief for Mount Prospect ended Tuesday with the appointment of Elbert B. "Bert" Giddens.

Giddens, who will start Jan. 1, has spent over 27 years on active police duty. Most recently, he was chief of the Evanston Police Department from 1962 to 1969. He resigned from that position in the midst of criticism from members of his force and from members of Evanston's black community.

The appointment, not requiring village approval, was made by village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley. Eppley said that he was well pleased with Giddens and his professional background. "I feel he was worth the wait," Eppley said.

The 56-year-old Giddens, an Evanston resident, is currently an assistant professor at Loop College, City Colleges of Chicago, where he is an instructor for Chicago Police Academy recruits.

Giddens said he resigned from the Evanston force to take the teaching position. At the time he left, there was unrest within the department as well as criticism of the department from blacks.

During the summer of 1969 a chapter of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA) was formed in Evanston. In their efforts to secure higher salaries CCPA members threatened a "sick-in."

MARSHALL BARKSDALE, black president of the CCPA chapter, joined 13 other black policemen in charging Giddens with a "lack of leadership" and discrimination in promotions, beat assignments and advanced training school appointments. They also accused him of alienating the city's black community.

Most of these charges were made public after Giddens met with Barksdale Aug. 6. Giddens resigned the next afternoon.

Meanwhile the white policemen filed a charge of promotion discrimination against Giddens with the city's human relations commission. The charge was not based on racial grounds, and according to police department regulations the policemen had no case. There was no decision made on the charges because they were dropped after Giddens resigned.

At various times, members of Evanston's black community charged there was an attitude prevalent in the police department that sanctioned violence against blacks.

Six black members of the Evanston advisory committee on police-community relations resigned, charging that Giddens had thwarted the committee's purpose.

A native Texan, Giddens is married and has two grown daughters. He was graduated from the Oklahoma City College of Law, Oklahoma University, and the Northwestern Traffic Institute. He started as a patrolman in Oklahoma City and when he left, 20 years later to go to Evanston, it was as assistant police chief.

EPPLEY SAID that Giddens comes to Mount Prospect highly recommended by former employers and associates. He said he had received a strong recommendation on Giddens part from Evanston City Manager Wayne Anderson and from Frank Kreml of Northwestern University. Eppley also talked with Giddens' former Oklahoma City employer while he was attending a manager's conference in Florida last month.

"All things considered, Bert Giddens with his experience and educational background offers the most potential contribution to the police function in Mount Prospect. The results of the psychological and polygraph testing helped to confirm my judgment," Eppley wrote the village board in a memorandum.

GIDDENS, WHO IS currently earning more than $21,000 a year as a professor, is expected to receive $18,000 a year as police chief. The salary was to be approved at last night's village board meeting. It contains a raise of some five percent over the previous chief's salary.

The chief's post was vacated last August when Newell Esmond retired and moved to Florida. Police Lt. John Savage has been acting as interim chief.

In making his announcement, Eppley commended Savage for his "outstanding job" as acting chief. Eppley said Savage "did not sit and vegetate but moved the department forward in a number of vital projects."

The manager said that since Savage was not compensated for his time as acting chief, he will be given an additional week's vacation.

fire in October. The firm hopes to re-open this month.

Are National Political Antics Coming To Suburbs?

The Herald has learned five village officials, including Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, are among the eight Republican precinct captains in Buffalo Grove.

A check of the precinct captain list at the Wheeling Township Republican headquarters in Arlington Heights yesterday revealed the elected officials, besides Armstrong, who are precinct captains are trustees Randall Rathjen, Thomas Mahoney, and Charges Vogt.

James Kowieski, chairman of the village zoning board of appeals, is also a Republican precinct captain. Kowieski was appointed by the village board to the zoning board.

Armstrong heads the Republican organization in the 91st precinct; Kowieski in the 38th; Rathjen in the 66th; Mahoney in the 72nd; and Vogt in the 83rd.

IT WAS ALSO learned from a worker at the Republican headquarters that most of the officials have become precinct captains within the last year.

The worker could not estimate what the normal annual turnover is in the predict captain jobs, but said Rathjen had served as a co-captain of a precinct before, and Thomas Mahoney has worked as a precinct captain for about a year.

The worker did not know exactly when the other officials began their duties, but said they were "new."

Precinct captains are recruited by the area chairman and asked if they are willing to serve in that capacity.

The area chairman for Buffalo Grove is William Kinkade, a Buffalo Grove park district commissioner and a candidate for state representative from the newly formed 1st district.

The Herald first learned about the precinct captain list from a reader who expressed concern that national politics might be filtering down to the local level.

With the exception of Mahoney, all of the village board members who are Republican precinct captains were slated and supported in last spring's village election by the Buffalo Grove Alliance (BGA), a local political party.

MAHONEY WORKED for the BGA in Armstrong's campaign, and after the election was appointed by Armstrong to fill his (Armstrong's) trustee seat when he was elected village president.

The township Democrats refused to disclose the names of their precinct captains, when asked by the Herald.

James L. McCabe, township Democratic committeeman said "never in my four and a half years, or in the 10 years of my predecessor," has the Democratic organization made the secret list of their precinct captains public record.

He added that while people are willing to volunteer to work for the party, they don't want their names known in public.

He went on to explain there are "so many changes" in the list that if he were to reveal the names now, within a few months the make-up of the list would be altered.

"If I gave them to you in November, by March they would be different," the committeeman said.

OK Improvement On Well; Will Double Capacity

The Buffalo Grove Village Board has authorized repairs and improvements that would more than double the pumping capacity of Well No. 3 near the municipal building.

At Monday's village board meeting, the trustees voted to have specifications drawn and bids advertised for the work, which is expected to cost about $40,000.

The well is pumping at a rate of 300 gallons per minute, or about 60 per cent of its capacity, according to Village Mgr. Daniel Larson.

Larson said the village had planned to make repairs for the well since it was purchased from the now-defunct Buffalo Utility Co. a year ago.

Money to pay for the work will come from the bonds sold to purchase the utility company.

"Hopefully, the well will be repaired by spring," Larson said.

The work on the well will increase the pumping capacity to 800 gallons per minute.

IN OTHER ACTION, the village board accepted the resignation of Merrill Hoyt as chairman of the plan commission.

Hoyt, who will remain as a member of the commission, cited increased business commitments of his law practice as the reason for his resignation.

The plan commission voted to recommend that Commissioner Carl Genrich be appointed Hoyt's successor, but Village Pres. Gary Armstrong delayed appointing a new chairman until the next formal village board meeting in two weeks.

In the interim, Hoyt will continue to act as plan commission chairman.

The village board also referred changes in the zoning ordinance to the village engineer and village attorney for their review.

Village Board Doesn't Like Hydrant Plan

The Buffalo Grove Village Board expressed dissatisfaction Monday with a fire department proposal to maintain village fire hydrants for $5 each annually.

The trustees postponed action on the proposal and directed Village Mgr. Daniel Larson to meet with Fire Chief Wayne Winter to discuss alternatives.

Apparently the trustees wanted the fire department to perform maintenance at a reduced cost or no charge.

LARSON TOLD the board that because of "limitations of maintenance men" the village cannot maintain the 426 hydrants properly.

He said hydrants should be inspected twice a year, and the fire department personnel are more qualified to do the inspections. He also said the village does not have the manpower to do the work.

If the village had a municipal fire department, the fire department would normally have the responsibility of maintaining the hydrants, Larson explained.

Trustee Edward Fabish said if the village were to pay the fire department for maintenance, that money should be paid back to the village as partial payment for "big Red," the fire department's aerial ladder truck.

Other trustees saw the fee was a means for the fire department to pay the salary of the second full-time fireman who began work in September.

"They're trying to find ways to defray payment for their second full-time man," Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said.

THE TRUSTEES also postponed action on an ordinance establishing load limits on village streets. The ordinance was aimed at preventing construction trucks from driving on residential streets and tearing up roads with heavy loads.

After some discussion on what the load limits should be, and what streets they should be applied to, the trustees directed the village engineer to review the ordinance and report back to the village board.

Set Pal-Waukee Tower Talks

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials and members of a Wheeling residents' committee plan to meet to discuss complaints about the FAA control tower at Pal-Waukee Airport.

The meeting grew out of an exchange of letters between FAA regional director Lyle K. Brown and representatives of the residents' committee. It would deal with landing and flight patterns at the airport and operations of the tower.

The committee is responsible for a Cook County investigation into the runway length, plane weight and flight patterns at the airport. It also was instrumental in getting a suit filed to enforce a Cook County special use permit limiting runway length, plane weight and flight patterns.

The committee has most recently been questioning the expenditures of federal funds to run the FAA tower at the private airport.

In his most recent letter to the residents' committee Brown asserted that the FAA was not a party to the issuance of the county permit for the Pal-Waukee jet runway in 1968, as the committee had charged.

He said that there were meetings to change the flight patterns at Pal-Waukee following the establishment of the FAA tower there in 1967. The meetings were "not closed-door," and were designed to cope with existing aircraft conditions in the area including traffic patterns from Sky Harbor and Glenview Naval Air Station, Brown said.

THE RESIDENTS had charged that the FAA had changed the patterns "to allow large, high performance, jet transport aircraft to use Pal-Waukee."

They have also said that the county permit required a public hearing before the FAA could make changes in the flight patterns.

Brown responded that establishing flight patterns "is solely within the jurisdiction of the federal government and no local government has the authority to modify or restrict traffic patterns established by the Federal Aviation Administration."

The FAA has no jurisdiction over landing weights and other airport facilities, Brown told the residents.

Christmas Shoplifting Time

by TOM VON MALDER

'Twere the days before Christmas
And all through the stores
Went greedy little hands
Looking to take more

Shoplifting at Christmas time is a problem for most retail stores. The crowds of shoppers are larger, making it more difficult to spot a light-fingered culprit.

The problem becomes acute when there is a large shopping center in a community, such as with the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect. A look at police department figures for the month of December reveals that at Randhurst alone, there were 10 arrested shoplifters in 1969 and 17 arrestees last year. And the problem is not just confined to Randhurst.

But no community has a police department large enough that men can be spared from other duties to merely patrol every store. This leaves the stores with much of the burden in reducing the incidence of theft from their counters.

The larger department stores often form their own security departments, and those at Randhurst are no exception. "MY AGENTS are strictly undercover," the head of the loss prevention bureau of a large department store at Randhurst, said in a recent interview. She has some 16 agents working for her throughout the store.

Some of these agents are off-duty Cook County policemen, she said. "The average age would be about 30, and they have worked an average of two years at the store," she said.

The speaker is young enough that she could pass as a teenager.

"I can dress like them (teenagers) and pass for them," she said. "So I do not hire teenagers to work for my department. Teenagers are too eager to pick up someone, and if you become overzealous you have a tendency to make false arrests."

That brought up a major problem in catching shoplifters.

"You have to see them take it, conceal it and carry it away before you can apprehend them," the agent said. But when they pick up someone, generally the thief is turned over to Mount Prospect Police. A few juveniles are released into their parents' custody.

"This store has developed a very good relationship with Mount Prospect Police," she said. "We do our best to uphold the law. I think we catch a real good percentage of them (thieves) but we specialize (in surveillance) in certain areas at this store." This would leave other areas in the store less protected, although the agents are continually on the move.

NOT EVERY store uses undercover agents. Some cannot afford them, and other stores are too small. Jewelry stores and the like will hire an armed, uniform guard.

"Even we will use an armed man, if there is a consistent increase in shortages from a certain department or area," the store agent said.

"We're here to prevent, not just to pick up people," she said. "If there's an opportunity for a shoplift — few clerks or an open area — a person is more likely to take something. Most shoplifting is done on impulse. Generally it's a teenager or a bored housewife who wants something to do."

The best prevention, she said, is to make the sales clerks more aware of the problem.

"An alert sales person is the chief factor in preventing a shoplift," she said.

In agreement was Marshall Smith of the Morton Suggestion Co., 800 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. His firm set up incentive and reminder programs utilizing posters that alert sales personnel to the problem.

"We try to prevent shoplifting before it starts," he said.

Smith said their programs promote shoplifting prevention by having sales personnel go up to people holding items and inquiring, "Can I help you?" and by asking a person, "Is that all?" when ringing up a purchase. This makes a would-be shoplifter think twice, he said.

Often it appears that shoplifting becomes a game for people. However, if caught, the penalties are high. An arrest becomes part of a person's permanent record, Mount Prospect's Acting Police Chief John Savage said. Also, the penalties for petty theft (up to $150) are up to a year in jail or $500 fine or both. For grand theft (over $150), a convicted shoplifter can get from one to 10 years imprisonment.

College Profs Vote Against Affiliation

by BETSY BROOKER

Affiliation of Harper College teachers with a state association was turned down by a narrow margin of nine votes in elections held during the past three days.

Of the 164 full-time faculty members, 79 voted against affiliation and 70 voted for it, an unofficial source said yesterday. Martin Ryan, faculty senate president, could not be reached for comment.

Since the college opened four years ago, the teachers have remained independent of all state teachers' associations.

Ryan said earlier the senate decided to consider affiliation this year because of its dissatisfaction with spring salary negotiations.

"It was not a question of money but the manner in which the negotiations were held," he said. "The negotiations were broken off unilaterally by the college board of trustees. That is not negotiations as I understand it."

"Teachers are often open to capricious and unjust actions on the part of school boards," he said. "The board can change policy anytime it wants. Affiliation with a state association would formalize our relations with the board and make all parties accountable."

If a majority of teachers had supported Ryan's view, another election would have been held at the college to determine which association teachers would affiliate. Representatives from both the Illinois Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers have solicited the Harper teachers' membership.

When asked their reaction to the election results, Harper administrators said, "it is their affair."

Candle Class Adds 'R' For Romance

by JERRY THOMAS

Candlelight in the night-school classroom added a fourth "R" — romance — to the reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic usually taught there.

It was High School Dist. 211's idea and a great way to get adults into the classroom again.

The teacher and students sat around in the dark, but don't misunderstand. It was all part of the class work and strictly an educational experience.

Daria Moore, a James B. Conant High School teacher, was the instructor, and her students, all perfect ladies, sat around in the dark with candles glowing. They created the air of romance on their own at home.

IT TOOK A lot of homework, but with their husbands' help the women all made candles of their own design and brought their first handmade candles to class this week.

As the warm glow of the lit candles cast shadows around the group of women, they talked about eating dinner with their husbands by candlelight, the wretched color of their creation or the mess they cleaned off the stove.

The candlemaking class, taught by Conant's art department, is just one of many adult classes the district offers.

Art classes, including systems and materials, macrame, instruction in yarn interknitting, and academic instruction are being held this month.

The adult education program ranges from practical arts such as car tune-up to academic efforts such as high school equivalency test preparations or advanced study.

Who goes to them and why?

Mrs. Michael Nichols of Hoffman Estates, a choir director, said making her own candles was "nostalgic, romantic, and cheaper." Discarded glass or plastic bottles, cartons, or sand provide the mold or form for melted, and colored candle wax.

"The department store is probably wondering why I need so many big cookie jars but they have the prettiest design and I used them for molds," she laughed. Most of the glass molds have to be cracked off the hardened wax. "That way you need many," she explained.

MRS. CHARLES LEVY of Hoffman Estates works and her husband likes the class "because it keeps me out of mischief and away from the ironing board and washing machine when I'm home."

Sniffing a fat rose red candle, she giggled and said it was scented with "Ecstasy" cologne.

"This isn't the one that provided the light for our dinner last night," she added.

"Phew! You should have used mine," said Mrs. Ted Trzcinski of Hoffman Estates as she sniffed her candle. "I used an old cheese bottle and scented it by accident. It must be the only candle in the world that looks like grape jam and smells like stinky cheese," she added.

Little rose colored fluted candles are part of Christmas decorations Mrs. Trzcinski plans to make for friends.

"This class has been fun. I always pictured the kind of things I'd like to buy and couldn't find them, now I can make them," she bragged.

"IT'S EXCITING watching this candle burn down," she confided, because she was waiting for it to cave in.

MIKE'S POUTING BECAUSE brother Mark is riding the rocking horse, but he gets comfort from his mother Penny Maheras of Elk Grove Village. The two boys were born in Greece and adopted two years ago.

Greek Babies 'Home' Here

About two years ago two nameless babies from Greece came home with George and Penny Maheras to Elk Grove Village.

Now Mark and Michael Maheras are rambunctious American three-year-olds, little different from their playmates except for the fact they sometimes chatter to each other in Greek.

"In Greece babies are not given names until they're baptized and so orphans are just called 'baby' until they are about two years old," Mrs. Maheras explained. "We named the boys and had them baptized as soon as we got home."

band, and her husband chose Mark, a dark-haired boy with big brown eye who looks most like her.

"We each chose a child who looks like the other. It worked out very well," she said.

Then the Maherases had to go through formal adoption proceedings in a Greek court, a much different experience than a U.S. court.

"You expect the court to be quiet, but there was quite a commotion. They were handling all the adoptions right after the bankruptcies," she said.

Then the two boys, after getting passports and visas, made the long transatlantic flight home with their new parents.

"MY MOTHER had come with us to help, and it was a good thing because we weren't used to two babies," Mrs. Maheras said. "She took care of one and the two of us took care of the other on the way over."

The two boys became American citizens on Nov. 16, with their parents taking the oath for them.

The Maherases speak Greek to their children at home and both boys have learned English from their playmates.

"When my husband and I were little, our parents used to speak to us in Greek and so it was just something we did naturally," she said.

And Mrs. Maheras, after two years, is enjoying having two active boys around the house. "They have made our house a home — and a disaster area," she said. "What one of them doesn't think of, the other one does."

Set Pal-Waukee Tower Talks

authority which allows the FAA to spend federal funds in a tower at a private airport Brown said. "The federal funds expended at Pal-Waukee are to provide air traffic control services to insure efficient utilization of the navigable airspace and the safe and expeditious flow of air traffic."

"For a number of years this agency has, as a matter of policy, not included privately owned airports in the air traffic control and air navigation systems even though they are open to the public. However, with the continued growth of aeronautical activity at these airports they are becoming more and more vital to an efficient air transportation system. For this reason the decision was made to provide FAA control tower services at Pal-Waukee Airport."

Private airports with FAA tower service on a full time basis are not charged for the service, the chief said.

IN RESPONSE to residents questions about why the bulk of flights landing at Pal-Waukee fly over Wheeling, Brown pointed to the fact that planes using instruments to land come in from the north because they are oriented to the "Omni-range" equipment located at Chicago-Land airport which is six miles north-northwest of Pal-Waukee.

In addition, he said pilots elect to land at Pal-Waukee from the north, west, and northeast to avoid the heavy concentration of air traffic around O'Hare International Airport.

However, he pointed out that there is no "official landing end" to the jet runway and that "wind direction and operational use of the other runways have a distinct bearing whether landings and departures on this runway are conducted to the NNW or to the SSE."

William Rogers, a spokesman for the residents' committee said yesterday that he expected the meeting between the residents and the FAA to be held in January.

Originally the committee had proposed the meeting be held on one of two nights this week in the Wheeling Village Hall.

The FAA director said he needed more time to set up the meeting and proposed a 10 a.m. meeting in his office in Des Plaines on either Dec. 21 or 22.

Rogers said yesterday that he planned to ask to have the meeting scheduled for after the holidays.

He said he hoped the meeting could be held in Wheeling so that more local residents, members of the committee and village officials could attend.

Recycling Center On Board Agenda

A discussion of a recycling center at Walt Whitman School and of a new law governing the suspension of students are included on the agenda for tonight's School Dist. 21 board meeting.

An executive session on negotiations with district employees, gym equipment bids, and items on Title II and Title III projects, and a suit for township funds are also on the district's agenda.

The 8:15 p.m. meeting will be held in the school district's administrative center at 999 W. Dundee Rd.

Promotion 'Came From Out Of Nowhere'

Soper Quits Village Board; Will Move To Connecticut

by MARGE FERROLI

Merwin E. Soper, the biggest vote-getter in the April village elections, yesterday resigned from the Palatine Village Board.

He and his family will move to Hartford, Conn., where he will assume responsibilities beginning Jan. 1 as a vice president of field operations for Aetna Insurance Co.

The business promotion "came as a complete surprise to me," Soper said yesterday. "It came out of nowhere."

He said he got a call last Tuesday offering him the position and a decision had to be made soon.

"This has been an agonizing thing for me," he said. "This is a substantial opportunity and I had to balance a commitment to the community against a commitment to my family and career."

"When I was a kid, my family moved all over. Five years is the longest I've ever stayed in one place in my life. I'd really gotten geared up to make Palatine my permanent home."

HIS DECISION to follow his professional opportunity and leave Palatine "was an unusual feeling for me. I've always felt pretty transient and making a decision to leave was never this hard."

"I just hope people understand why I chose my commitment to my family and career," he said.

This new location will be the fifth move Soper has made in 14 years. His job in the insurance business has led him from Des Moines, Iowa and San Francisco and back to the Midwest.

Soper, his wife and two children, have been residents of the Hunting Ridge subdivision for 2½ years while he worked as manager for the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. in Chicago.

In moving to Hartford and the Aetna firm, which is an affiliate of Connecticut General, Soper will have jurisdiction over seven regional offices covering about 20 per cent of the United States.

Although only a trustee for eight months, Soper said "it has been a very interesting and invigorating experience."

In April, Soper was the only candidate for the village board slated by the Republican party that was victorious. Receiving 2,011 votes, he was soundly placed into office, followed by the election of Clayton Brown and Fred Zajonc, who ran with the slate of the Village Independent Party (VIP).

PERHAPS SOPER'S most notable action during his short term as trustee was his proposal that village officials develop an ethics code for themselves which would provide income disclosure.

Besides his work with the board, Soper was active as co-ordinator of the Lincoln County proposal to bring about the secession of six Northwest suburban townships from Cook County. Soper and Wendell Jones, another Palatine village trustee, developed the basic plan for the new county and formed a study committee of nine individuals to investigate the idea.

Soper personally delivered his letter of resignation yesterday to Palatine Mayor Jack Moodie, whom he spoke with for 45 minutes.

"I am truly sorry to see him go," Moodie said. "I think he had a lot to offer. I really believe he did not expect to be transferred."

Moodie said a replacement for Soper on the board would not be named at least until Jan. 1. A nomination would be made by Moodie to be voted on by the full village board.

During the summer, the board also was faced with a vacancy when Trustee John Hughes resigned. Following Moodie's nomination, the board unanimously appointed Tom Ahern to the position.

THE STORY OF "Peter and the Wolf" will be enacted tonight by students at Plum Grove School, Palatine, beginning at 8 p.m. in the gymnasium. Students in the performance include, rear, Michele Obara and Steve Snick, who plays Peter and, front, Brad Wecker and Gayle Paulick. The performance will include a concert by the junior high chorus and band. Admission is free.

She's A Poised Winner

by MARGE FERROLI

Bette Jordahl's kid brother put 50 cents on the line in a bet on his sister, and it turned out he wasn't the only winner.

He collected from his own sister when she was awarded the title last month of Miss Palatine 1972, giving her the chance to try for the Miss Illinois title in July.

She may have lacked some confidence with her own family over her chances in the local pageant, but her poise and performance before the judges the night of the contest more than compensated for it.

"I'm really not nervous in front of people," she said. Her experience with modeling for the Tall Girls Shop, in Woodfield, where she works after school, helped her gain self-assurance in appearing before large gatherings of people.

The modeling also gave her opportunities to practice walking in a long dress, a feat which can strike fear into the hearts of many girls her age who might stumble over the hems of their skirts.

Bette, a slender blonde senior at William Fremd High School, showed ingenuity the night of the pageant when she gave a dramatic reading of an anti-war poem, "The Box," for the talent competition.

"At first I thought the poem might be too heavy for the pageant, but I decided to go with it," she said. "The poem is good because it's so universal. It has no specific setting or character."

SHE ALSO CHOSE the reading, which she did in a long, simple dress with a soft red back lighting, because it was a better representation of herself.

"Through the reading I thought I could relate to people what I really am, rather than just sitting there playing the bassoon," she said.

"I always called her Sarah Bernhardt," Bette's grandmother said, not surprised Bette won the title. "She not only talks with her mouth but with her hands, too."

Miss Jordahl's background in drama started in her sophomore year when she worked with the Fremd drama group on backstage crews and with the scenery for school productions. She got more involved in the technical side of shows in her junior year when she became a stage manager.

Her actual acting experience came during the summers when she worked with Nechotia Productions, a theatrical group of local high school and college students who remodeled an old barn near Barrington Hills to hold their performances.

This year, Miss Jordahl has served as president of the Fremd Drama Club and was voted Thespian of the Year at the school.

Acting, like sewing, is more a hobby to her. Her main interest, one she'd like to make as her profession, is art. She sees a practical application of her art studies through a career in fashion designing or illustrating.

Although her main efforts have been in painting realistically, Miss Jordahl often experiments with impressionistic designs and bright colors. However, some of these attempts often end up in unfinished products.

SWAPPING HER TYPEWRITER for a drill, Mrs. Marie Caranci of Arlington Heights, a guidance counselor for High School Dist. 211, comes back to school in the evening to drill a wick hole in a mushroom candle she made. ## Candle Class Adds 'R' For Romance

by JERRY THOMAS

Candlelight in the night-school classroom added a fourth "R" — romance — to the reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic usually taught there.

It was High School Dist. 211's idea and a great way to get adults into the classroom again.

The teacher and students sat around in the dark, but don't misunderstand. It was all part of the class work and strictly an educational experience.

Darla Moore, a James B. Conant High School teacher, was the instructor, and her students, all perfect ladies, sat around in the dark with candles glowing. They created the air of romance on their own at home.

IT TOOK A lot of homework, but with their husbands' help the women all made candles of their own design and brought their first handmade candles to class this week.

As the warm glow of the lit candles cast shadows around the group of women, they talked about eating dinner with their husbands by candlelight, the wretched color of their creation or the mess they cleaned off the stove.

The candelmaking class, taught by Conant's art department, is just one of many adult classes the district offers.

Art classes, including systems and materials, macrame, instruction in yarn interlocking, and academic instruction are being held this month.

The adult education program ranges from practical arts such as car tune-up to academic efforts such as high school equivalency test preparations or advanced study.

Who goes to them and why?

Mrs. Michael Nichols of Hoffman Estates, a choir director, said making her own candles was "nostalgic, romantic, and cheaper." Discarded glass or plastic bottles, cartons, or sand provide the mold or form for melted, and colored candle wax.

"The department store is probably wondering why I need so many big cookie jars but they have the prettiest design and I used them for molds," she laughed. Most of the glass molds have to be cracked off the hardened wax. "That way you need many," she explained.

MRS. CHARLES LEVY of Hoffman Estates works and her husband likes the class "because it keeps me out of mischief and away from the ironing board and washing machine when I'm home."

Sniffing a fat rose red candle, she giggled and said it was scented with "Ecstasy" cologne.

"This isn't the one that provided the light for our dinner last night," she added.

"Pheew! You should have used mine," said Mrs. Ted Trzcinski of Hoffman Estates as she sniffed her candle.

"I used an old cheese bottle and scented it by accident. It must be the only candle in the world that looks like grape jam and smells like stinky cheese," she added.

Little rose colored fluted candles are part of Christmas decorations Mrs. Trzcinski plans to make for friends.

"This class has been fun. I always pictured the kind of things I'd like to buy and couldn't find them, now I can make them," she bragged.

"IT'S EXCITING watching this candle burn down," she confided, because she was waiting for it to cave in.

"I know it's got to be hollow. My husband shoved about three yards of wick into this short fat little thing," she said.

Mrs. Garth Good of Hoffman Estates left a little early to attend an Alexian Brothers Medical Center board meeting. Her work at the hospital keeps her busy and candle making, like the upholstery class she took earlier, are fun and practical things to do.

She praised the district's efforts to provide adult education in the community.

"Wish I'd had time to make the auto mechanics class," she said, adding "cars always go haywire when a woman's alone. That's why there were so many women enrolled in the last class."

Mrs. Charles Bottger of Hoffman Estates created an almost black candle "unintentionally, believe me. It was my first creation and the furthest thing from what I wanted. But, it's kinda cute," she said. "It's just that it was supposed to be gold," she added.

Although the art experiences offered by Conant are over, the school schedules classes throughout the year. Persons interested in the adult programs may contact the school at 529-4333.

Teachers Reject Affiliation

by BETSY BROOKER

Affiliation of Harper College teachers with a state association was turned down by a narrow margin of nine votes in elections held during the past three days.

Of the 164 full-time faculty members, 79 voted against affiliation and 70 voted for it, an unofficial source said yesterday. Martin Ryan, faculty senate president, could not be reached for comment.

Since the college opened four years ago, the teachers have remained independent of all state teachers' associations.

Ryan said earlier the senate decided to consider affiliation this year because of its dissatisfaction with spring salary negotiations.

"It was not a question of money but the manner in which the negotiations were held," he said. "The negotiations were broken off unilaterally by the college board of trustees. That is not negotiations as I understand it.

"Teachers are often open to capricious and unjust actions on the part of school boards," he said. "The board can change policy anytime it wants. Affiliation with a state association would formalize our relations with the board and make all parties accountable."

If a majority of teachers had supported Ryan's view, another election would have been held at the college to determine which association teachers would affiliate. Representatives from both the Illinois Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers have solicited the Harper teachers' membership.

When asked their reaction to the election results, Harper administrators said, "it is their affair."

She's A Poised Pageant Winner

have a nice painting on the wall," said Miss Jordahl. "I want more out of it. There's got to be part of me in it."

Like any senior about to leave high school, Bette is now looking over the offerings of state colleges to select which might best provide her stronger studies in art and drama.

Going off to college shouldn't present any big problems of adjustment for Bette, since she has moved around more than most people in Palatine. Although born in Illinois, her family has moved throughout the country and world while keeping up with her father when he served with the military.

After Illinois, she lived in Ohio, and then made a big move to Germany, where she stayed a year. Back to America, her family lived in Texas for six years, then took off again for two years in the Philippines. Palatine has been her home base since then.

Bette needed a little push to get involved in the Miss Palatine pageant in the first place, crediting two friends and her drama teacher with persuading her.

ALTHOUGH THE bathing suit competition bothered her ("I felt a little like I was in a herd of cattle doing quarter turns in spike heels"), Bette says she enjoyed the competition and looks forward to the Miss Illinois pageant in the summer.

She's already figured out how to prepare for the state competition: by setting aside a few minutes each day prior to the event for smile practice to get her facial muscles in shape.

"My mouth was so sore from smiling when I woke up the day after the pageant. I don't want it to happen again."

Class Has Dash Of United Nations

by DOUG RAY
Kallias Mahesh Vofa, an Indian girl whose husband is a research engineer, is one of the students.
So is Sam, who immigrated from Puerto Rico 10 years ago and is now a Des Plaines barber.
George sits in the back of the room. He's a waiter who came here from Athens last year "to make money" and someday will return to his homeland.
All of them have a problem with the English language. They stumble through the pronunciation of "butcher" and "honest" and some of their fellow students don't know the meaning of the words.
Twice a week, they congregate in a second floor classroom at Maine East High School in Park Ridge, along with 10 others, at the Maine Township Adult Evening School and chatter the vowel sounds attempting to perfect them. They review past and present tenses of common verbs and get a short history lesson.

Their teacher calls the class "a true United Nations." For the past 15 years, William Scuderi of Arlington Heights has taught adult evening classes to immigrants with English language deficiencies.
"THE BIGGEST problem is to get them to overcome their shyness," said Scuderi, who works as a salesman during the day. "You almost have to pull it out of them."
Scuderi's teaching career began when he saw an adult education brochure which lacked classes for non-English speaking Americans. "I came to the school and talked to the director about an English class for those who don't speak it," he recalls.

The director agreed to initiate such a study program and Scuderi has been teaching the course ever since.
"A big plus is knowing about their home countries," Scuderi said. "I study the habits and customs and learn a little about each of them (the countries)."
For Scuderi's work in helping the immigrants better understand the American way of life, he was presented the Thatcher award by Park Ridge chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR). A tea was held by the DAR chapter last week at the close of the past semester.
"Getting the students to speak the English language is an obstacle to overcome," he commented. He said they speak English during the class session but revert to their native tongues when they leave.

His students are predominantly Spanish speaking, a language he speaks fluently as his parents were Italian immigrants. But his most recent class had students from countries as distant as Thailand, Poland and China.
"My job is to make them feel welcome here," he said, "and to let them know they can accomplish something. They must get rid of the loneliness as well as other problems like finances, family and work," he added. "I guess my job is like being a psychiatrist and a teacher."
The 10-week course in elementary English, when completed, "gives the students the ability to communicate. They can go to the store to buy food without problems."
The students then can enroll in a more advanced vocabulary course and some, Scuderi said, "have received high school equivalency degrees."

During his tenure, the class sizes have bulged especially during revolutionary upheavals in foreign countries. "During the Cuban and Hungarian revolutions, I began to get more students," he said.
Over the years he has instructed foreign doctors and lawyers in the English language and now has housewives and engineers enrolled. "They are just like elementary students with some of the same questions about this country."

Assessment Procedures Probe Urged

by NANCY COWGER
Investigation of assessing procedures used by Cook County Assessor P. J. Cullerton was called for Monday by Hoffman Estates Trustee Edward Hennessy, who suggested the topic for a coming Northwest Municipal Conference meeting.
The village was asked to supply a list of five areas of mutual concern to conference members, which could be placed on the meeting agenda. The trustees came up with more than the requested amount, several of which were directed at specific individuals or communities.
"The municipal conference should ask if Assessor Cullerton's records are open to scrutiny, as to how they do it," said Hennessy. One area to explore would be possible differences in assessment methods used in suburban areas and the City of Chicago, he suggested.

A secretary in Cullerton's office said records are available at any time, although persons must provide index numbers to specific properties, and cannot peruse entire assessment books.
AMONG OTHER suggestions were a study of a suit filed by Mayor Nicholas Blase of Niles, seeking federal court affirmation of a statement by a California's appeals court on funding for schools.
Blase contends education is a state responsibility, and the state should collect and disburse tax funds for schools.
Distribution of sales tax receipts according to population, rather than by sales volume, also was proposed by Hennessy.

Juvenile problems in the Chicago area, and development of programs to deal with vandalism, juvenile crime and juvenile needs was urged by Trustee Virginia Hayter.
Other discussion could focus on home rule, sharing of expertise among municipalities, mutual efforts for conservation and environmental protection, study of long-range water needs and means of meeting them and study of solid waste disposal management systems, suggested the trustees.
Administrative Assistant George Longmeyer is to forward the ideas to conference organizers.

Pollution Depends On Nation

"I heard one African from a small country say he'd love to see smoke rising from a smokestack. Concern about pollution — it depends on the nation."
That was one conclusion reached by Fredric C. Olds who took a five-week trip to Europe recently to learn what the rest of the world had to say about nuclear energy and the environment. Olds, senior editor of "Power Engineering" magazine, attended international conferences in Paris, Geneva and Berlin.

"It depends if you're a 'have' or 'have-not' country," said the former engineer in heavy industry and environmental control. "If you're a 'have,' you have the luxury to spend money to make sure the smoke coming from stacks is the purest. If you're a poor country, you're delighted to have any form of production for your people."

Olds made another discovery after individual interviews with nuclear authorities in government, industry, science and at universities in Munich, Brussels and Luxembourg.

"When scientists get together to talk about the environment, they tend to talk man-to-man as scientists. But in official gatherings, the subject becomes overwhelmingly political," he said.

"You find that in general the European countries are in favor of nuclear power because they are low in other fuels. But you can't get answers from the Iron Curtain countries. You ask the Russian delegates if they have enough fuel, they say they have enough. You ask them if they have any problems, they say they have none. There's no way of knowing what's propaganda and what is not."

OLDS AND HIS wife, who live in Prospect Heights, took the trip to find out more about European countries. But, almost as a bonus and with no effort, the two discovered several things they didn't know about the United States.

"In talking with those people we began to see the U.S. through their eyes and we saw a sad thing," he said. "The U.S. has established itself as a leader of the free world. And to be worthy of other countries' trust, a leader should know where it is going and how it is going to get there. But we found a bewilderingment because people can't understand where we are going technologically, politically, socially and economically."

"I love this country — it's my home. And it was very painful for me to see the U.S. this way — as a nation wallowing around in their decisions, squandering our best technical brains in red tape."

Area Man Charged With Kidnaping

A Palatine man was arrested in his home Tuesday night on a Kane County warrant charging him with aggravated kidnaping and rape.

Robert S. Lewis of 321 Cheryl Ln. was apprehended at 10:30 on the two-count indictment handed down by a County Grand Jury.

He was arraigned yesterday morning in Kane County Circuit Court in Geneva and was released on bond.

County Sheriff's Police said Lewis was charged with abducting a juvenile in Barrington on June 2 and taking her to Dundee.

Although Barrington is in Cook and Lake counties, the hearing will be held in Kane County, where Dundee is located.

School Slates Canned Goods Drive Dec. 13

A canned goods drive will be held at Plum Grove School in Palatine from Dec. 13 through Dec. 16.

The drive is being sponsored by the student council and is one of several community projects they have planned for the year.

The canned goods will be taken to the Northwest Opportunity Center and from there distributed to needy families in the area.

The council's goal is one article from each faculty member and student, but persons not directly connected with the school may also bring in canned goods for the drive.

He'll Poll Residents If Elected To Legislature

Will Meyer Hold City, State Jobs?

The mayor of Rolling Meadows said yesterday he was uncertain whether he would relinquish his job as mayor if elected to the state legislature in November.

Mayor Roland Meyer, who was elected to his second four-year term as mayor in April, is seeking the office of state representative from the new 3rd district.

"I haven't made any decision on that yet," Meyer told the Herald when questioned about the possibility of holding the two elected posts. If elected to the legislature, Meyer will poll Rolling Meadows residents to find out their thoughts on his holding both positions.

"I will get out a letter to all the people to see if they object to both jobs," Meyer said. "They are the ones who pay my salary." He said he will canvass the residents, prior to the first of the year.

Meyer may hold the two jobs simultaneously under the new Illinois constitution, according to Tom King, supervisor of the Cook County Board of Election Commissioners. However, Meyer may be prohibited from receiving the mayor's salary while serving with the legislature, King said.

The constitution states that "no member of the General Assembly shall receive compensation as a public officer or employee from any other governmental entity for time during which he is in attendance as a member of the general assembly."

King said interpretations of this clause have varied. He said an ethics bill, which did not pass the last legislative session, would have clarified this clause.

The Mayor of Schiller Park, Edward E. Bluthardt, is also a state representative from the 2nd legislative district. Bluthardt said he accepts a $3,000 a year salary as mayor and his full $12,000 salary as representative.

Roland Meyer

Electing a man to two offices, Bluthardt said, is "basically a decision of the people. They know you're holding another office, and it's their choice to elect you or not."

He said being mayor has its practical political implications. "You've got to have some base of operations in order to build support. The mayorality gives that kind of support."

Meyer announced his candidacy for the state legislature last week and will enter what apparently will be an open primary race among four legislative hopefuls. Besides Meyer, seeking Republican party endorsements are Schaumburg Township Committeeman Donald L. Totten, Arlington Heights Village Trustee James T. Ryan and Mrs. Virginia MacDonald, former constitutional convention delegate from Arlington Heights.

Thus far, the Republican slatemakers have failed to select two favorite candidates from the four seeking the two vacant posts.

Meyer claims to have support from five of the six mayors in the new district. He held a meeting last night to gain support of Rolling Meadows aldermen.

WITH ONLY 16 days left until Christmas, Christopher Sullivan, 4, isn't taking any chances of being forgotten. Waiting in line to mail their requests are Jay Gould, 3, and Ricky Ciganek, 4. Santa's mailbox is in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Mall. The Rolling Meadows Jaycettes, working with Santa's helpers, have promised to answer all letters mailed before Dec. 21.

Carroll Wants A Progressive City

by KEN KOZAK

Frank Carroll is a businessman. In the past, when he'd tell people about his firm and where it's located they'd often respond with, "Oh? Where's Rolling Meadows?"

That is not the kind of remark that reassures a man whose success may depend not only on his own firm's reputation but also on his town's reputation as a business community.

But Carroll doesn't get that question much anymore. Rolling Meadows is securely positioned on the map as a thriving tract in the fertile northwest Suburban industry belt that spans the distance from Barrington to Chicago.

Carroll has more than a casual interest in helping Rolling Meadows develop a strong and flexible backbone of business and industry. On Jan. 1, he'll take over as president of the city's Chamber of Commerce, a job that will put him at the center of activity of the city's business community.

He's been in business in Rolling Meadows since 1958, when he founded Decks Inc., a roofing firm. He's been associated with the Chamber for three years, on the board of directors, as first vice president and now as president-elect.

CARROLL SAID being a full-time businessman and part-time Chamber president didn't appeal to him at first. "I did some soul searching," he said, "because I didn't really want the job. But I felt duty bound because I had accepted the first vice presidency. So I'm going to do the best I can."

"The best" will mean working to further Rolling Meadows' image as a growing community that's good for business.

"Rolling Meadows has a 'Who's Who' listing of businesses already, with Chemplex, Western Electric and Hallcrafters located here," he said.

"I'm amazed at the number of industrial businesses in Rolling Meadows. There may be as many as 70. Since 1960 firms have been moving in here out of nowhere. Industry is growing like crazy."

Carroll speculated that "fairly low land costs and a terrific highway system" have played a large part in the industrial development not only of Rolling Meadows but of the entire northwest suburban block of towns and villages.

Whatever the reasons may be, Carroll said, businesses "are coming out here and these are firms that don't do things by chance."

"Industrial growth has been huge in the northwest area," he said. "I think soon we're going to have an industrial belt all the way to Milwaukee."

CARROLL SAID much of business' success in Rolling Meadows is due to a good working relationship with city government, which he hopes to expand during his year as chamber president.

"Our relationship with the city has been excellent," he said. "I think they understand that it's well for them to pay heed to business."

"The chamber is moving ahead well right now. Bill Jenkins (outgoing president) has put it on a very sound basis. We're not minor leaguers in Rolling Meadows. The times aren't going to let us be."

Which is why the still occasional "Where's Rolling Meadows?" tends to rankle Carroll. "We want people to associate Rolling Meadows with progress," he said, "because we want our businesses associated with progress."

Apartment-Shopping Center Gets Preliminary OK

The Rolling Meadows plan commission has given preliminary approval to a proposal to build an apartment-shopping center complex on 58 acres west of the city in unincorporated Palatine Township.

But the project may go no further because part of the area may be within the boundaries of the Salt Creek Watershed Plan, a cooperative flood-control program involving among others, the Metropolitan Sanitary District, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service and several local communities.

Eugene Beery of Palatine, one of the partners in the proposed development, said the U.S. Department of Agriculture was about to begin condemnation proceedings on some of the land that he and his partners want to develop into Aspen Apartments.

The other partners in the development are Robert Nitsche, a Chicago general contractor, Howard Weiper and Morton Balaban, partners in Weiper and Balaban, Inc., a Chicago architectural firm.

James Muldowney, Rolling Meadows city engineer, said he had corresponded with Lee Bridgman of the local U.S. Department of Agriculture office about the possibility that some of the Aspen development falls within the flood-control plan boundaries.

MULDOWNEY SAID Bridgman is supposed to send him a map outlining the boundaries of the flood-control project on Salt Creek. If the Aspen property falls within those boundaries, Muldowney said, it would be condemned and the developers would be unable to build on the condemned land.

Beery and his partners are seeking the annexation of 47.2 acres west of Quentin Road, five acres east of Quentin and a six-acre corridor connecting that property to Rolling Meadows.

The property is bordered on the west by Harper College, on the south by Algonquin Road and on the north by the Palatine village limits. A branch of Salt Creek winds through the Aspen property and forms part of its western boundary.

The 47 acres west of Quentin would be developed into an apartment complex and the five acres east of Quentin would be a small shopping center.

THE PLANNED development proposal that was presented to the plan commission is for 15 three-story buildings, each containing 23 two-bedroom units and 46 one-bedroom units, totaling 1,035 units.

Beery said he does not know what the future of the Aspen complex will be. He said his attorneys are researching the options that the developers will have if the property is condemned.

The Salt Creek Watershed Plan has been prepared by several local communities in conjunction with the U.S. Soil and Conservation Service. The plan would provide flood protection for 1,200 homes, three schools and 3,400 acres of land in the area.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

In a ruling designed to help out the food and clothing industries, the Cost of Living Council said that companies which are innocent victims of wild swings in the cost of new materials do not have to notify the Price Commission before raising prices. The Pay Board meanwhile summoned Harvard Professor John Dunlop to a meeting last night to explain why his construction industry pay panel has authorized wage increases far above the board's own guidelines.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., broke with liberal colleagues and told the Senate he will vote to confirm William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court.

Sen. John V. Tunney, considered the leading Democratic politician in California, endorsed Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine for the Democratic presidential nomination on the assumption that Edward M. Kennedy will not be a candidate.

A Sunday school teacher in Westfield, N.J., is sought by police after the bodies of his wife, mother and his three teenage children were found shot to death in the family's 20-room mansion in an exclusive suburb. They had been dead for a month.

The State

County office holders from throughout the state registered for the 84th annual midwinter conference and seminar of the Illinois Association of County Officials. High on the agenda for at least one meeting of the three-day conference in Chicago is discussion of a recent ruling by a DuPage County judge who decided that the county must hold its county elections at the same time it holds statewide elections.

With at least 50 more delegates listed to speak, the U.N. General Assembly has scheduled extra sessions in hopes of finishing its debate on the Middle East crisis by this weekend.

Australian-born soprano Marie Collier, 44, who achieved fame overnight as a last-minute stand-in for diva Maria Callas six years ago, fell 30 feet to her death while opening a window in her London apartment, police reported. Police said the death was accidental.

East Germany rejected a compromise plan to open the Berlin Wall, allowing West Berliners to visit the East, West German officials announced.

Meanwhile, 50 U.S. Army doctors in Vietnam said that most U.S. casualties they treat result from self-inflicted wounds, fighting among GIs, auto accidents, jungle diseases and drugs — and not from combat.

Teachers Reject Affiliation

by BETSY BROOKER

Affiliation of Harper College teachers with a state association was turned down by a narrow margin of nine votes in elections held during the past three days.

Of the 164 full-time faculty members, 79 voted against affiliation and 70 voted for it, an unofficial source said yesterday. Martin Ryan, faculty senate president, could not be reached for comment.

Since the college opened four years ago, the teachers have remained independent of all state teachers' associations. Ryan said earlier the senate decided to consider affiliation this year because of its dissatisfaction with spring salary negotiations.

"It was not a question of money but the manner in which the negotiations were held," he said. "The negotiations were broken off unilaterally by the college board of trustees. That is not negotiations as I understand it.

"Teachers are often open to capricious and unjust actions on the part of school boards," he said. "The board can change policy anytime it wants. Affiliation with a state association would formalize our relations with the board and make all parties accountable."

If a majority of teachers had supported Ryan's view, another election would have been held at the college to determine which association teachers would affiliate. Representatives from both the Illinois Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers have solicited the Harper teachers' membership.

When asked their reaction to the election results, Harper administrators said, "It is their affair."

Ecology Day Called 'Most Successful'

Rolling Meadows' third Ecology Day, held Dec. 4, was the most successful yet.

More than 30,000 pounds of recyclable trash was brought to the drop-off point at the city garage. Residents dumped 16,800 pounds of paper, 10,000 pounds of glass, and 3,480 pounds of metal cans.

More than $200 was made from the sale of the recyclable waste to reclamation plants. The money will be divided among the youth groups that helped unload and sort the trash: the Rolling Meadows 4-H Club, Girl Scout Troop 808 and Boy Scout Troop 68.

The next Ecology Day is scheduled for Jan. 8.

Girl Scouts Busy During Yule Season

Girl Scouts in Rolling Meadows will be busy during the Christmas holiday season.

Approximately 300 scouts of all ages will be carolling Dec. 20 at 6:45 p.m. in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center mall.

On Dec. 20 the same scouts will make their annual Chicago trip. They will be going to the Goodman Theatre to see "The Magic Isle" at 11:30 a.m.

Band At Woodfield

The Rolling Meadows High School band and chorus will perform at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg. Christmas music will be presented under the direction of Lendell King.

Candle Class Adds 'R' For Romance

by JERRY THOMAS

Candlelight in the night-school classroom added a fourth "r" — romance — to the reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic usually taught there.

It was High School Dist. 211's idea and a great way to get adults into the classroom again.

The teacher and students sat around in the dark, but don't misunderstand. It was all part of the class work and strictly an educational experience.

Daria Moore, a James B. Conant High School teacher, was the instructor, and her students, all perfect ladies, sat around in the dark with candles glowing. They created the air of romance on their own at home.

IT TOOK A lot of homework, but with their husbands' help the women all made candles of their own design and brought their first handmade candles to class this week.

As the warm glow of the lit candles cast shadows around the group of women, they talked about eating dinner with their husbands by candlelight, the wretched color of their creation or the mess they cleaned off the stove.

The candelmaking class, taught by Conant's art department, is just one of many adult classes the district offers.

Art classes, including systems and materials, macrame, instruction in yarn interknitting, and academic instruction are being held this month.

The adult education program ranges from practical arts such as car tune-up to academic efforts such as high school equivalency test preparations or advanced study.

Who goes to them and why?

Mrs. Michael Nichols of Hoffman Estates, a choir director, said making her own candles was "nostalgic, romantic, and cheaper." Discarded glass or plastic bottles, cartons, or sand provide the mold or form for melted, and colored candle wax.

"The department store is probably wondering why I need so many big cookie jars but they have the prettiest design and I used them for molds," she laughed. Most of the glass molds have to be cracked off the hardened wax. "That way you need many," she explained.

MRS. CHARLES LEVY of Hoffman Estates works and her husband likes the class "because it keeps me out of mischief and away from the ironing board and washing machine when I'm home."

Sniffing a fat rose red candle, she giggled and said it was scented with "Ecstasy" cologne.

"This isn't the one that provided the light for our dinner last night," she added.

"Phewew! You should have used mine," said Mrs. Ted Trzcinski of Hoffman Estates as she sniffed her candle. "I used an old cheese bottle and scented it by accident. It must be the only candle in the world that looks like grape jam and smells like stinky cheese," she added.

Little rose colored fluted candles are part of Christmas decorations Mrs. Trzcinski plans to make for friends.

"This class has been fun, I always pictured the kind of things I'd like to buy and couldn't find them, now I can make them," she bragged.

"IT'S EXCITING watching this candle burn down," she confided, because she was waiting for it to cave in.

"I know it's got to be hollow. My husband shoved about three yards of wick into this short fat little thing," she said.

Mrs. Garth Good of Hoffman Estates left a little early to attend an Alexian Brothers Medical Center board meeting. Her work at the hospital keeps her busy and candle making, like the upholstery class she took earlier, are fun and practical things to do.

She praised the district's efforts to provide adult education in the community.

"Wish I'd had time to make the auto mechanics class," she said, adding "cars always go haywire when a woman's alone. That's why there were so many women enrolled in the last class."

Mrs. Charles Bottger of Hoffman Estates created an almost black candle "unintentionally, believe me. It was my first creation and the furthest thing from what I wanted. But, it's kinda cute," she said. "It's just that it was supposed to be gold," she added.

Although the art experiences offered by Conant are over, the school schedules classes throughout the year. Persons interested in the adult programs may contact the school at 529-4333.

What Do You Give Shoplifter For Christmas? Jail Term!

by TOM VON MALDER
"Twere the days before Christmas
And all through the stores
Went greedy little hands
Looking to take more Shoplifting at Christmas time is a problem for most retail stores. The crowds of shoppers are larger, making it more difficult to spot a light-fingered culprit.
The problem becomes acute when there is a large shopping center in a community, such as with the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect. A look at police department figures for the month of December reveals that at Randhurst alone, there were 10 arrested shoplifters in 1969 and 17 arrestees last year. And the problem is not just con-lined to Randhurst.

But no community has a police department large enough that men can be spared from other duties to merely patrol every store. This leaves the stores with much of the burden in reducing the incidence of theft from their counters.
The larger department stores often form their own security departments, and those at Randhurst are no exception.
"MY AGENTS are strictly undercover," the head of the loss prevention bureau of a large department store at Randhurst, said in a recent interview.
She has some 16 agents working for her throughout the store.
Some of these agents are off-duty Cook County policemen, she said. "The average age would be about 30, and they have worked an average of two years at the store," she said.

The speaker is young enough that she could pass as a teenager.
"I can dress like them (teenagers) and pass for them," she said. "So I do not hire teenagers to work for my department. Teenagers are too eager to pick up someone, and if you become overzealous you have a tendency to make false arrests."
That brought up a major problem in catching shoplifters.
"You have to see them take it, conceal it and carry it away before you can apprehend them," the agent said. But when they pick up someone, generally the thief is turned over to Mount Prospect Police.
A few juveniles are released into their parents' custody.
"This store has developed a very good relationship with Mount Prospect Police," she said. "We do our best to uphold the law. I think we catch a real good percentage of them (thieves) but we specialize (in surveillance) in certain areas at this store." This would leave other areas in the store less protected, although the agents are continually on the move.

NOT EVERY store uses undercover agents. Some cannot afford them, and other stores are too small. Jewelry stores and the like will hire an armed, uniform guard.
"Even we will use an armed man, if there is a consistent increase in shortages from a certain department or area," the store agent said.
"We're here to prevent, not just to pick up people," she said. "If there's an opportunity for a shoplift — few clerks or an open area — a person is more likely to take something. Most shoplifting is done on impulse. Generally it's a teenager or a bored housewife who wants something to do."

The best prevention, she said, is to make the sales clerks more aware of the problem.
"An alert sales person is the chief factor in preventing a shoplift," she said.
In agreement was Marshall Smith of the Morton Suggestion Co., 800 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. His firm set up incentive and reminder programs utilizing posters that alert sales personnel to the problem.
"We try to prevent shoplifting before it starts," he said.

Smith said their programs promote shoplifting prevention by having sales personnel go up to people holding items and inquiring, "Can I help you?" and by asking a person, "Is that all?" when ringing up a purchase. This makes a would-be shoplifter think twice, he said.
Often it appears that shoplifting becomes a game for people. However, if caught, the penalties are high. An arrest becomes part of a person's permanent record, Mount Prospect's Acting Police Chief John Savage said. Also, the penalties for petty theft (up to $150) are up to a year in jail or $500 fine or both. For grand theft (over $150), a convicted shoplifter can get from one to 10 years imprisonment.

Transportation Study Results
Held To January

(See bus schedule page 3)
The results of a transportation study made by the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce and Harper College are being held up, pending a review of the present experimental bus being run in the village.
This would mean the results of last summer's study, will not be made public until January, at the earliest. The results were given to the Chamber's board of directors Monday and to Village Mgr.
Robert J. Eppley on Tuesday.
Terry Frakes, Chamber president, said he felt it would "not be in the best interests of our experimental (bus) program" to release data from the study now. He said the success or failure of the present experiment should be considered also.
THE EXPERIMENTAL bus, called the "Shoppers' Special," makes five runs through the village every day but Sunday. It is being operated only for December and has been financed by the village and the Randhurst Corporation.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert has said the trial bus runs will give the village a better basis for determining the needs of a permanent bus system, than they have been getting from surveys. Each person who rides the bus fills out a card which allows the village to contact them later for opinion purposes.
Results of the first five days of operation of the shoppers' bus was announced at Tuesday night's board meeting. So far 392 persons have ridden the bus. Saturday was the high day with 260 riders and Friday was low with 18. Village Mgr.
Robert J. Eppley said he was "sure that's good news for the merchants and all concerned."
The Chamber's report is based on a telephone survey in which about 600
Mount Prospect households were questioned as to their needs and desires for a bus service in the village. It contains recommendations on mass transportation for the village.
According to Richard Hughes, chairman of the Chamber's transportation committee, older people, youths and Chicago and North Western Rwy. commuters all expressed interest in having a bus service in the village.

Bond Sale
Of $100,000
Is Approved

The Prospect Heights Park District Board Tuesday approved the sale of $100,000 in general obligation bonds to be used for buying and developing land.
Ron Greenberg, director, said bids for the bonds will be opened next Tuesday.
The funds are not budgeted for any specific project but part of the money may go for equipment for Lions Park on Camp McDonald Road. He said the district is considering buying three sites adjacent to Lions Park encompassing more than two acres for expanding the park.
The district owns seven park sites with only two sites developed and this may be another way the money can be utilized, he said.
The National Recreation Association and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission standards recommend one-acre of park land per 100 residents.
Greenberg said the district is well below the standard with nine acres of parkland for 8,000 residents.
Greenberg said the money probably won't be used to develop parks at John Muir and Eisenhower schools which are in the long-range plans of the district.
The total cost of that project has been estimated at $341,000.

Shared Computer Program To Start In Six Months

The four-town shared computer facility for Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Park Ridge may be in operation within six months, according to a Mount Prospect trustee.
Trustee Donald B. Furst, chairman of the finance committee of Mount Prospect, said he will present the Mount Prospect Village Board with a recommendation at the Dec. 21 board meeting.
The village could give the go-ahead at this time.
Mount Prospect had been the only community holding back its approval on the computer plan prepared by Touche, Ross & Co. The accounting firm has recommended the four towns set up and share the cost of a centralized computer and personnel.

Mount Prospect's objections to the plan concerned the high initial cost of the system and the fear that the village would end up paying for a lot of dead time, when the computer would not be in use.
FURST SAID the other three communities have agreed with Mount Prospect of three points. These were that the priority of items for computer use be altered so water billing could be included, that a computer manager be selected before funds are committed and that the "pretty defined" schedule of when hardware should be purchased be altered so that it will be more flexible.

"I feel we have to move positively on this," Furst said.
The Touche, Ross report cost about

$14,000, shared by the four towns. According to the study, the annual costs of operating the central facility over a 10-year period would be $20,000 a year for Mount Prospect, $19,000 a year for Arlington Heights, $40,000 a year for Des Plaines and $22,000 a year for Park Ridge.
These costs are based on the actual time each town would be using the computer which could also be used for pay-rolling, compiling police information and other operations.

45,228 Live
In Mount Prospect

Mount Prospect now has a population of 45,228.
Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said he has received figures from the U.S. Census Bureau that indicate the village an-nexed 10,233 new residents when it recently took in the Camelot and New Town portions of Prospect Heights.
This figure was much higher than any previous estimate. Eppley said that although it is not the final figure, such preliminary figures are accurate to about five persons.
To show the village's progress, Eppley told the village board Mount Prospect had an official population of 349 persons in 1920.

In a ruling designed to help out the food and clothing industries, the Cost of Living Council said that companies which are innocent victims of wild swings in the cost of new materials do not have to notify the Price Commission before raising prices. The Pay Board meanwhile summoned Harvard Professor John Dunlop to a meeting last night to explain why his construction industry pay panel has authorized wage increases far above the board's own guidelines.

The State

County officeholders from throughout the state registered for the 84th annual midwinter conference and seminar of the Illinois Association of County Officials. High on the agenda for at least one meeting of the three-day conference in Chicago is discussion of a recent ruling by a DuPage County judge who decided that the county must hold its county elections at the same time it holds statewide elections.

U.S. planes killed scores of Communists in bombing raids in Cambodia and dueling with Soviet-made missiles over Laos and North Vietnam in an upsurge of American activity in Indochina battlefields. Meanwhile, 50 U.S. Army doctors in Vietnam said that most U.S. casualties they treat result from self-inflicted wounds, fighting among GIs, auto accidents, jungle diseases and drugs — and not from combat.

The Market

Blue chips were stung by profit taking on the New York Stock Exchange but on balance the market was mixed in active trading. The Dow Jones Average had a loss of 2.55 at 854.85. ## Health 'Coordinate Services'

Officials from Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships expressed the desire to coordinate all mental health services in the area while discussing an application for state funds from Elk Grove Village Community Service Tuesday night.

Members of the two boards of auditors also agreed they want to study the application of the village-funded mental health and counseling agency before taking action. The two groups were holding a joint meeting called to discuss common problems between the two townships.

Representatives from Community Service have appeared before both boards in recent weeks asking for resolutions of support for their application to become the state mental health agency for the two-township area.

Both boards have postponed action on the request pending further study.

Elk Grove Township Auditor Richard Hall said that after hearing of the Community Service application, "I would like to find out everything that is going on in mental health in the area and then see us form a committee to coordinate these groups."

He added, "I got the impression that there is a contest among the various groups."

THE COMMUNITY Service application is being officially opposed by Northwest Mental Health Center, which is now the only state-funded center serving the two townships from its office in Arlington Heights.

Schaumburg Township Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein said his board had been told by the Community Service representatives that the state is favorable to their application for funds and then had heard from Northwest Mental Health that the state feels the application is "premature."

Elk Grove Auditor Bernard Lee said, "We have to remember the information from Northwest Mental Health might also be self-serving because they are now getting money, and, if the other groups get money, it's possible the state will decide to take it from Northwest."

Northwest currently receives about $130,000 from the state to supply services to Wheeling, Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships. Community Service is applying for a grant to serve the two southern townships because the four-township area now has a large enough population to allow the state to consider setting up a second agency.

The two sets of township officials compared the programs each has had for serving troubled youth in their area. Schaumburg has had a youth worker for the past year whose tasks included providing counseling for youths.

In October Elk Grove Township hired a youth worker who was to cooperate with Community Service's youth program and work in unincorporated areas. But she resigned after about a month on the job.

"WE ARE looking for another one, and we still think it's a good idea. But our problem was we ended up losing control of the young lady because she was working for Community Service, too," Lee said.

The auditors for both townships agreed the youth program was one way the two areas could cooperate and perhaps get funding from other local governments and through a tax levy.

Lee said, "If your program (in Schaumburg) can be expanded and we can get something like it, after we have a year or so of experience under our belts, I think we could convince our people we are providing a service they should provide more money for."

The two groups agreed to discuss the Community Service application further before taking action. Both boards have been asked to act before the first part of January because Community Service must then submit its formal application.

Rolling Meadows Mayor May Try For Two Jobs

The mayor of Rolling Meadows said yesterday he was uncertain whether he would relinquish his job as mayor if elected to the state legislature in November.

Mayor Roland Meyer, who was elected to his second four-year term as mayor in April, is seeking the office of state representative from the new 3rd district.

"I haven't made any decision on that yet," Meyer told the Herald when questioned about the possibility of holding the two elected posts. If elected to the legislature, Meyer will poll Rolling Meadows residents to find out their thoughts on his holding both positions.

"I will get out a letter to all the people to see if they object to both jobs," Meyer said. "They are the ones who pay my salary." He said he will canvass the residents, prior to the first of the year.

Meyer may hold the two jobs simultaneously under the new Illinois constitution, according to Tom King, supervisor of the Cook County Board of Election Commissioners. However, Meyer may be prohibited from receiving the mayor's salary while serving with the legislature, King said.

The constitution states that "no member of the General Assembly shall receive compensation as a public officer or employee from any other governmental entity for time during which he is in attendance as a member of the general assembly."

King said interpretations of this clause have varied. He said an ethics bill, which did not pass the last legislative session, would have clarified this clause.

The Mayor of Schiller Park, Edward E. Bluthardt, is also a state representative from the 2nd legislative district. Bluthardt said he accepts a $3,000 a year salary as mayor and his full $12,000 salary as representative.

Electing a man to two offices, Bluthardt said, is "basically a decision of the people. They know you're holding another office, and it's their choice to elect you or not."

He said being mayor has its practical political implications. "You've got to have some base of operations in order to build support. The mayoralty gives that kind of support."

Meyer announced his candidacy for the state legislature last week and will enter what apparently will be an open primary race among four legislative hopefuls. Besides Meyer, seeking Republican party endorsements are Schaumburg Township Committeeman Donald L. Totten, Arlington Heights Village Trustee James T. Ryan and Mrs. Virginia MacDonald, former constitutional convention delegate from Arlington Heights.

Thus far, the Republican slatemakers have failed to select two favorite candidates from the four seeking the two vacant posts.

Meyer claims to have support from five of the six mayors in the new district. He held a meeting last night to gain support of Rolling Meadows aldermen.

Christmas Tree The Year Around

This year Westbrook School's Christmas tree will stay in Mount Prospect when the holiday season is over.

The tree, a 7-foot Blue Spruce, was planted recently in the courtyard nature center of the school, 105 S. Busse Rd. Students Wednesday will trim the tree with handmade ornaments.

The tree was purchased with money donated by parents and students at the school. The student council decided this year it would be better to have a permanent tree than for each class to buy a tree that would be destroyed after Christmas.

Forest Preserve Burning Ruling Near

The Illinois Pollution Control Board will decide the fate of open burning at the Cook County Forest Preserve District tree burning area near Wheeling within the next few weeks.

The village of Wheeling, Wheeling-area residents, and antipollution enthusiasts have opposed a request by the forest preserve district to allow open burning at the site in addition to using the site for disposing of dead and diseased trees in an air curtain destructor, a machine designed to cut pollution from tree burning.

Among those favoring the variance for open burning are the village of Mount Prospect, and arborists who need the site to dispose of dead and diseased trees.

The variance asks for permission to allow open burning at the site to resume immediately and to continue until July 1, 1972.

At first the open burning would be the only method of disposing of trees at the site. Once the air curtain destructor, which is now being installed at the site, is operational it would also be used.

But, according to James Tyndal, assistant general superintendent of the forest preserve district, the variance would allow the district to burn openly until July, all trees in excess of what one air curtain destructor could consume.

As of that date all burning at the site would be in air curtain destructors. Tyndal said the county needs the additional time for open burning to determine how many destructors will be needed for the site.

THE ISSUE over the burning site began when the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) closed the burning area in September under a new state law on environmental control.

Since that time the county has received a burning permit which will allow burning in the destructor once it is installed, Tyndal said.

He explained that the first destructor should be installed by the end of December if the weather is good. The machine will then have to be inspected by the EPA before the burning permit for the destructor goes into effect, Tyndal said.

But whether open burning will also be allowed at the site until next summer is for the pollution control board to decide.

A public hearing on the variance for that open burning was held last Friday at the Northbrook Village Hall. EPA officials said they would make a decision by Jan. 4.

At the hearing arborists and the forest preserve district favored open burning, while the village of Wheeling, the Northbrook environmental quality commission, and individual residents opposed it.

Wheeling administrative assistant Roger Stricker said at the hearing that the village filed an objection to burning at the site in November.

"ALTHOUGH THIS site is not within the limits of the village of Wheeling it is close enough that the smoke and ashes from this burning directly affects the citizens of Wheeling," Stricker said at the hearing.

"The village of Wheeling would again like to go on record that we have had many complaints from our citizens in regard to burning that had gone on previously in this area and we are, therefore, strongly opposed to the issuance of this variance," Stricker said.

The village of Mount Prospect, on the other hand, passed a resolution endorsing the burning area for enabling municipalities to successfully battle Dutch elm disease and urged that the variance be granted.

In his letter requesting the variance from the EPA forest preserve district superintendent Arthur Janura pointed out that installation of the one 25-foot air curtain destructor at the site is costing the county in excess of $50,000.

In defense of the variance request Janura noted that, "Lack of funds and land area to install air curtain destructors leaves the local municipalities without a practical method of disposing of the wood wastes generated in their villages, primarily as a result of the Dutch elm disease."

He pointed out that the need for the site to remain open affects the City of Chicago, the Chicago Park District, 36 other municipalities, more than 50 private arborists and the forest preserve district itself.

HE SAID open burning would only be begun when the wind was blowing away from nearby populated areas.

The final result of a refusal for the variance, according to Janura, could be that the inability to dispose of diseased elm trees "would create epidemic conditions resulting in the death and destruction of all elm trees in the Chicago Metropolitan area. In addition," he said, "standing dead trees in parkways, parks, forest preserve areas and on private property would become an extreme safety hazard."

When asked their reaction to the election results, Harper administrators said, "it is their affair."

SCOTT NAILOR AND THE HOMEMAKER who has cared for him since he broke his leg in October have made paper chains and other things. Vera Smogorzewski

Mother Praises The Plan

Family Service 'A Godsend'

by WANDALYN RICE

Scott Nailor had ridden his bike in back of the Eagles-on-Tonne Apartments in Elk Grove Village hundreds of times, and every once in a while he would fall when he ran into the loose gravel.

But one day early in October, the boy took a spill and landed wrong — with his leg tucked under him.

After a ride to the hospital in the fire department ambulance, Scott and his mother Gloria, got the bad news. His leg was broken just below the hip and he was to spend the next eight weeks in a cast from the center of his chest to the tip of his toe.

For Mrs. Nailor the news was especially bad. She has a job at Hale Engineering Co. in the village and supports Scott and her other two boys. She couldn't afford too much time off work for her son.

"When you have a husband around, your job doesn't mean very much," she explained. "But, when you're the provider (as she is) it's important. I didn't know what I was going to do."

AT THAT POINT Mrs. Nailor's doctor referred her to the social service agency at Alexian Brothers Medical Center and they told her about the Homemaker Service provided by Child and Family Services of Chicago.

The service will provide a trained homemaker for any family which needs temporary help because of illness, injury or other emergency and charges on a sliding scale related to income. Mrs. Nailor made the necessary arrangements and just a few days after Scott came home from the hospital, "Mrs. Smokey,"

Very Smogorzewski, came to work.

Since then she has taken care of Scott, helping with his homework and playing games with him. In addition, she cleans house and has the dinner ready when Mrs. Nailor gets home from work.

"It's really been a godsend to me," Mrs. Nailor said. "I don't know what I would have done without her."

One thing she might have done, she added, was send Scott to stay with her married daughter, but that would have meant the tutor sent from Mark Hopkins School wouldn't have been available.

The Homemaker Service has been active in Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg, Hanover Park, Hoffman Estates and Streamwood since May, according to Charles Duffy, social worker for the agency.

SOMETIME NEXT year, assuming that money comes from other area United Funds, the service will be available throughout the Northwest suburbs. Duffy said the agency usually gets referrals from the hospital and other agencies when a family needs help.

In addition, he said the service is looking for more homemakers like Mrs. "Smokey." "They don't need any special training because we train them ourselves," he said.

Scott will only need Mrs. "Smokey" for another week, since he got his cast off Saturday. When she finishes the assignment she will have been with the family for nine weeks.

She and Scott, Mrs. Nailor said, "have gotten along very well. They've had their little scrapes, and she's had to be firm with him, but that's fine with me."

Scott is looking forward to getting back to school and back to the Cub Scout pack he joined while still confined to bed.

And his mother is relieved. "It seems like forever, since it happened," she said. Of course, she admits she will miss Mrs. Smokey. "Coming home and having dinner ready spoils you."

The 8:15 p.m. meeting will be held in the school district's administrative center at 999 W. Dundee Rd.

Teachers Reject Affiliation

by BETSY BROOKER

Affiliation of Harper College teachers with a state association was turned down by a narrow margin of nine votes in elections held during the past three days.

Of the 164 full-time faculty members, 79 voted against affiliation and 70 voted for it, an unofficial source said yesterday. Martin Ryan, faculty senate president, could not be reached for comment.

Since the college opened four years ago, the teachers have remained independent of all state teachers' associations.

Ryan said earlier the senate decided to consider affiliation this year because of its dissatisfaction with spring salary negotiations.

"It was not a question of money but the manner in which the negotiations were held," he said. "The negotiations were broken off unilaterally by the college board of trustees. That is not negotiations as I understand it."

"Teachers are often open to capricious and unjust actions on the part of school boards," he said. "The board can change policy anytime it wants. Affiliation with a state association would formalize our relations with the board and make all parties accountable."

If a majority of teachers had supported Ryan's view, another election would have been held at the college to determine which association teachers would affiliate. Representatives from both the Illinois Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers have solicited the Harper teachers' membership.

When asked their reaction to the election results, Harper administrators said, "it is their affair."

Pal-Waukee Tower Talks Scheduled

Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials and members of a Wheeling residents' committee plan to meet to discuss complaints about the FAA control tower at Pal-Waukee Airport.

The meeting grew out of an exchange of letters between FAA regional director Lyle K. Brown and representatives of the residents' committee. It would deal with landing and flight patterns at the airport and operations of the tower.

The committee is responsible for a Cook County investigation into the runway length, plane weight and flight patterns at the airport. It also was instrumental in getting a suit filed to enforce a Cook County special use permit limiting runway length, plane weight and flight patterns.

The committee has most recently been questioning the expenditures of federal funds to run the FAA tower at the private airport.

In his most recent letter to the residents' committee Brown asserted that the FAA was not a party to the issuance of the county permit for the Pal-Waukee jet runway in 1968, as the committee had charged.

He said that there were meetings to change the flight patterns at Pal-Waukee following the establishment of the FAA tower there in 1967. The meetings were "not closed-door," and were designed to cope with existing aircraft conditions in the area including traffic patterns from Sky Harbor and Glenview Naval Air Station, Brown said.

THE RESIDENTS had charged that the FAA had changed the patterns "to allow large, high performance, jet transport aircraft to use Pal-Waukee."

They have also said that the county permit required a public hearing before the FAA could make changes in the flight patterns.

Brown responded that establishing flight patterns "is solely within the jurisdiction of the federal government and no local government has the authority to modify or restrict traffic patterns established by the Federal Aviation Administration."

The FAA has no jurisdiction over landing weights and other airport facilities, Brown told the residents.

In response to questions about the legal authority which allows the FAA to spend federal funds in a tower at a private airport Brown said, "The federal funds expended at Pal-Waukee are to provide air traffic control services to insure efficient utilization of the navigable airspace and the safe and expeditious flow of air traffic."

"For a number of years this agency has, as a matter of policy, not included privately owned airports in the air traffic control and air navigation systems even though they are open to the public. However, with the continued growth of aeronautical activity at these airports they are becoming more and more vital to an efficient air transportation system. For this reason the decision was made to provide FAA control tower services at Pal-Waukee Airport."

Private airports with FAA tower service on a full time basis are not charged for the service, the chief said.

IN RESPONSE to residents questions about why the bulk of flights landing at Pal-Waukee fly over Wheeling, Brown pointed to the fact that planes using instruments to land come in from the north because they are oriented to the "Omni-range" equipment located at Chicago-Land airport which is six miles north-northwest of Pal-Waukee.

In addition, he said pilots elect to land at Pal-Waukee from the north, west, and northeast to avoid the heavy concentration of air traffic around O'Hare International Airport.

However, he pointed out that there is no "official landing end" to the jet runway and that "wind direction and operational use of the other runways have a distinct bearing whether landings and departures on this runway are conducted to the NNW or to the SSE."

William Rogers, a spokesman for the residents' committee said yesterday that he expected the meeting between the residents and the FAA to be held in January.

Originally the committee had proposed the meeting be held on one of two nights this week in the Wheeling Village Hall.

The FAA director said he needed more time to set up the meeting and proposed a 10 a.m. meeting in his office in Des Plaines on either Dec. 21 or 22.

Rogers said yesterday that he planned to ask to have the meeting scheduled for after the holidays.

He said he hoped the meeting could be held in Wheeling so that more local residents, members of the committee and village officials could attend.

Area Church To Try Luck At Bingo

B-3, N-34... Bingo!

These shouts will echo through St. Collette's church hall in Rolling Meadows, beginning Friday, Jan. 7.

St. Collette's will be the first to introduce bingo in Rolling Meadows. Other games are already sponsored in the Northwest suburbs by the Buffalo Grove Fire Department, the Maine Township Jewish Congregation in Des Plaines, and the Knights of Columbus in Barrington.

The church plans to hold the bingo games every Friday, beginning Jan. 7. Starting time will be 8 p.m.

Tentative plans call for 25 games to be played each evening. Twenty of the games would be played for $25 pots, four for $100, and one game would have a pot of $250.

The state bingo law, which took effect Oct. 1, limits the value of prizes to no more than $500 per game, or $2,250 in any single day. The number of games is limited to 25 a day.

Admission will be $1. For the admission price people will be given one bingo card. More cards will be available at additional cost.

Due to another provision of the state law, admission will be restricted to people 18 years old and older.

THE CHURCH hall will accommodate approximately 600 players, according to a church spokesman.

The bingo games, which were approved by the Parish Council following several weeks of planning and discussion, will be sponsored by the church's Women's Club.

Proceeds from the bingo games will be used to offset deficits in church operation and St. Collette School, said Robert Ulbrich, a church spokesman. He kiddingly added, if there were any extra money it would be used to purchase a popcorn machine for the hall.

Refreshments will be available during the bingo games.

So far, the general enthusiasm that greeted the enactment of the law has not been reflected in attendance at games in this area.

Burglars Get Checks, Cash, Radios At Home

Government checks in the amounts of $45 and $225, a portable radio and $180 in cash were among items taken early Tuesday evening from the home of Joseph P. Urban, of 1702 Boulder Dr., Mount Prospect. Mount Prospect police said entry was gained through the back patio sliding door between 5:30 p.m. and 9:15 p.m.

Fire Department Only No. 2? That's Great

The Mount Prospect Fire Department was recently honored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

The association gave second place (for class two) on its 1971 Fire Prevention Week contest to Chief Larry Palritz and his force. Palritz said each entry submitted a scrapbook detailing the complete efforts and programs of the department in preventing and controlling fires.

The award was given for the content of the scrapbook, rather than just the presentation, Palritz said. He attributed the award to the work of the complete force, 29 officers and firemen.

was disappointed with the turnout at their first bingo night. Only 175 people showed up. There were about 350 persons expected for the game. People have speculated that after license fees are paid, equipment purchased, prizes provided, and maintenance costs met, an organization won't turn a profit unless it can attract about 1,000 people to play bingo.

A fire department spokesman said, after that first night, that attendance would have to pick up there or bingo would be shut down.

Nicholas Phillips Is Named To Board

Nicholas A. Phillips, 410 W. Marion, Prospect Heights, was appointed to the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District board of trustees Monday by George Dunne, president of the Cook County Board.

Phillips, whose term expires next June, fills the post on the three-man board vacated by Ed Downs. Phillips is a zoning land planner in the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

Zoning Change OK'd

A zoning change, required by a change in the zoning code ordinance, was approved Tuesday by the Mount Prospect Village Board for the Union 76 gasoline station at the southwest corner of Main Street and Evergreen Avenue.

Richard Link, a representative for the oil company, said plans for the site are to put canopies over the gas pump islands and to modernize the roof material. The change was necessary to eliminate the station's legal non-conforming use status, prior to the taking out of building permits.

2 Women Charged With Grand Theft

Two Chicago women were arrested Saturday by Mount Prospect Police and charged with grand theft in the theft of $230 worth of clothing from Wieboldt's at the Randhurst Shopping Center.

Police said Rita L. Koonce, 26, and Dream R. Erickson, 23, were apprehended by a store security agent after they allegedly took two men's suits. According to the police, Miss Koonce held up a coat to shield Miss Erickson from sight as Miss Erickson stuffed the two suits into her girdle.

Both were released on $5,000 bond, pending a Dec. 23 court date.

Eight Groups Discuss Ways Of Intergovernmental Aid

by KURT BAER

Units of local government traditionally have operated with diffident independence.

But yesterday morning representatives from eight governmental units with jurisdiction in Arlington Heights met with Village Pres. Jack Walsh to discuss the need and the chances for increased intergovernmental cooperation.

Wheeling Township, Harper College, high school districts 211 and 214, elementary school districts 21 and 25, the Arlington Heights Park Board and the board of trustees were all represented.

Some of the most frequently suggested areas where local governments might benefit from greater mutual cooperation included insurance, purchasing, printing and communication.

Walsh called the meeting to consider what he called "the long term importance of intergovernmental cooperation as well as specific short term projects."

THE POTENTIAL for heightened cooperation grows out of the new state constitution which gives local governments considerable latitude to enter into joint activities.

Village Atty. Jack Siegel said the constitutional provisions for intergovernmental cooperation appear to be "self-executing" and do not require any specific statutory authority.

Walsh called the provisions "simple, flexible and broad."

The joint purchasing of supplies and certain services was an area all of the representatives thought should be explored further. Communication gaps between government bodies was another.

Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the consolidated printing of forms and other documents might make it feasible for the governments to jointly purchase and operate a printing shop.

A planning director for Harper College said a printing facility sounded like a good idea because it could be used as an in-service training course for Harper and perhaps some high school students.

OTHER AREAS of possible cooperation mentioned during the meeting included: political lobbying, protection against property, vandalism, traffic safety, coordination of mental health and youth programs, accounting and building use.

Walsh, Wheeling Township Supervisor Ethyl Kolerus and Dist. 25 Supt. Donald V. Strong agreed to meet again to draw up a proposed organizational structure for further investigation into each of the areas.

The structure would probably consist of a number of special working subcommittees, Walsh said.

Strong said he thought the subcommittee should include both staff people and administrators who face the problems on a day-to-day basis, as well as interested residents with expertise in the subject.

"We should tap other talent in our community who can occasionally come in and utter some of the heresies for us," Strong suggested.

Walsh said he would report back to the various representatives who attended yesterday's meeting and also would hold the door open to other governmental bodies in Arlington Heights who might wish to participate in future meetings.

Language Class Has Dash Of U.N.

by DOUG RAY

Kalish Mahesh Vofa, an Indian girl whose husband is a research engineer, is one of the students.

So is Sam, who immigrated from Puerto Rico 10 years ago and is now a Des Plaines barber.

George sits in the back of the room. He's a waiter who came here from Athens last year "to make money" and someday will return to his homeland.

All of them have a problem with the English language. They stumble through the pronunciation of "butcher" and "honest" and some of their fellow students don't know the meaning of the words.

Twice a week, they congregate in a second floor classroom at Maine East High School in Park Ridge, along with 10 others, at the Maine Township Adult Evening School and chatter the vowel sounds attempting to perfect them. They review past and present tenses of common verbs and get a short history lesson.

Their teacher calls the class "a true United Nations." For the past 15 years, William Scuderi of Arlington Heights has taught adult evening classes to immigrants with English language deficiencies.

"THE BIGGEST problem is to get them to overcome their shyness," said Scuderi, who works as a salesman during the day. "You almost have to pull it out of them."

Scuderi's teaching career began when he saw an adult education brochure which lacked classes for non-English speaking Americans. "I came to the school and talked to the director about an English class for those who don't speak it," he recalls.

The director agreed to initiate such a study program and Scuderi has been teaching the course ever since.

"A big plus is knowing about their home countries," Scuderi said. "I study the habits and customs and learn a little about each of them (the countries)."

For Scuderi's work in helping the immigrants better understand the American way of life, he was presented the Thatcher award by Park Ridge chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR). A tea was held by the DAR chapter last week at the close of the past semester.

"Getting the students to speak the English language is an obstacle to overcome," he commented. He said they speak English during the class session but revert to their native tongues when they leave.

His students are predominantly Spanish speaking, a language he speaks fluently as his parents were Italian immigrants. But his most recent class had students from countries as distant as Rolling Meadows employees sometimes congregate in a downtown Arlington Heights tavern for an after-work drink. They cross the boundary lines out of necessity.

Liquor licenses in Rolling Meadows are a cherished commodity, and only eight establishments hold title to them. In fact, there are more tavern licenses at Arlington Park Race Track facilities than in the entire City of Rolling Meadows.

The mammoth Arlington Park facilities have deeded to seven Arlington Heights liquor permits while there are only four licenses in Rolling Meadows permitting alcoholic endeavor on the premises — all of them are for restaurants.

Restrictions on liquor licenses in some Northwest suburban communities are as stringent as those placed upon zoning. And the number of drinking establishments is a reflection of the attitudes of municipal officials toward imbibing and its merits or lack of them.

A comparison of local communities shows Arlington Heights with 37 liquor licenses, Palatine with 27 and Rolling Meadows eight.

The top elected official in each community has the jurisdiction over the licenses. The mayor distributes the licenses, after an amendment to the liquor control ordinance by the trustees.

THE MAYOR ACTS as the local liquor commissioner whose final word is law. There is no veto power.

If Mayor Jack Walsh of Arlington Heights deems a prospective liquor licensee undesirable, then it is likely the establishment will be set up outside the city limits, possibly in Cook County where liquor licenses are less restrictive. All other mayors have the same power.

All communities have a set of guidelines for liquor license applicants. The Arlington Heights examination begins with the village administration's check on the applicant.

Then the public health and safety committee of the village board studies the application. If the committee recommends approval, the trustees determine the merits of amending the liquor license ordinance. If the ordinance is amended, "then it becomes an automatic instruction for me to issue a liquor license," said Walsh.

"I don't want to be in a position that makes me totally responsible for them (the liquor licenses)," he said. "There are benefits in issuing liquor licenses that I don't want to become involved in."

"We never have an available license," Walsh added. "When a liquor license is relinquished, the village board reduces the number of licenses by one."

Walsh said he studies the geographic distribution of the liquor licenses, and whether the business will be an asset to the community. "Some suburban communities are top heavy and some light. An oversupply has an adverse effect on the community," he said.

Walsh said, "restaurants cannot be looked at the same as taverns... it's publicly acceptable to offer a cocktail with food." He said it might create a competitive advantage to limit liquor sales to certain restaurants.

REFERRING TO THE Arlington Park liquor licenses, he said the preannexation agreement allows the same number of liquor licenses as were sanctioned by the county.

The three Class D licenses, which only Arlington Park holds, allows the bars to operate until 4 a.m. on weekdays and 5 a.m. on weekends — the latest hours permitted by any local community. The total of seven liquor permits at Arlington Park include dining room licenses, grandstand and theatre liquor licenses. "I wish we had 33 out there," Walsh commented. He said liquor licenses at a single location cost the village proportionately less than if the permits were scattered throughout the village.

Class A licenses in Arlington Heights allow midnight closing on weekdays and 1 a.m. on weekends. The cost is $1,000 a

In a ruling designed to help out the food and clothing industries, the Cost of Living Council said that companies which are innocent victims of wild swings in the cost of new materials do not have to notify the Price Commission before raising prices. The Pay Board meanwhile summoned Harvard Professor John Dunlop to a meeting last night to explain why his construction industry pay panel has authorized wage increases far above the board's own guidelines.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., broke with liberal colleagues and told the Senate he will vote to confirm William H. Rehnquist to the Supreme Court.

The State

County officeholders from throughout the state registered for the 84th annual midwinter conference and seminar of the Illinois Association of County Officials. High on the agenda for at least one meeting of the three-day conference in Chicago is discussion of a recent ruling by a DuPage County judge who decided that the county must hold its county elections at the same time it holds statewide elections.

year with an option to allow an additional hour of operation for $500 more each year. The Arlington Park Class D licenses are $1,800 each.

IN A CITY OF nearly 20,000 population, Rolling Meadows has a ratio of one drinking establishment for every 5,000 residents.

City officials "hold the liquor licenses dear." Half of the Rolling Meadows liquor sale permits were allocated to package liquor stores at a cost of $750 yearly. Three licenses allow for sale of "hard liquor" and one license allows the sale of beer and wine only.

The "hard liquor" licenses cost $1,250 a year for 1 a.m. closing on weekdays and 2 a.m. on weekends, while a $2,000 charge is levied for an establishment wishing 2 a.m. weekday closing and 4 a.m. on weekends. Beer and wine licenses cost $750 a year.

"We went kind of slow," said Meyer of the liquor licenses issued in 16-year-old Rolling Meadows. "We don't have a license for strictly a bar."

"Some towns make licenses available for the tax revenue from them," Meyer commented. But Rolling Meadows, with tax monies pushing over the $1 million mark each year, hardly needs the additional funds generated from city taverns.

Meyer's attitude toward nightclub strips also has an effect upon the liquor licensing within the city. "We don't want another Mannheim strip (Mannheim Road near O'Hare Airport) where you come out of one drunk and go to another," he said.

"We have avoided the drinking man's bar," Meyer added. "He goes in and hoists four and then drives out in the road and gets a kid killed. The council has been very careful with the ordinance (liquor control ordinance)."

Meyer and city aldermen use several criteria to determine if a person will receive a liquor license. All prospective license holders must clear an FBI and Illinois Crime Commission check which includes fingerprinting. Anyone with five per cent or more ownership in the establishment must be fingerprinted, Meyer said. "to let us know who is really involved."

THERE ARE ALSO some character judgments. "We (city officials) look at the establishments and where they are located," he said. "And we find out something about the people."

The Rolling Meadows City Council last year turned down a proposed $1 million restaurant which would have served liquor. "The place wasn't conducive to the neighborhood," he said. "I'm not sure we wanted that type establishment."

Palatine, a village with more than 25,000 population, has an abundance of liquor permits compared with nearby Rolling Meadows. There are 14 licenses which permit drinking on the premises and restaurants do not fall into that category.

Jack Moodie, Palatine Mayor, said he feels limiting liquor licenses for restaurants and package stores creates an unfair advantage for those who already have licenses. "Limiting would insure somebody a monopoly," he said. However, he said taverns and lounges are limited by number (14).

IN PALATINE, the potential liquor license holder also must pass a screening test. Moodie said the restrictions are spelled out in the state statutes which requires the applicant to "have a good record." He said, "The area of liquor licenses has been a bone of contention for years. The board has chosen to set a number and I administer the number."

About 10 years ago, Palatine conducted an advisory referendum in which village residents said they preferred one tavern for every 1,000 residents, Moodie said. "It used to be a ratio of population, but now there isn't much demand for the tavern."

Palatine is the first area community allowing the sale of liquor in apartment complexes. The Old Madrid complex, which will house jet-setters from throughout Chicagoland, has four licenses allocated by the village board — one for the rooftop lounges to be built atop each of the four 14-story apartment buildings.

There are eight liquor control categories in Palatine, which costs the owner of a permit from $1,000 a year to $200. Class A licenses, costing $1,000 a year, permit operation until midnight on weekdays and an hour later on weekends. For another $1,000 an establishment may remain open until 4 a.m. Clubs and the park district golf course have permits costing $200.

"About 99... well maybe 98 per cent of the people drink," Moodie said. "Liquor is here to stay."

"My job is to make them feel welcome here," he said, "and to let them know they can accomplish something. They must get rid of the loneliness as well as other problems like finances, family and work," he added. "I guess my job is like being a psychiatrist and a teacher."

The 16-week course in elementary English, when completed, "gives the students the ability to communicate. They can go to the store to buy food without problems."

The students then can enroll in a more advanced vocabulary course and some, Scuderi said, "have received high school equivalency degrees."

During his tenure, the class sizes have bulged especially during revolutionary upheavals in foreign countries. "During the Cuban and Hungarian revolutions, I began to get more students," he said.

Over the years he has instructed foreign doctors and lawyers in the English language and now has housewives and engineers enrolled. "They are just like elementary students with some of the same questions about this country."

Mount Prospect Names Police Chief

by TOM VON MALDER

A four-month search for a new police chief for Mount Prospect ended Tuesday with the appointment of Elbert B. "Bert" Giddens.

Giddens, who will start Jan. 1, has spent over 27 years on active police duty. Most recently, he was chief of the Evanston Police Department from 1962 to 1969. He resigned from that position in the midst of criticism from members of his force and from members of Evanston's black community.

The appointment, not requiring village approval, was made by village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley. Eppley said that he was well pleased with Giddens and his professional background. "I feel he was worth the wait," Eppley said.

The 56-year-old Giddens, an Evanston resident, is currently an assistant professor at Loop College, City Colleges of Chicago, where he is an instructor for Chicago Police Academy recruits.

Giddens said he resigned from the Evanston force to take the teaching position. At the time he left, there was unrest within the department as well as criticism of the department from blacks.

During the summer of 1969 a chapter of the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA) was formed in Evanston. In their efforts to secure higher salaries CCPA members threatened a "sick-in."

MARSHALL BARKSDALE, black president of the CCPA chapter, joined 13 other black policemen in charging Giddens with a "lack of leadership" and discrimination in promotions, beat assignments and advanced training school appointments. They also accused him of alienating the city's black community.

Most of these charges were made public after Giddens met with Barksdale Aug. 6. Giddens resigned the next afternoon.

Meanwhile the white policemen filed a charge of promotion discrimination against Giddens with the city's human relations commission. The charge was not based on racial grounds, and according to police department regulations the policemen had no case. There was no decision made on the charges because they were dropped after Giddens resigned.

At various times, members of Evanston's black community charged there was an attitude prevalent in the police department that sanctioned violence against blacks.

Six black members of the Evanston advisory committee on police-community relations resigned, charging that Giddens had thwarted the committee's purpose.

A native Texan, Giddens is married and has two grown daughters. He was graduated from the Oklahoma City College of Law, Oklahoma University, and the Northwestern Traffic Institute. He started as a patrolman in Oklahoma City and when he left, 20 years later to go to Evanston, it was as assistant police chief.

EPPLEY SAID that Giddens comes to Mount Prospect highly recommended by former employers and associates. He said he had received a strong recommendation on Giddens part from Evanston City Manager Wayne Anderson and from Frank Krenl of Northwestern University. Eppley also talked with Giddens' former Oklahoma City employer while he was attending a manager's conference in Florida last month.

"All things considered, Bert Giddens with his experience and educational background offers the most potential contribution to the police function in Mount Prospect. The results of the psychological and polygraph testing helped to confirm my judgment," Eppley wrote the village board in a memorandum.

GIDDENS, WHO IS currently earning more than $21,000 a year as a professor, is expected to receive $18,000 a year as police chief. The salary was to be approved at last night's village board meeting. It contains a raise of some five per cent over the previous chief's salary.

The chief's post was vacated last August when Newell Esmond retired and moved to Florida. Police Lt. John Savage has been acting as interim chief.

In making his announcement, Eppley commended Savage for his "outstanding job" as acting chief. Eppley said Savage "did not sit and vegetate but moved the department forward in a number of vital projects."

The manager said that since Savage was not compensated for his time as acting chief, he will be given an additional week's vacation.

College Profs Vote Against Affiliation

by BETSY BROOKER

Affiliation of Harper College teachers with a state association was turned down by a narrow margin of nine votes in elections held during the past three days.

Of the 184 full-time faculty members, 79 voted against affiliation and 70 voted for it, an unofficial source said yesterday. Martin Ryan, faculty senate president, could not be reached for comment.

Since the college opened four years ago, the teachers have remained independent of all state teachers' associations.

Ryan said earlier the senate decided to consider affiliation this year because of its dissatisfaction with spring salary negotiations.

"It was not a question of money but the manner in which the negotiations were held," he said. "The negotiations were broken off unilaterally by the college board of trustees. That is not negotiations as I understand it."

"Teachers are often open to capricious and unjust actions on the part of school boards," he said. "The board can change policy anytime it wants. Affiliation with a state association would formalize our relations with the board and make all parties accountable."

If a majority of teachers had supported Ryan's view, another election would have been held at the college to determine which association teachers would affiliate. Representatives from both the Illinois Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers have solicited the Harper teachers' membership.

When asked their reaction to the election results, Harper administrators said, "it is their affair."

Harvey Won't Be Candidate

At least one position on the board of education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 will be vacated by an incumbent next April.

Board Pres. Harold Harvey said recently he will not seek reelection at the end of his present term in April because of time pressures from his business.

Harvey, 200 Marshall St., Des Plaines, is president of Northpoint State Bank in Arlington Heights. He has been on the board since April, 1969 and has been president since last April.

The other incumbent who will be up for election in April is Paul Neuhauser. Contacted yesterday, Neuhauser said he had not yet decided whether he will seek reelection.

"I'm leaning toward not running," Neuhauser said, "but at this time I'm keeping my options open."

Neuhauser, who works in the intelligence division of the Internal Revenue Service, said his job has been taking more and more of his time recently and "at times I find it difficult to continue to serve as a board member. I would only run if I could satisfy myself I could fulfill my responsibilities."

Neuhauser, 1221 Magnolia Ln., Mount Prospect, was first elected to the board in a special election in July, 1969. He was reelected the following April for the remaining two-year term.

HARVEY SAID he will not seek reelection.

tion because "the pressures of the board and my business are more than I can handle. Serving on the board is a challenge but I can't do it any more."

In addition to his service on the Dist. 59 board, Harvey is treasurer of the Elk Grove Township Republican organization.

Harvey first ran for the board immediately following budget cutting in Dist. 59 on a platform calling for improved communications and better financial control in the district.

'Minute-Minded' Christmas Sweets

For caroling parties or a holiday open house, it's fun to serve your family and friends a variety of festive cookies.

To make your work effortless, these Christmas cookies are time minded as well as easy to prepare. The short cut secret to sure success — refrigerated slice and bake cookie dough.

Layers of the chocolate chip cookie dough and chocolate covered mint patties bake to perfection to make Choco Mint Bars. When warm from the oven, the bars are topped with chocolate chips which melt to make the easy glaze. If desired, add a sprinkling of nuts for extra goodness.

Rum Topped Fruitcake Cookies are perky rounds of chocolate chip slice and bake cookies studded with candied fruit and nuts. These minute-minded sweets are topped with a rum flavored glaze and decorated with candied cherry halves or nuts.

Another bright idea, Cherry Macaroons, is off to a quick start with refrigerated sugar or cinnamon sugar slice and bake cookies. The pretty addition of chopped maraschino cherries gives this macaroon a special flavor bonus.

HAVARTI

The Danish cheese for people of pronounced taste

Say it to yourself: Ha-var-i. It rhymes with "a party", and that's when some people serve it. Don't fall into the same trap: make Havarti, the mild, mellow, creamy-yellow, lacy-patterned Danish cheese, an everyday affair. For luscious snacks, sandwiches, casseroles. So say "Ha-var-i", and say it often. At your grocery or supermarket, of course.

Public Transportation Top Concern: Jaycee Survey

Des Plaines residents are concerned about transportation problems, telephone service, lack of downtown parking and increases in noise, pollution and drug use, according to a community survey made by the Des Plaines Jaycees.

Residents also generally approve of city government response to requests, law enforcement, fire protection, recreation programs and schools, although some feel that more could be done to provide activities for teenagers and senior citizens, the survey indicates.

The Jaycees, a city-wide service organization, received responses from about 550 residents. The survey, like a similar Jaycee survey in 1969, will be used to plan service programs, a spokesman said. Survey project chairman was former Jaycee president Michael Conley.

During the survey, one family on each city block was asked to fill out a questionnaire, which listed 65 items for comment. Residents were asked to indicate whether they felt a service or facility was "poor, below average, average, good, or excellent." Specific comments on problems were not included in the survey report.

THE TOP TEN problem areas of 1971, in order of importance, were public transportation within the city, public transportation to other communities, lack of public rest rooms in the business district, telephone service, lack of meeting places for teenagers, parking in the central business district, street layout, storm water drainage, community planning and development, and zoning ordinances and policies, according to the survey.

In 1969, telephone service (fourth on this year's list), lack of public rest rooms and transportation within the city led the list of top ten problems, with the other problems named in the 1971 list appearing in about the same order on the 1969 list.

About 65 per cent felt public transportation within the city is below average or worse, according to the 1971 poll. Richard Ornberg, of 1312 Perry St., who headed the survey in the seventh ward, said walking distances to public transportation is too far, and little public transit exists between neighborhoods.

Lack of public transportation especially bothers teenagers who cannot afford a car, and senior citizens, he said.

ABOUT 57 PER CENT of those polled feel that transportation to other communities is also inadequate.

Only 48 per cent now feel Central Telephone service is slow and frustrating, compared to 63 per cent in 1969.

About 54 per cent of those who responded felt that not enough public rest rooms exist in downtown Des Plaines, and 35 per cent indicated that downtown parking is inadequate.

Downtown merchants have complained about parking for years. The city is planning to sell bonds early next year to finance several downtown parking lots on railroad right of way.

Objections to city planning centered around the large number of near-downtown apartment and condominium high rises which have been encouraged by redevelopment plans, according to another

Jaycee who participated in the survey, Stuart Edinoff.

Ornberg also said that some residents are displeased with the long rows of restaurant signs along Elmhurst Road, and Lee Street.

RESIDENTS ALSO are unhappy about the Miner Street-River Road-Chicago and North Western Ry. bottleneck, at the eastern edge of downtown, Ornberg said. The city is now planning to construct two overpasses to eliminate the bottleneck.

Many of the objections to zoning ordinances were from individuals who appear-

CMCC Says City Policy Threat To Elderly Housing

The Concerned Metropolitan Citizens Committee (CMCC) has warned that official opposition to low-income housing for families may endanger federal funding of an apartment building for the elderly here.

Oakton Chiefs Gear For Site Confrontation

Oakton Community College officials have been busy this week preparing for a confrontation tomorrow with the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese concerning purchase of a permanent campus site for the college.

The archdiocese has objected to the school's plans to purchase, by condemnation if necessary, a vacant 105-acre portion of the Maryhill Cemetery in Niles.

Both sides will appear tomorrow before the Illinois Junior College Board, which originally approved state financing for three-fourths of the campus cost but now has agreed to hear protests from archdiocese officials.

John Philbin, executive director of Catholic Cemeteries, will represent the archdiocese and Maryhill while urging the state board to reverse its Nov. 12 decision authorizing Oakton to buy the site.

Milton Falkoff, Oakton board president, said at Tuesday night's meeting, "The owners of the property intend to make a presentation and that's the substance of what we know."

THE BOARD's real estate agent, Neil King of Skokie's Armond D. King Agency, added Tuesday, "We'll be on hand to hear that presentation and to answer any questions the state board might have."

King said legally the state board could reverse its earlier decision and withdraw its approval of the proposed archdiocese-owned support. "But we've gone over

In a statement received yesterday by city officials the CMCC also charged Des Plaines officials with adopting a policy of "racial and economic discrimination" and have asked the city council to reconsider its rejection Monday of low and moderate-income housing proposals.

The CMCC, a Chicago area group that claims 30 members in Des Plaines, said it is "highly unlikely" that the proposed 128-unit senior citizen apartment building could get approval "in a city where the official political body is on record as opposed to racial and economic justice."

The city council Monday approved a committee recommendation to "dismiss and take no further action on" the CMCC housing proposals, because "no substantial fact to support" them had been presented by CMCC.

At the same time, the city council also approved formation of a special housing commission to investigate housing needs here.

IN ITS STATEMENT this week, the CMCC charged that the council's action in rejecting CMCC proposals has implied a mandate to the proposed housing commission to "perpetuate racial and economic discrimination in the city's housing policy."

According to the CMCC statement, the city council committee that decided to reject the proposals after citing a lack of information, refused to allow the CMCC to supply that information or to speak at the committee's meeting Nov. 29.

Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd), committee chairman, stated at the Nov. 29 meeting that only testimony heard at a public hearing Nov. 11 would be considered in the committee recommendation. He refused to allow submission of additional testimony at the committee meeting.

"Aside from the fact that it is unusual for a political body to turn down a serious proposal for lack of information when that information is readily available, the action taken by the city council has the potential for far-reaching implications that must be given consideration," the

Agent Says Middleton Tried To Have Cop Killed

A Chicago man told police in February he was hired by Dr. James T. Middleton to kill a Cook County sheriff's policeman who arrested the doctor on sex charges, according to a federal treasury agent.

The agent, Kenneth Swanson, assigned to the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the U.S. Treasury Dept., gave the information during a defense motion to suppress the physical evidence against the doctor.

The hearing ended late yesterday afternoon as both sides rested. Federal Court Judge James Parsons said the trial will begin tomorrow morning and that he will rule on the motion after the trial begins.

Middleton was indicted by a federal grand jury charging him with eight counts of possessing and manufacturing destructive devices.

SWANSON SAID he was told of the alleged murder request by Leo Lagardo, 39, of Chicago, after Lagardo had been arrested by Chicago police at the doctor's Chicago apartment.

Police reportedly went to Dr. Middleton's apartment at 2800 N. Lake Shore Dr., Feb. 15 after the doctor complained he had been receiving threatening phone calls. While at the apartment, police said, Lagardo and another man arrived and were identified by the doctor and his wife as the ones responsible for the alleged threats against the doctor.

At the police station, Swanson said Lagardo told him he was hired by Dr. Middleton to harass state witnesses against the doctor and to "hit" (kill) Sheriff's Detective Donald Shaw.

Shaw was the policeman who led the investigation of the doctor and who arrested him last Dec. 1, 1970 on a charge of deviate sexual assault.

Lagardo reportedly was not charged in connection with either the alleged murder plot nor the alleged threats.

Fund Cuts May Delay Harper, Oakton

Cutbacks in state funds slated for junior college construction may delay construction at Harper and Oakton community colleges, according to college officials.

The Illinois Board of Higher Education recently voted to grant only one third of the $262.78 million sought by junior college districts for 1973 construction.

The state board's action directly affects Harper officials' plan to build vocational and physical education facilities, totaling $4,600,000 in 1973. The effect to Oakton College is indirect but just as disastrous, according to William Koehnline, college president.

"The cutbacks can only have an adverse effect on us," Koehnline said. There is a long waiting list of junior colleges anticipating release of state funds for building projects. Oakton is near the tailend. We won't get the money we need until a large number of our sister institutions get the money they have been promised for three years."

JUNIOR COLLEGE construction has been held up in the past by a freeze on state funds enacted by Gov. Richard Ogilvie. Phase II of the Harper College construction would have already begun if the governor had released promised funds, according to Don Andries, community relations director.

"The first portion of our phase II construction is already in the pipeline," said Andries. "This includes music and science facilities, totaling $3,300,000. The state has promised to pay $2,400,000 towards the total cost. The funds should be released as soon as we comply to certain economy measures required by the state board."

The second portion of the phase II construction, however, has not been approved by the state Harper officials said the state board's cutback may delay this construction. They said they would not know the exact effect on their construction plans until they receive more information from the state.

Oakton officials have just begun their construction plans and are currently negotiating to purchase a 105 acre site adjacent to the Maryhill Cemetery in Niles. Koehnline said the state is holding $2 million for the project, but "even if we get that we will need a more substantial amount immediately. It is only a tiny fraction of what we will need in the next three years."

Further clarification of the state board's cutbacks is expected to be announced Friday at a meeting of the Illinois Junior College Board.

College Construction Funds Slashed

The Illinois Board of Higher Education Tuesday slashed the total sought by state colleges and universities for construction projects in the 1973 fiscal year by more than two-thirds.

The board adopted, almost in total, staff recommendations for a virtual freeze on new construction at established schools and cuts of up to 50 per cent in the amount developing campuses and junior colleges had sought for building.

The state's 10 colleges and universities and 36 junior college districts had sought a total of $262.78 million for capital improvements. The board approved only $86.11 million, $176.67 million less than requested.

THE CAPITAL budget requests will now go to the general assembly and then to the governor, and could be reduced even further at either stop.

"We're not disputing the need for a project, but we're trying to lay out some priorities. It's unfortunate that everybody can't get what they want," James B. Holderman, the board's executive director, said.

The board did not allow construction of any new buildings devoted entirely to classroom space.

The major new buildings approved were a combination laboratory and classroom facility at Chicago State; an addition to the University of Illinois law building at Champaign; a public affairs center at Sangamon State University in Springfield and a security services building at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

The board said "severe fiscal restraints" were anticipated because of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's announced intention to balance the state budget without raising taxes.

A second factor was that Holderman in his report to the board called "disturbing trends" in enrollment. With few exceptions, enrollment at state schools fell short of expectations this autumn.

our data and we're ready and prepared to fight back," King said.

Although the site Oakton has selected is vacant, archdiocesan officials have said it is scheduled to be used for expansion of Maryhill to replace the nearly filled St. Adalbert's Cemetery on the Niles-Chicago border.

Philbin's appearance at the monthly state board meeting at Chicago's Bismarck Hotel will delay Oakton's plans to announce a date for an early 1972 referendum bond issue to raise the one-quarter cost of the permanent campus from local taxes.

That date was to be announced at Oakton's Tuesday meeting but officials said the announcement will be postponed until after the state board meets tomorrow.

THE ILLINOIS Junior College Act, which requires state board approval before land for public junior colleges can be purchased or developed, also requires the state to pay 75 per cent of the cost of land and construction.

Board member Paul Gilson said Tuesday at Oakton's meeting. "We should be careful about what we say because of testimonies that might have to be made later if this leads to a condemnation suit."

Falkoff said that if the state board confirms its approval of the site, condemnation proceedings could begin at the end of next week.

"The board authorized our attorneys to make an offer to the archdiocese for the land," Falkoff said. "A letter has been sent advising them of our offer. If there is no response from them in 30 days, we can begin condemnation suits."

Falkoff said the letter was dated Nov. 16. "So far we've heard nothing from them," he added.

Oakton President William Koehnline, who will appear with King, the college's attorneys, and several trustees at tomorrow's state board meeting, said a state board spokesman told him "they have never in the past reversed a decision on this kind of an issue."

Koehnline added, "We look forward to having the state board confirm its approval."

"We've already been there," Gilson said. "We've already received their approval and their blessings and their compliments for our professional, technical approach to site investigation. I don't see what else there is to talk about."

The archdiocese has repeatedly voiced its opposition to Oakton's choice, both in statements from John Cardinal Cody, Archbishop of Chicago, and in full-page advertisements in several suburban newspapers and in the archdiocese's own publications.

There will be a lot of days this month when Mommy won't be fit to live with, I informed my children the other day. Mommy didn't get into the spirit of Christmas until last Saturday — about a month later than everyone else in the world, I continued calmly. Once Mommy got into the spirit she invited all of the relatives over for Christmas dinner, began asking people to a New Year's Eve party, started to organize a holiday party for the office, and decided to make most of the Christmas gifts we are giving this year, I explained.

When I sat down in the middle of the floor with a glassy look in my eyes, they seemed to get the picture and wondered off to the basement to play soldiers.

Which brings me to the subject of war toys (I'll bet you're wondering how we got on that subject.) A co-worker and I have been having heated arguments about the antiwar toys movement that seeks to remove guns, soldiers, etc. from toy shelves. Being a non-lover of war I passively agreed with the movement (as my co-worker does) for years. Since my sons have grown up a bit I've had to change my position.

Until three years ago there was never a gun (toy or real) in my home. There was never a war toy or anything, other than me and my spanking hand, that even suggested violence.

THEN I BEGAN to watch my kids at play. There was Billy, hiding behind the picnic table with a stick in his hand playing war. There was Scott chasing the girls next door with a train track in his hand playing cowboys and Indians.

Little plastic astronauts were being used for toy soldiers and cowboys; card tables became jails for captured bad guys; bikes turned into tanks; harmless paper airplanes became jet bombers. I was distraught. My peace-loving children had turned into warmongers before my eyes.

There will be no more war games, I proclaimed at the dinner table one night. My proclamation was greeted with cries of "No one will play with me anymore. All the kids do it." The one that made me open up my eyes was, "But mom, we're only playing. We're really not killing anyone. This kind of dead is OK because you're only dead for a couple of minutes and then you can be alive again. It's not for keeps."

Before I allowed war toys in my house I thought back to my tomboy days, when I shot my friends daily in vigorous games of war, cops and robbers, and cowboys. Yet I grew up a peace lover with no desire to kill, steal or shoot.

Logic won out in my mind (or at least I'd like to think so). It is not what you play as a child, I decided, it's the attitude you are brought up with — the attitude instilled by your parents.

MORE THAN 1,500 names of children of Spanish migrant workers in the area are waiting a local real estate offices. These children, from the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows, will have a merrier Christmas if someone sees fit to take a name tag, buy an inexpensive gift, and return the tag and gift to the real estate office before Dec. 17.

The Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines is hoping that all of the tags will be taken. They are sponsoring the "Choose a Child — Buy a Smile For Christmas" project for the second year. Last year was a rousing success but this year things are going slowly and your help is needed.

For more information contact Mrs. Frank Sager, 298-4791.

BROOKFIELD ZOO'S annual Christmas party is being held Sunday between 12-3 p.m. at the Children's Zoo. Santa Claus will be greeting visitors and distributing gifts to children under 12 years of age.

The highlight of the day, according to Frederick E. McGure, development manager, will be the chance for you to take the vanishing animals tour and familiarize yourself not only with those animals threatened by extinction, but with the underlying causes of their plight.

Also a large Christmas tree will be set up at the Children's Zoo to be decorated with ornaments made or brought by the youngsters.

Despite 4,930 Taffy Apples, Sixth Graders Short Of Mark

When Orchard Place School's sixth graders decided to go into the taffy apple business, they meant business.

What started out as a little project to raise money for a field trip turned into a success story of teamwork and enthusiasm.

The 81 students in Christine Dudek's sixth grade Spanish classes decided last month they'd like to attend the Spanish ballet that will be performed in Chicago's Civic Opera House in March.

But the show had one drawback — tickets cost $4.50 each. Added to the cost of transportation, that makes for an expensive field trip, they agreed.

To finance the trip for all of the students, they decided to launch a series of money-raising projects, starting with a taffy apple sale.

"WE FIGURED we could sell a few hundred taffy apples in the school and in the neighborhoods right around the school," Mrs. Dudek said.

But they miscalculated. Last week 4,930 taffy apples were sold Mrs. Dudek reported Wednesday. They were delivered to Orchard Place School in Des Plaines this week from a local merchant and distributed to buyers.

PTA volunteers, supervised by Clare Bellon of Des Plaines, packaged and passed out the goodies.

According to Mrs. Dudek, top sixth grade salesmen were Martin Hess, who sold 490 taffy apples, Pamela Taylor, 380, Paul Day, 190; and Twanka Davidson, 145.

"The kids and the PTA mothers worked hard but we're still short of our goal," Mrs. Dudek said.

To raise the rest of the needed money she said the sixth graders will sponsor a bake sale and sell homemade Christmas decorations.

"We have until March to raise the money. We'll make it! We just need a little more help," Mrs. Dudek said.

Congregation Plans Welcome Service

Mame Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, will conduct its annual Shalom Welcome Service Dec. 17 for first graders in the Sunday School department of the religious school.

A special program in honor of Hanukkah will be presented by the youngsters at 8:30 p.m. Rabbi Jay Karzen and Cantor Harry Solowinichik will officiate at the service and bless the first graders on the occasion of their beginning religious school classes.

The monthly Men's Club breakfast with the Rabbi series will be held Sunday, Dec. 19 at 10 a.m. The community is invited to participate.

Religious school vacations begin the week of Dec. 16. Classes will resume Sunday, Jan. 2.

Class Has Dash Of United Nations

by DOUG RAY
Kalias Mahesh Vofa, an Indian girl whose husband is a research engineer, is one of the students.
So is Sam, who immigrated from Puerto Rico 10 years ago and is now a Des Plaines barber.
George sits in the back of the room. He's a waiter who came here from Athens last year "to make money" and someday will return to his homeland.

All of them have a problem with the English language. They stumble through the pronunciation of "butcher" and "honest" and some of their fellow students don't know the meaning of the words.
Twice a week, they congregate in a second floor classroom at Maine East

High School in Park Ridge, along with 10 others, at the Maine Township Adult Evening School and chatter the vowel sounds attempting to perfect them. They review past and present tenses of common verbs and get a short history lesson taught adult evening classes to immigrants.
Their teacher calls the class "a true United Nations." For the past 15 years, William Scuderi of Arlington Heights has taught adult evening classes to immigrants with English language deficiencies.

equivalency degrees."
During his tenure, the class sizes have bulged especially during revolutionary upheavals in foreign countries. "During the Cuban and Hungarian revolutions, I began to get more students," he said.
Over the years he has instructed foreign doctors and lawyers in the English language and now has housewives and engineers enrolled. "They are just like elementary students with some of the same questions about this country."

City Policy Endangers Elderly Housing: CMCC

CMCC said.
In denying proposals asking for racial and economic justice, the city has said "its housing policy will be one of racial and economic discrimination," according to the CMCC.
The City of Des Plaines has an open housing ordinance and a real estate brokers' review board charged with enforcing that law. The board, however, has not heard any charges of discrimination against local real estate dealers since its members were appointed last year.
The 1970 U.S. Census reports 47 blacks living within the city limits. Many of the 47 live at Maryville Academy, 1150 N. River Rd.
THE REJECTED CMCC proposals asked for zoning changes to encourage low-rise, low and moderate-income housing on scattered sites in the city. It also asked for adoption of city policies seeking federal funds for housing and involving minority groups in planning.
"While at first glance the appointment of the Des Plaines housing commission may seem to some observers to be a step forward, it also appears that the commission may have a mandate . . . to perpetuate racial and economic discrimination in the city's housing policy," the CMCC states.

Ald. Sherwood recommended creation of a commission of local experts and other residents to study the city's substandard housing, possible senior citizen housing sites, the need for a city housing authority, and other housing problems.
Alluding to the city's efforts to gain federal funds for construction of a senior citizen apartment building at Lee Street and Ashland Avenue, the CMCC said the new commission, rather than furthering creation of the new senior citizen housing, may "precipitate its funeral."
"It seems highly unlikely that federal housing funds will be used to assist the construction of housing in a city where the official political body is on record as opposed to racial and economic justice and where any future housing development will, in fact, be used to perpetuate discrimination," the CMCC stated.

Jaycee Survey Shows Transportation A Problem

ently have specific complaints about zoning rulings, a Jaycee spokesman said.
Almost two-thirds felt that recreation opportunities for children are above average, but only 38 per cent felt that recreation for teenagers is above average. Only 30 per cent felt that recreation for senior citizens is above average.
About 21 per cent felt there is a need for an adult meeting place and 37 per cent felt that a need exists for a teenage meeting place.
About 80 per cent of those who responded felt that their governmental representation is average or better than average, and three-fourths felt that the responses to their problems is average or better.
ABOUT 20 PER CENT said they are inadequately informed by their representatives about local issues.
Job opportunities were rated below average by many who responded, especially for teenagers and senior citizens.
High marks were given to law enforcement and fire protection (80 per cent above average) and to schools and libraries.
In the wards, some problems were more often emphasized than others. Street layout and complaints about dead-ends and confusing turns, appeared in the first and six wards.
In the second ward, residents indicated a need for more baseball fields and recreation. Fifth and eighth ward residents indicated a need for more storm water drainage, a Jaycee spokesman said, because of the frequent flooding.

Most of the written comments concerned ecology problems, including pollution of the Des Plaines River, and noise from O'Hare Airport. Another frequent write-in complaint concerned growth of drug abuse.

"THE BIGGEST problem is to get them to overcome their shyness," said Scuderi, who works as a salesman during the day. "You almost have to pull it out of them."
Scuderi's teaching career began when he saw an adult education brochure which lacked classes for non-English speaking Americans. "I came to the school and talked to the director about an English class for those who don't speak it," he recalls.
The director agreed to initiate such a study program and Scuderi has been teaching the course ever since.
"A big plus is knowing about their home countries," Scuderi said. "I study the habits and customs and learn a little about each of them (the countries)."
For Scuderi's work in helping the immigrants better understand the American way of life, he was presented the Thatcher award by Park Ridge chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR). A tea was held by the DAR chapter last week at the close of the past semester.
"Getting the students to speak the English language is an obstacle to overcome," he commented. He said they speak English during the class session but revert to their native tongues when they leave.
His students are predominately Spanish speaking, a language he speaks fluently as his parents were Italian immigrants. But his most recent class had students from countries as distant as Thailand, Poland and China.
"My job is to make them feel welcome here," he said, "and to let them know they can accomplish something. They must get rid of the loneliness as well as other problems like finances, family and work," he added. "I guess my job is like being a psychiatrist and a teacher."
The 10-week course in elementary English, when completed, "gives the students the ability to communicate. They can go to the store to buy food without problems."
The students then can enroll in a more advanced vocabulary course and some, Scuderi said, "have received high school

Harper Profs Turn Down Affiliation

by BETSY BROOKER
Affiliation of Harper College teachers with a state association was turned down by a narrow margin of nine votes in elections held during the past three days.
Of the 184 full-time faculty members, 79 voted against affiliation and 70 voted for it, an unofficial source said yesterday. Martin Ryan, faculty senate president, could not be reached for comment.
Since the college opened four years ago, the teachers have remained independent of all state teachers' associations.
Ryan said earlier the senate decided to consider affiliation this year because of its dissatisfaction with spring salary negotiations.
"It was not a question of money but the manner in which the negotiations were held," he said. "The negotiations were broken off unilaterally by the college board of trustees. That is not negotiations as I understand it."
"Teachers are often open to capricious and unjust actions on the part of school boards," he said. "The board can change policy anytime it wants. Affiliation with a state association would formalize our relations with the board and make all parties accountable."
If a majority of teachers had supported Ryan's view, another election would have been held at the college to determine which association teachers would affiliate. Representatives from both the Illinois Education Association and the American Federation of Teachers have solicited the Harper teachers' membership.
When asked their reaction to the election results, Harper administrators said, "it is their affair."

Ideas For Indoors And Out

Let Your House Say 'Merry Christmas'

A CHEERFUL ENTRANCE. Home-made Christmas ornaments are hung from a noble fir to represent one idea in door decorations for the holidays. Noble firs are available at Mangel's Florist in Long Grove.

by FRAN HECKART

Spruce up your home this holiday season with the real thing. Nothing says welcome this time of year more than a houseful of fresh greenery and signs of Christmas decking the halls and every nook and cranny.

Start decorating outdoors with tubs of evergreens, wreaths and garlands of artificial holly draped around the door.

If you're really ambitious and like a more elaborate touch, fashion a giant walk-through wreath for the front doorway. The addition of lights to the wreath would add a bit of "fairyland" effect.

A member of the Arlington Heights Garden Club, Mrs. Richard Teutsch, says that she has toyed with this idea for many years.

"However, you have to have a special type of house to use a wreath like that," she said. The ideal placement would be to place a horseshoe shaped wreath around the front door. Eliminating the lower arc of the wreath solves any problem of a careless mailman tripping and sending your eight-foot creation crashing to the ground.

IF YOU HAVE a table in the entryway, clear it and arrange a cluster of scented candles. The candlesticks needn't match. Mix crystal with silver, brass with old wood or pewter. Actually, the more variety, the more interesting the arrangement. However, a dominant color adds continuity throughout the rooms.

Baskets brimming with dried fruits, nuts and raisins, cachepots made of candy canes and heaped with holly, or an old pewter platter piled high with shiny red apples will be lovely.

Christmas bygones can be salvaged if you have an eye for ingenuity. Re-use parts of tired arrangements to create new pieces for dazzling holiday effects.

A collection of pine cones, some glittery baubles, a perky bow and an assortment of outsized candles grouped together make an attractive table arrangement.

Make a candle holder of artificial fruit for a simple holiday centerpiece. Or toss colored and glittery Christmas balls into a large brandy snifter.

A DRAMATIC BACKDROP to a buffet table can be made using a candelabrum. Holiday bayberry candles, fragrant pine boughs and Christmas wired beads turn a simple candelabrum into a festive decoration.

Simple, dead (but sappy) brush, sprayed white, glittered and strung up with Italian lights and gold beads can be used in a centerpiece scheme. Coordinated pieces such as chandeliers and door wreaths made from glittered branches are elegant but inexpensive decorations. Mirrors and chandeliers can also be swagged with yards of gay plaid fabric, ropes of bright wool or any seasonal greenery such as evergreen, laurel leaves, holly or balsam. Artificial garlands of holly and mistletoe are also available. These create a festive effect both indoors and out.

A Christmas tree fashioned of chicken wire, stuffed with sugarplum confections and anchored to a Styrofoam base makes an adaptable centerpiece for hanging candy canes, encircling with "eyelash" or whatever strikes your fancy.

THE BEST DECORATIONS are the simplest. A wicker basket of red and gold apples will do wonders for dull corner tables. Nosegays in coffee mugs, greenery in berry baskets, liberal dashes of wheat, grapes, lemons, pears and apples all add extra spice.

Tie bright bows bedecked with a sprig of holly on coat hangers and hang a festive wreath inside the hall closet door.

Even the kitchen seems cheerier with a few simple holiday trimmings. Mrs. Donald Moser, a decorator for Mangel's Florist in Long Grove, combined greenery, inexpensive Mexican tinware and bows of red and white gingham for an attractive decoration that would dress up any kitchen.

According to Mrs. Moser, one of the easiest and prettiest holiday trimmings is a branch of noble fir. The branches range in price from less than $2 up. Each branch has the unique shape of a Christmas tree because they are taken from the high fir limbs growing above the timberline.

DECORATIONS OF YOUR choice can be added to the tree-shaped branch to be hung on the wall with wire. Or the branch can be mounted in a do-it-yourself picture frame with matted background look.

If you prefer fresh flowers, Mrs. Emil Fick of Mount Prospect, an experienced garden show judge, suggests combining a few fresh red and/or white carnations to greenery and artificial flowers. Once you have the basic arrangement, the fresh flowers can be replaced for a longer lasting decoration.

SIMPLE DESIGNS are often the most elegant. Mrs. Emil Fick created this arrangement from a piece of driftwood, greenery, mums and, of course, two little elves.

Fancying up the home can be as easy as opening a Christmas present; just let your imagination do the work.

Magical Christmas Party

Surprises for adults and children alike await members of the Fifth Wheelers and their children when they attend the club's Christmas party at 2 p.m. this Sunday at Trinity Lutheran Church.

Sharing the spotlight with Santa and the refreshment engineers will be Joe Vyleta, president of the Chicago Area Fellowship of Christian Magicians. Vyleta specializes in entertaining children and family groups, and children participate in many of the tricks in his colorful, fast-moving program.

Those who have not signed up for the party may do so by contacting the children's activity chairman, Grace Withey, at 298-2685.

Fifth Wheelers invites widowed, divorced or legally separated persons to attend the club's meetings the first and third Sunday evenings of the month at 7:45 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran Church, Fifth and Algonquin Roads, Des Plaines.

Suburban Living

Especially for the Family

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

Letters, we get letters, some of which ask us to repeat the formula for making your own fertilizer.

To do-it-yourselfers joining the organic gardening ranks, making fertilizer is as easy as throwing together a macrame belt for your favorite neighborhood hippie.

Simply choose one or more of each of the three basic groups for a complete plant food that has all the major and minor elements plants need to thrive.

NITROGEN (N) GROUP (Select One)

Fish emulsion, bone meal, weeds, grass clippings, blood meal, compost, peanut shells, tankage, cottonseed meal, sludge, vegetable residue, hot manure (rabbit, hen, sheep or horse).

PHOSPHORUS (P) GROUP (Select One)

Bone meal or other meal, dried blood, rock phosphate, colloidal phosphate, basic slag.

POTASH (K) GROUP (Select One)

Wood ashes, kelp, seaweed, cocoa shells, plant residues, cold manure (cow or pig), granite dust or greensand marl.

Put them all together; they spell, big, fat juicy geraniums or whatever.

Another idea to keep on tap is that a soil test prior to your fertilizer-making project, will give you a clue as to whether you should go heavy on one particular group. Soil that is low in an element produces plants that tip off the grower: "Look at how light green my leaves are. That means I need nitrogen, man!"

Plants deficient in phosphorus show up as spindly stems, with hardly enough oomph for reproduction.

Poor root growth or root crops like potatoes or carrots that "bomb" are the plant's way of showing lack of potassium (or potash to you).

RED CARNATIONS and fresh holly make an attractive centerpiece for any holiday table. Mrs. Emil Fick created the decoration, at a recent demonstration at the Mount Prospect Womens Club. She used a lazy susan base and a gold lantern for accent.

A Paddock Review

'Father Of Bride' Hits Home

PAT ADAM

There's a note of sympathy in the laughter ringing through Pheasant Run Playhouse these nights. It's for the "Father of the Bride." Don Ameche.

Each audience has a few in it who understand exactly what he's going through as Stanley Banks, father of a beautiful 21-year-old daughter who's getting married.

As with many proud daddies, Mr. Banks has difficulty accepting that his girl child, Kay, played by Rebecca Phillips, is old enough to know what she's doing. Who is this Buckley Dunstan fellow anyway?

Well, he's really Robert Urich, but as Buckley, he's in love with Kay and wants to marry her, but not before a lot of guests. He'd much rather wed on the spur of the moment in a little country church.

That's not exactly Kay's idea of a wedding, though she insists she wants a simple one, and her mother, played by Jeannette Leaky, agrees. Lesson No. 1, Buckley, advises his future father-in-law: Women do not necessarily mean exactly what they say.

THE REST OF the play is the very funny, but also often true, story of how what was to be a simple wedding with only 40 guests develops into a production as every member of the bride's family keeps thinking of persons he or she wants to invite.

Even younger brother Tommy, played by Anthony Howard, wants his best friend included on the favored reception list. Keeping the list down to size becomes such a challenge, in fact, that Stanley Banks puts his very efficient secretary, Miss Bellamy, played by Beatrice Fredman, in charge of keeping score.

One of the best and funniest scenes in the play is where Miss Bellamy resigns in frustration because she cannot keep the guest file from expanding. "This family is at war," she declares, "and a house divided against itself cannot stand." With which declaration she swishes out the door.

The size of the guest list even fosters a break between the engaged couple just as Mr. Banks assents, with reluctance, to having the reception catered. For a moment it looks as if there'll be no wedding. But then Buckley reads his mother's guest list.

And so the wedding is on. The bride is beautiful. The father of the bride is proud. And the audience is delighted.

The cast of this Pheasant Run production is well chosen. Don Ameche may never have been a real life "father of the bride." — I really don't know — but he's most convincing as Stanley Banks. Jeannette Leaky shows just the right motherly concern that her daughter be properly married, and all mothers of the bride should look as great as Miss Leaky does in her turquoise gown. The rest of her wardrobe is just as attractive.

The bride couple are handsome, and their acting as good as their looks. Anthony Howard appears and acts like a typical teenage brother who thinks this whole love business is dumb, but still is not averse to the feminine companionship of fellow teen-ager Peggy Swift, portrayed by Diane Dug. Diane apprenticed at Pheasant Run this past summer and makes an impressive professional debut in this role.

BEATRICE FREDMAN is excellent as the precise and very efficient Miss Bellamy. Jack Godby is hilarious as the catering firm representative, Mr. Massoula.

Rounding out the cast are Jerry Ward as Joe and Michael Ingraham as Pete, the two catering workmen who disrupt the Banks household as they prepare the home and grounds for the wedding reception.

Noel Harrison directed "Father of the Bride," and it is well worth your trip to Pheasant Run to see the results.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: A friend who reads everything concerning food in newspapers, magazines and so on has always been of great help in advising what to buy for the freezer. She says pork is plentiful now and it would stay well in the freezer for six months or so if kept at zero. I've always thought pork too fat to fool with and wonder if it has qualities I'm not aware of. Have you researched this at any time?

—Mrs. H.J.H.

Your friend is absolutely right. Pork today is leaner and better than ever before, and not only is it one of the most digestible meats, it's a good source of high quality protein and several important nutrients. Get yourself a few good recipes and make the most of this particular surplus.

Dear Dorothy: There has been plenty in your column about black walnuts but thought your readers might be interested in one unusual fact about them — black walnuts never get rancid. I don't know why but you can keep them in the shell (or even shelled) from one year to the next and they stay fresh.

—Mariam H.

Dear Dorothy: Went visiting my daughter and her newest arrival while I was still "doctoring" for some exzema on my hands. I explained to her that I wouldn't be able to handle the baby because the salve hadn't yet cleared things up. She just handed me the tube of stuff put on the baby's bottom when there is any trace of rash. Two applications and the exzema cleared up — and has stayed clear. And you should see my doctor's bill for all the prior examination and prescribing!

Hanukkah To Begin Sunday

by BOB ANDERSEN
Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, begins Sunday at sundown when Jewish families throughout the world light the holiday's first candle.

The significance of lighting candles across the eight-day holiday is related to an event that took place in 165 B.C. when the "Temple in Jerusalem was returned to the Jewish people from Syrian Paganism," said Rabbi Hillel Gamoran, of Beth Tikvah Congregation in Hoffman Estates.

At that time, a jar of oil burned for eight days when there was only enough oil for one day's burning, the Rabbi explained.

"The story of the miracle of the jar is one of many to explain the significance of lighting candles for eight days," he said. "It (Hanukkah) has long been a season of games, plays, gifts and special foods and gladness in the darkest season of the year."

"For the modern Jew," Rabbi Gamoran continued, "Hanukkah's meaning on both the festive and serious meanings of Hanukkah taught to them at Beth Tikvah Congregation, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

transcends candle lighting, gifts for children and latkes (potato pancakes). Of central significance is the recognition that an individual's religion must be his own choice, not the choice of the government under which he lives.

"THE MACCABEES of more than 2,000 years ago recognized this principle which still eludes many governments in this world today," he claimed.

Beth Tikvah Congregation will celebrate by saying "special prayers for their less fortunate brethren around the world who are not permitted to practice their religion, nor are they permitted to go to Israel where they could live in a land of freedom," Rabbi Gamoran said.

Members of Beth Tikvah will join in the celebration by lighting their own candles, he added.

The congregation will also hold a special family service at 8 p.m. Dec. 17. Also, he said, a special carnival is planned for the children of the congregation. At the carnival the children will eat latkes, which are the traditional holiday food, he said.

Briefly On Business

THE HERALD Thursday, December 9, 1971 Section 3 — 1

Robert Calvin, president of Des Plaines Bank, Lee and Oakton streets, this week said the bank's assets have grown from $15 million to $19 million in the past 12 months.

"I want to thank the wonderful people in this area who, despite our own remodeling program and the torn-up streets around our bank, have made it possible to show this $4 million growth in just one short year," Calvin said in a statement.

The Des Plaines Bank recently changed its name from Des Plaines Trust and Savings Bank to indicate it has become a "full-service" bank.

MEL H. CORNILLAUD has been named to the newly-created position of manager for residential building products development for Borg-Warner Corporation. It was announced today by Dr. Donald W. Collier, vice president of research.

Cornillaud will be responsible for directing an investigation into potential new housing products for Borg-Warner. Several Borg-Warner divisions are currently serving the residential construction industry with air conditioning, heating and plumbing products. Cornillaud will be headquartered at the Borg-Warner Research Center in Des Plaines.

Before joining Borg-Warner, Cornillaud was marketing manager for residential products for the Trane Co. of LaCrosse, Wis. He joined Trane in 1965 as a sales engineer and held several sales and marketing positions.

He served in the Army from 1963 to 1965 and prior to his military service was a technical representative for Union Carbide Corp. Cornillaud was graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1961 with a bachelor's degree in engineering. In 1962, he received a master's degree from MIT. He is currently enrolled in the M.B.A. program at the University of Wisconsin.

SEVERAL PERSONNEL changes have been announced at Central Telephone Company of Illinois recently.

W. J. Brandon, division personnel supervisor, has been promoted to Eastern District Manager at Tallahassee.

Brandon joined Centel in 1947 as a maintenance man. During his 24 years with the Illinois Division he served as foreman and supervisor, commercial office supervisor, office manager, district commercial superintendent and assistant division public relations and personnel manager.

He has been active in Kiwanis Clubs and Chamber of Commerce of both Des Plaines and Park Ridge, where he resided at various times.

A second promotion outside the Illinois Division involved T. E. Troughton, a Commercial Engineer, who was recently promoted to a staff assistant at Operating Headquarters in Lincoln, Neb.

Troughton joined Centel as a commercial assistant in 1964 and later served as district commercial superintendent at Dixon, Ill. before joining the Illinois Division.

Richard J. Mickulecky has been hired to fill the vacancy left by Brandon. Mickulecky has a master's degree in counseling from Illinois State University. Prior to joining Centel he was employed by Montgomery Ward and Co.

John P. McAndrews, Park Ridge office manager, has been promoted to fill Troughton's vacancy. McAndrews joined Centel in 1961 as a mail boy and rose thru the ranks to his present position. He lives in Des Plaines.

C. T. Conn, commercial assistant in the Des Plaines business office, has been promoted to Park Ridge office manager. Conn joined Central Telephone in 1948 as a groundman, rising thru the craft ranks, then to management. He makes his home in Des Plaines.

David L. Meyer, an outside plant engineer, has been promoted to commercial assistant, filling the vacancy left by Conn.

SALK, WARD & SALK, INC. has arranged mortgage financing of $1,675,000 on an industrial building recently completed at 1831 Mount Prospect Rd., Des Plaines. The building is the home offices of Diversey Corp., chemical manufacturers. Term of the loan is 25 years.

The new building, with a frontage of 437 feet on Mount Prospect Road, is located on about eight acres and has a total of 135,000 square feet of space, including 35,000 square feet of air-conditioned office area. There are 24-foot ceilings and paved parking for 133 cars.

Sponsors of the project are George Hitchcock and Ben Lytle of Custer Construction Co., the general contractor. The new Diversey Corp. offices are located in a prime industrial area which has neighboring firms such as Western Electric, Consolidated Foods, City Products, Pepsi-Cola, RCA, Illinois Tool Works, General American Transportation, STP and PlaySkool.

FINANCING TOTALING $350,000 has been arranged by B. B. Cohen & Company, mortgage and industrial bankers, for Arthur's Court Shopping Center in Des Plaines.

Located at the northeast corner of Ballard and Potter roads, the center contains 17,100 square feet of space devoted to convenience outlets on a 63,636 square foot site. Parking has been provided for 76 cars.

Some 3,000 square feet of space has been leased to the Southland Corp. and the balance will be occupied by a variety of stores, with a total of 10 for the entire center.

THE FIRST phase of "The Landings" is under construction on 20 acres at the northeast corner of Ballard and Potter roads in Des Plaines. There will be 84 one and two-bedroom condominiums in the first phase.

Eventual plans call for 504 condominiums on 15 acres with an outdoor pool, eight tennis courts, and the basketball court in the recreation building. The creek which runs east to west through the property is being retained.

Four acres fronting on Dempster will contain a twin-towered building with 150,000 square feet of commercial and office space. Longi Realty of Chicago will handle the leasing of the office and commercial space.

Bern Builders, the developers, and the Croatian Fraternal Union, property owners, began negotiations in June, 1969. Financing was arranged through United Savings and Loan Association. Peter Longi of Chicago was sole broker and Longi Realty will handle the leasing of the office and commercial space.

Bern Builders estimates it will take about four years for completion of the entire development. The first three buildings containing 84 units will be ready for occupancy in the spring of 1972.

Link Money To Marital Rifts

Does your spouse think that you don't know how to handle money? Are you having marital problems or trouble getting along with your in-laws? Do you and your spouse constantly argue about how to bring up your children?

"These are the most common symptoms of marriage problems," said Dr. David Busby, staff member of Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, "but the causative factors behind these symptoms are conflicts in authority, communication, and personal identity."

Busby will discuss these problems, how to recognize them, and various alternatives for dealing with them, either with or without professional help, in a program next Tuesday titled "I'll Do It Because I Love You."

The program, which starts at 8 p.m., is the third in a series designed to help individuals explore their personal potential. It will be held in the auditorium of Maine South High School, 1111 S. Dee Rd., Park Ridge. The series is co-sponsored by the Maine Adult Evening School and Forest Hospital Foundation.

Tickets for the program, which will include a lecture and demonstration, are $1.50 and will be available at the door.

PTA Notes

Christmas is a time of giving, and Plainfield PTA hopes to bring this message to the students of Plainfield School in a special way.

The PTA has purchased five turkeys to make Christmas baskets for needy families and students have been asked to bring one item each to be included in the special baskets. The children also will be encouraged to help assemble baskets and make cards.

The items for the baskets are being collected this week. The baskets will be made up Dec. 14 and delivered in time for Christmas.

Just Dogs

by Dave Terrill

Wintertime care --

About this time every year we bring up a few subjects as a reminder to those who have read them before, and as something new for those who are going through the winter season for the first time with a dog.

Perhaps No. 1 on the list, if you are traveling with your dog in the car, and stop to do some shopping, remember to let the windows stay open a crack. Some people will let the motor idle to keep the dog warm, even though in most places it is against the law to let a car run at idle and unattended.

Most dogs don't need the warmth of a car heater, but if you insist on doing so don't forget that carbon monoxide from a faulty exhaust system has spelled the end for many a family pet left in a car with the motor running and the windows closed.

Another item to remember. When we do get the ice and snow, there will be a lot of salt substitutes used on streets and sidewalks. If you have your dog out walking where there is a possibility of such chemicals being used, wipe your dog's paws off when he comes into the house.

Many a dog has developed serious infections because of some of this material lodging between the toes. The hair on a dog's paw can make the stuff stick and, if not removed, cause problems.

One last item, for those who keep their dog inside during the winter, and even if he is outside, we repeat what we said last January. One tablespoon, more or less depending on the size of the dog, of corn oil added to his food once a day will help keep his coat and skin from getting too dry during the winter months. "Overweight" season --

Too many dog owners wonder why their dogs become so heavy this time of year. Some dogs actually are up to the point of obesity.

It all stems from perhaps a little too much kindness in the form of table scraps from those holiday meals. Many an owner will not follow the directions on packages of complete and balanced dog foods, they devise their own methods of feeding which include adding an almost equal amount of rich table scraps, gravy, you name it, to the dog's regular food.

Research has proven the severity of viral and bacterial infections in obese dogs shows that they are more liable to infection than low or normal fed dogs.

This does not mean that you can't give him a dog biscuit as a special treat now and then, but, please, don't overdo it. The corn oil for his coat works a different way, but, please, No! Pedigreed, the family tree --

If you bought a new puppy for the family and he is a recognized breed, don't call him a "pedigreed" dog. Your dog should correctly be called a "pure-bred," and that is how the breeder will refer to him.

All dogs have a pedigree, so do people, it is nothing more than the family tree. Even a plain old mutt has a pedigree, it may be a little mixed up, but he still has a family tree. Barks & Bays --

Try putting a thermometer down at floor level, then you will know just what temperature your dog has to live with.

Cardinals Tip Elk Grove; No. 100 For George Zigman

by LARRY EVERHART

It was a happy 100th for George Zigman... victory, not birthday.

That's how many career wins the Arlington basketball coach now has after the Cardinals' 65-57 win at Elk Grove Tuesday night. But the 100th was more difficult to attain than most of the other 99.

Led by ace guard Ken Peters' 19 points and forward Mike Cleveland's 16, Arlington warded off some spirited comeback attempts by the scrappy, never-say-die Grenadiers in the final quarter. Several times the hosts were within hailing distance, making things pretty nervous until the last couple of minutes.

Elk Grove proved that its two wins over the weekend, including a shocking upset of Wheeling, were no flukes. The Grens fought to a 26-26 tie at halftime, led as late as two minutes into the third quarter, and didn't give Zigman or the Cardinals any chance to relax.

In fact, typically, George was so worried about getting past the Grenadiers that he had to be reminded he had reached a personal milestone. "Hey, that's right... I'd forgotten about that," he brightened when told.

Zigman has racked up 56 of the wins at Arlington in only a little more than three seasons there. He has lost just 19 games as Card boss and only 37 in his whole career.

Getting back to Tuesday's contest, Arlington pulled away in the last six minutes of the second half and then staved off the spirited Grenadiers by accepting charity. They reeled off a red-hot streak of 16 free tosses of their last 17... and needless to say, many were quite important.

In all, Arlington cashed in on 19 of 25 from the line, and that was the difference. A breakdown of statistics shows the teams were extremely even in other departments. Each shot 40 per cent from the field, Arlington had one more field goal and one more rebound (23-28), and the Cards had 10 turnovers to only six for Elk Grove.

Both teams handled the ball remarkably well, especially for so early in the season and considering that both teams were putting on plenty of pressure on defense.

"We brought the ball up well against that pressure," said Zigman, "and we kept looking under the basket, too. We got some easy shots that way."

"It was basically a team win. We had good balance and everybody helped. Seven guys (all the Cards who played) did it for us."

Bob Prince, Elk Grove's quick, sharpshooting junior guard, led his team with 13 points while Dave Chernick and Miller each had 11.

It was nip-and-tuck through the first quarter, with both teams starting out slowly but picking up the pace. A pair of outside baskets by Peters gave Arlington a 16-12 lead after one period.

That lead soon grew to 22-16, but then Elk Grove took over. Prince scored six points and Chernick two baskets to help the Grenadiers to a tie at the half.

The game got physical in the third quarter and some hotly-disputed referees' calls resulted in a technical against each coach. Arlington took the lead for good on a three-point play by Cleveland, who then was the key in his team pulling away with eight straight foul shots without a miss.

The Grens chipped away at the 11-point deficit after the third quarter and twice were only five behind late in the fourth quarter with chances to make it three. But two more long bounces by Peters, a pair of close-in baskets by Tim Will and Cleveland's rebound goal turned back Elk Grove's repeated bids.

Peters' 19 was his low for five games thus far, which says something about the way he is playing. He is averaging 26.3 points per game.

Arlington has now won four of five games while Elk Grove is 2-2. Tuesday's contest did not count in the Mid-Suburban League standings since it was a cross-division game.

Yes, Sir

When a sportswriter referred to the object Minnesota Viking defensive end Carl Eller was carrying as a "purse," the 6-foot-6, 250-pound strongman turned and growled, "It's an 'outside wallet' and don't you forget it."

All In The Family

Jim Webster, North Carolina senior linebacker, will have a good friend in the graduating class next June: his mother. His mother will be receiving a master's degree at the same time Webster gets his bachelor's.

Long History

Penn State has fielded a football team for 85 years. The Nittany Lions won their first game, 54-0 over Bucknell, in 1887 and they have compiled an over-all record of 459 wins, 232 losses and 30 ties.

Morgan Park Shows Biggest Gain In Ratings

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

Looking back on St. Rita's narrow 18-12 victory over Morgan Park for Chicago's City Championship in football last weekend, one must ask if St. Rita was over-rated all season.

The opinion here is that St. Rita had not been overrated but, instead, that Morgan Park had been underrated. Morgan Park did not set the football world afire early in the season, but toward the end of the campaign, the Public League champs fielded a very fine football team.

The Herald's ratings of Chicagoland's football teams did not include Morgan Park until last week. Even then, the Mustangs were rated 19th.

But, after an impressive showing against St. Rita — Chicagoland's and the state's No. 1 team — Morgan Park ranks fifth in the Herald ratings.

In the final rankings, St. Rita, Evanston, East Leyden and Eisenhower remain in the top four spots. Morgan Park rates fifth with each team filling out the top 20, except Ridgewood, falling one spot from the week before. Ridgewood remains in the 20th spot.

Falcon Swimmers Win Two

A pair of Niles teams played perfect hosts over the weekend for Forest View's swim team.

The Falcons hammered Niles West, 77-18 on Friday and followed up with an almost as impressive win over Niles North on Saturday, 69-25.

Pacing the doubleheader victories were Cliff Schlak and Mark Bailey with three first-place finishes each. Schlak, a transfer from Elk Grove's swim team, won the 200 freestyle twice and also the 100 freestyle; Bailey also had a 100 with and a pair of 50 freestyle victories.

Posting double firsts for Forest View coach Gordon Aukerman were Jim Johnson in diving, John Mate in the butterfly, Jeff Geisler in the backstroke, Fred Westdale in the breaststroke and Norb Polacek in the individual medley.

The medley relay team of Geisler, Westdale, Mate and Bailey won twice. The 400 freestyle relay team also won both times but with different personnel. Polacek, Pete Lenkeit, Mate and Schlak took the opener and Bailey, Polacek, Lenkeit and Schlak took the Saturday game.

The Falcons won the first frosh-soph meet, 56-39, over Niles West and then dropped the second, 55-40.

Forfeits Hurt Maine North

One may wonder why depth is so important in wrestling but Maine North came up with a perfect answer in its meet with Niles East Friday night.

The Norsemen lost the meet 24-21 but 12 of Niles East's points came due to forfeits. Maine North, which has only one wrestler at most weight divisions, was forced to forfeit two matches since the Norsemen 105 pounder was just recovering from an injury and the 112 pounder was out with an illness.

On the mats, Maine North outscored Niles East 21-12.

Jack Horowitz was a 7-0 victor for Maine North at 98 pounds. After the two forfeits, Bryan Clark lost 9-0 at 119 pounds as Niles East took a 15-3 lead. Phil Kolpek won 7-5 at 126 pounds and Steve Merker won 7-2 at 132 pounds to close the gap to 15-9.

Norm Lau won via pin in 2:58 at 138 pounds and Gary Heintz won 7-2 at 145 pounds to give the Norsemen an 18-15 lead. After Frank DeMarco lost 4-2 at 155 pounds, Mike Fiske won 9-5 at 167 pounds to give Maine North a 21-18 lead. Steve Boucher lost 14-6 at 185 pounds and Chester Dambek lost 4-2 in the heavyweight match as Niles East pulled out its three-point victory.

Niles East also won the freshman meet and the sophomore meet.

Maine North will go against Niles West Friday night at 6:30 and against Niles North Saturday at 1 p.m. Both will be Central Suburban League meets and both will be at home.

Varsity Setback For St. Raymond

St. Raymond convincingly trounced St. Thomas in two of three grade school basketball games last week, but fell in the thrilling varsity affair, 47-45.

Earlier, St. Raymond romped on the sixth-grade level, 50-14 and then blasted St. Theresa in seventh grade action, 44-20 behind Lou Citro's 13 points and Bob Cantieri's 11.

The varsity setback, however, spoiled St. Raymond's bid for a three-game sweep.
